COOLIDGE GETS GLIMPSE OF CITY IN EARLY MORN AUTOMOBILE RIDE

President, as Guest of L. E. Smith, Friend of College Days, Visits Zoo and Residential Section.

DEPARTS AT 8 A. M. FOR WASHINGTON

Mayor Miller and Congressman Dyer in Party Accompanying Executive on Hour's Motor Ride.

President and Mrs. Coolidge paid a surprise visit to St. Louis early today, for an hour's motor ride with an old college friend of the Chief Executive. Comparatively few of those passed on the streets realized the presence of the guests.

Forest Park, the zoo and the neighboring sections of fine homes were traversed by the nine automobiles in the party. At 8:06 a. m. the President's special train left Union Station on the return trip to Washington from the American Legion convention at Omaha.

It had been announced the train would stop in the station yards for an hour, to be transferred from the Wabash Railway to the Baltimore & Ohio, and that the party would remain on board. On the trip west, Monday evening, that was what happened.

Attended Amherst Together.

However, the President's secretary telegraphed yesterday to Luther Ely Smith, an attorney, of 5321 Waterman avenue, who knew Mr. Coolidge when they were attending Amherst College. The President, said the message, would like an hour's airing, in an unofficial visit, and the plan was not to be announced to the newspapers. Mayor Miller was notified that the President would like to meet him.

The train arrived in the yards at 6:30 a. m., at about the time the President and Mrs. Coolidge were having breakfast, but was not backed into Union Station till 6:55 o'clock. Smith, Mayor Miller, Congressman Dyer, Chief of Police Gerk, Chief of Detectives Kaiser and a large detail of policemen and detectives were there to greet them. Reporters, station officials and red caps were the only others at the track.

Smith introduced his official companions and the President, smilingly but silently, shook hands with them. Secret service men held their customary alert positions.

Unnoticed by Passengers.

The little group, followed by the rest of the train party, moved down the midway, where there were only a few early passengers. Most of the passengers failed to notice the visitors, or saw them too late to make waving worth while. The machines provided by Smith were waiting at the Twentieth street entrance and soon were on their way, with an escort of one motor cycle Sergeant, the two Chiefs having gone in advance. The President requested that the motor cycle man keep to the rear.

Leading the way was the car occupied by the President and Mrs. Coolidge, Smith and Richard Jervis, head of the White House secret service men. A car occupied by Mayor Miller, Congressman Dyer and Secretary Everett Sanders was lost for a few blocks at first.

The route was out Locust street and Lindell boulevard to Skinker road, passing the group of ecclesiastical, scholastic and fraternal buildings west of Grand boulevard, and turning at Washington University.

Maids getting the morning paper from front steps didn't glance at the quiet group of cars; a policeman looked north and yawned at the New Cathedral corner; Festus J. Wade, the banker, leaving his home for an early start, returned the wave of reporters in the last car, but seemingly didn't realize who rode in the first car. The city was just waking up in the crisp October air. The party had to stop at the Wabash grade crossing, just like busses and delivery trucks, while the Moberly accommodation rattled past.

See Statue of Saint Louis.

The nation's thirtieth head was taken past the Louisiana Purchase memorial to the third—Jefferson. Going out Forsythe avenue, the President was driven over Pennsylvania avenue, Clayton, which lacks the sights and throngs he is accustomed to on Pennsylvania avenue.

ROBERTSON FIRM GETS AIR MAIL CONTRACT

St. Louis Corporation to Conduct Shuttle Service From Here to Chicago.

The aerial mail contract for the Chicago-St. Louis route was awarded to the Robertson Aircraft Corporation of St. Louis by Postmaster-General New at Washington today. Successful bidders on four other aerial mail lines also were announced.

The contract awarded to the Robertson Aircraft Corporation provides for shuttle service to connect St. Louis with the transcontinental aerial line at Chicago. An airplane will be dispatched from St. Louis every afternoon about 4 p. m. An airplane will arrive from Chicago daily about 9 a. m.

William B. Robertson, president of the successful company, said the time in which his company could begin service is limited only by the time it will take to get lights for the Chicago-St. Louis airway.

Service to Begin Soon.

"We have been afraid to go ahead on negotiations for lights because of the uncertainty of Mr. New's award," Robertson said today. "If we can find a manufacturer to furnish them at once or if the Government can sell them to us, we can begin service within 30 days.

"As far as planes and personnel are concerned we could carry mail to Chicago this afternoon. We have on hand four new Curtiss Orioles capable of carrying 400 pounds of mail each. We also have three DH-4s ready and two more under construction for use when the mail gets heavier. A trained force of mechanics has been at work on the ships and we have a force of experienced pilots."

The postage for the new route will be 10 cents an ounce or fraction thereof, between here and Chicago, plus five cents additional for each zone on the transcontinental line over which the mail is flown.

Conditions of the Bids.

Contractors for the shuttle lines were told they could bid as high as 8 cents an ounce or fraction thereof for the mail-carrying contracts. The Robertson Aircraft Corporation bid 6.75 cents for the Chicago-St. Louis route.

Postmaster-General New awarded the New York-Boston route to the Colonial Airlines, Inc., of Naugatuck, Conn.; the Chicago-Dallas-Fort Worth line to National Air Transport, Inc., of Chicago; Salt Lake City-Los Angeles route to Western Air Express, Inc., of Los Angeles; the Elko-Pasco route in Nevada, to Walter T. Varney of San Francisco.

No awards were made for the Chicago-Birmingham and Chicago-Minneapolis routes. The bid of Vern C. Gorst for the Seattle-Los Angeles route is under consideration.

WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM ARCADE BUILDING

FATHER ENDED HIS LIFE 21 YEARS AGO

Mother Says Daughter Had Suffered Nervous Breakdown Recently and Had Spoken of Suicide.

Following the example of her father, who ended his life 21 years ago, Miss Loretta Foerstel, 24 years old, of 906 Russell avenue, today leaped to her death from a ninth-floor window of the Arcade Building.

The body landed on a shed used in the erection of the Paul Brown Building, just west of the Arcade Building. The shed is almost in the center of the block bounded by Ninth, Eighth, Olive and Pine streets. Examination at the morgue, to which the body was taken, indicated the neck and shoulders were fractured.

Was Saleswoman.

Miss Foerstel was a saleswoman for the Roobings Jewelry Co., on the third floor of the Arcade Building. Without reporting for work this morning, she went to a washroom on the west side of the ninth floor of the building, and jumped from a window at 8:05 o'clock.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mary Foerstel, a widow, with whom she lived at the Russell avenue address. When a reporter sought out Mrs. Foerstel at her place of employment, the St. Louis Bank Equipment Co., Ninth and Sidney streets, she immediately asked, "What did she do—jump out of a window?"

Suffered Breakdown.

Since she suffered a nervous breakdown recently, Miss Foerstel had been melancholy and frequently threatened to end her life, the mother said. She spoke of leaping from a window and taking poison, and a month ago she did swallow a quantity of iodine. She remained away from her work until Monday, when her physician permitted her to return on her promise to "forget about suicide." She appeared cheerful at home this morning.

Miss Foristel was 3 years old when her father, Louis Foerstel, ended his life by drowning in the Mississippi and this influenced her, the mother believes. Her mother did not remarry, and the daughter went to work 10 years ago for the jewelry company.

Snow in Montana and Wyoming; Heavy Rains in Southwest.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 7.—The first breath of winter has been felt in the Rocky Mountain region. Snow overspread Montana and Northern Wyoming yesterday. Heavy rains were reported over a storm area reaching as far south as New Mexico and Arizona. The storm at Helena was accompanied by the twenty-ninth earth tremor felt there since May 31. Each of the three snow storms Helena has experienced so far this winter has been accompanied by slight earth movements. Freezing temperatures were recorded in the northern belt of the region.

SURPRISE SPRUNG ON JURYMEN; ALL EXCUSES ACCEPTED

Reason Was That None of Three Defendants Appeared for Trial.

Twenty-four out of 76 men summoned for jury duty in Circuit Judge Landwehr's court today thought the Judge was doing them a great favor when he excused them without questioning their reasons for getting off. However, they were doing the State a favor; the Judge had no need for their services because three defendants scheduled for trial had failed to appear, but the jurors didn't understand about that.

At the Judge's direction, the bailiff omitted the usual statement about "no business excuses accepted" when he called out for those with excuses to come forward. The 24 hurried up, turned in their summonses without claiming pay, and left. The remaining 52, who couldn't think of excuses, kept their seats. The Judge then assigned them to duty in two other court rooms.

The State saved $36 in pay for those who were excused.

Bursting Flue on Lehigh Valley Locomotive Endangers Lives of Passengers on Mountain.

By the Associated Press.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 7.—Although seriously scalded by steam last night when a flue burst on the locomotive of a Lehigh Valley train, Gus Geiser, engineer, of this city, and Robert Matthews, fireman, of Lehighton, stuck to their posts until their train was stopped and the safety of the passengers assured.

The accident occurred when the train was coming down the mountain, three miles from Mountain Top, on the Wilkes-Barre side. Although the engine cab was flooded with the scalding vapor, Engineer Geiser applied his brakes and stood his ground until a safe stop of his train was assured. Then he and Fireman Matthews leaped from the cab. Physicians fear both will die.

A rescue crew from the local yards brought the train in, an hour and a half late. Geiser stopped his train so gradually that the passengers were scarcely disturbed.

Buoy is Anchored Over Spot Where Submarine Sank.

By the Associated Press.

U. S. SUBMARINE BASE, NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 7.—Leaving behind them only a single light buoy rolling in the swell to mark the place where the ill fated submarine S-51 went to the bottom of the sea off Block Island, the steamship Camden, flagship of the rescue fleet, and the salvage ship Chittenden, with its crew of divers, withdrew from the scene last night.

Work of recovering the bodies which may be in the wreck and of salvaging the submarine was suspended pending orders from Washington. The Camden returned to the base here, and the Chittenden proceeded to New York. Withdrawal of the rescue party followed recommendations made to the Navy Department today by Rear Admiral H. H. Christy that the salvaging be turned over to a commercial agency.

SEARCH STREETS FOR JURORS

U. S. Deputy Marshal Bring in 40 Office Workers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—When Federal Judge Bondy found a panel of 50 veniremen exhausted in court yesterday he ordered Deputy Marshals to search the streets and recruit men for duty as emergency jurors. Forty office workers on their way to work found themselves unexpectedly pressed into service.

"Of course, this is an emergency measure," Judge Bondy told the prospective jurors, "but the work of the United States Court in this district is important to the community and it must be carried out." A bankruptcy case was called and the selection of a jury was begun.

MOFFETT URGES DIRIGIBLE LARGER THAN SHENANDOAH

Tells Air Board Craft of at Least 6,000,000 Cubic Feet Capacity Should Be Built in U. S.

DENIES "BUNGLING" CHARGE OF MITCHELL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, today told the President's air board the Shenandoah should be replaced with a rigid airship built in the United States and of at least 6,000,000 cubic feet capacity, as compared with the 2,115,000 cubic feet capacity of the wrecked ship.

He took sharp issue with Col. William Mitchell, who had declared "bungling" of the Navy had caused failure of the Shenandoah, Hawaiian and North Polar projects in which Navy aircraft participated.

Hawaiian Planes Well Tested.

Although not mentioning Mitchell by name, Admiral Moffett declared that the Hawaiian flight was undertaken with every reason for belief in a successful outcome, as the planes had been thoroughly tested.

Parachutes weer not carried on the Shenandoah, he said, as experience had shown that if the ship fell suddenly, they would be of little value, while if the descent were slow the dirigible would serve as its own parachute. Mitchell charged failure to equip the air liner with parachutes was like sending "a vessel to sea without life boats."

The purpose of navy planes with the MacMillan Arctic expedition, he declared, was exploration and the collection of data, and this was done.

Submits Recommendations.

Recalled for further examination after his appearance about two weeks ago, Moffett submitted a number of recommendations for revision of the air forces of the army and navy. He urged the establishment of a bureau of civil aeronautics in the Department of Commerce, and an airship base on the West coast.

Among other recommendations made by Moffett were these:

Leave the division of functions between Army and Navy air forces to the joint board, as now provided.

Remove limitation on the number of naval shore stations to be devoted to heavier-than-air activities.

Do not reduce the number of midshipmen at Annapolis, the best source of pilot material.

Establish a definite five-year program of air construction.

Put the Navy Yard development board program, with reference to aviation, into effect, especially for the air stations at Coco-Solo and Pearl Harbor.

Appropriate more for a naval aviation reserve; settle the flight pay question; give the Secretary of the Navy more latitude in making contracts and protect the interests of naval aviators who entered the service during the World War.

Helium Handicapped Shenandoah.

Admiral Moffett said the use of helium handicapped the Shenandoah from 35 to 40 per cent because she was built for inflation with hydrogen.

He discussed in detail the reason for nonequipment of the Shenandoah with parachutes. Personnel on the air liner, he said, had to travel rapidly over long distances in the ship and crawl through narrow hatches, all of which make a parachute impractical to wear.

Returning to the Hawaiian flight Moffett asserted the PN-9 No. 1 was tested last spring at Philadelphia and remained in the air 28 hours and 35 minutes, a time sufficient to reach Honolulu.

He opposed a plan by Commander John H. Rodgers, Hawaiian flight leader, to create a Department of National Defense, in which the Army and Navy would have equal status.

Lack of Funds Blocked Navy Activities, Shoemaker Asserts.

Rear Admiral W. R. Shoemaker, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, testified yesterday that lack of funds had caused a curtailment of every Naval activity, and necessitated a reduction in the enlisted personnel from 86,009 to 81,700 for the fiscal year 1926.

Admiral Shoemaker said the budget bureau had reduced by 1,000 men the 87,000 contemplated in the Navy operating plan for the fiscal year of 1927. Many submarines and destroyers, he added,

By the Associated Press.

FORBES FIELD, Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 7.—A bright sun shone down from clear skies on this battleground for the opening clash of the world's series this afternoon between Washington and Pittsburg, champions of the American and National Leagues, respectively.

A capacity crowd of 45,000 was on hand.

Two lines of fans completely encircled the outside of the park before the gates were opened. Ralph Arkle, Pittsburg fan, led the second procession into the bleacher seats.

At noon, two hours before starting time, the glistening, pine-board stands in left center and the concrete bleacher section off the left field foul line both were filled to capacity. There were close to 10,000 in these cheaper-priced sections.

Many of the "early birds" had stood in line overnight to make sure of their places. They were a tired looking, sleepless lot, but they hadn't lost any of their enthusiasm.

They were kept in good spirits by a band, parked in the shade of center field fence, and the comedy antics of Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the traveling clowns of the Washington outfit.

The crowd roared as Altrock and Schacht put on a football pantimime, with an orange ballloon as a substitute for the pigskin.

Notables Present.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania arrived shortly after 1 o'clock to provide an extra photographic target. He posed in the act of tossing out the first ball, a ceremony he later performed as the official opening gesture. He shook hands afterward with Managers Harris and McKechnie.

Park Like a Band Box.

Besides the new bleachers section in the outfield, seating about 6000, extra boxes were spread out close to the first and third base lines, while the right field grandstand was extended for a dozen rows out on the field.

These additions gave the park a "band box" appearance and increased the likelihood that the heavy hitters on both clubs—Goslin, Rice, Joe and Stan Harris, Cuyler, Barnhart and Wright—would find ready targets for long drives.

Mascots of the rival teams preceded the players on the field and attracted a battery of cameramen. As scions of the leading houses of each—"Young Bill" McKechnie, son of the Pirate manager and Calvin Griffith, son of the Washington president—they carried off their honors proudly.

COLD CHURCHES IN ST. LOUIS WARMED UP BY REVIVALIST

SAYS MEETING WILL SET CITY ON FIRE

"The only way to lasting peace for the world, a nation, or an individual is through the blood of Jesus Christ," declared Evangelist Howard S. Williams last night in his tabernacle on Delmar boulevard west of Hamilton avenue, in commenting upon the address of President Coolidge at Omaha yesterday. "Coolidge didn't go far enough when he discussed world peace. I wish I could be President for just about 10 minutes. I would say just what Coolidge did but I would add that you must do it through Jesus Christ.

"The people must be set on fire for Jesus Christ and God everywhere before world peace can come. Why don't the men in high office come clean for Christ? Why didn't the President wind up his address with 'If ye believe in the Lord Jesus Christ.' It is absolutely impossible to have peace of heart and mind until Jesus Christ enters the hearts of individuals throughout the world. Men in high positions don't seem to have nerve enough or don't love God enough to do it."

Appraises Coolidge.

"Coolidge is a fine, moral man," Williams continued. "I don't know whether he is a Christian or not. He undoubtedly is the ideal President from a business viewpoint but I am considering everything from a spiritual viewpoint. I think Woodrow Wilson was the greatest President we ever had because he stood up for Jesus Christ while in the White House. And in the same breath I want to assert I wouldn't vote for William G. McAdoo if he was the last man on earth. I was in his office once and he swore at least 20 times in 10 minutes. I wouldn't trust a man who cursed around the corner."

"I expect 5000 conversions in this campaign," the Mississippian told the few hundred who braved the chilly weather last night. "I am not a bit discouraged.' Let us few see if we are right with God. It may take three or four weeks to overcome all the obstacles, but we are going to have a revival that will sweep this old city from edge to edge. Too many people are praying and God always answers the prayers of the faithful.

"A Sinful Town."

"There is a tidal wave of righteousness coming. I was told by a prominent jurist today that this is a sinful town and full of hell. Jesus Christ must come down here and knock hell out of St. Louis." This declaration brought a storm of applause, led by a group of a dozen ministers present, including United Presbyterian, Methodist, Christian Alliance, Evangelical Baptist, Presbyterian and Congregational denominations. The opening prayer was led by Rev. Paul Riley Allen, a Congregationalist.

Before launching into his sermon on "Redeeming the Time," the former newspaper publisher again paid his respects to the evolutionists. "Great God, men, do you realize that you are saying that Jesus Christ, the son of God, came from a monkey or tadpole or some lower form of animal life? You don't seem to realize how far you go with such a theory. Remember, Jesus Christ was God in the flesh."

"Cold" churches in St. Louis also were "warmed up" a bit. "A lot of churches I have seen in St. Louis have walls like prisons. And I am told some of them are even colder inside than they appear on the outside. With folks on the streets hungering for salvation, they are shunned by many churches and churchmen. Thank God, they are welcome here. Christ was born in a stable. And there are a lot of society women who may be too proud to come down this sawdust trail but who may be only too glad some time to find a haven in heaven's stable."

Text for Sermon.

"Redeeming the time because the days are evil," Ephesians, 5, 16, was the text of last night's sermon. From a scriptural viewpoint it was easily the most powerful message he has delivered. "Either you redeemed some time today or you lost some," said the lay evangelist. "I think that if you did something for Jesus you redeemed time. But if everything you did was in a materialistic way for this world you lost it.

"If you have Christ in you, people will call you peculiar, and you are, because you have quit sin. 'Be ye in the world but not of the world.' Jesus Christ redeemed you and I. I made you, God says, and you went out in sin when Adam fell in the garden. I redeemed you when I sent my son to the cross. You are twice mine. That is the simple story of God's redemptive power. So simple it is hard to understand, isn't it?

"The only way in the world you can redeem time is by losing it. Many people, including Presidents, are doing good for their community and nation, but without Christ in it they won't have a single solitary trophy to lay at the feet of God on Judgment day. God lost His son; Christ lost his life; what have you lost? The gateway to Paradise is through sacrifice. Things wasted here we never will see up there. Things we do in the name of Jesus shall be redeemed.

Saw Caddies Gambling.

"We've got to cut out doing hypocritical things if we are going to redeem any time. No man or woman has any right to tell someone else how to live—and die—if he or she is doing the same sinful things. Believe me, card players and dancers are mighty small potatoes in God's sight. I'm not saying they are going to hell—but they can't win souls!

"I saw caddies gambling at a certain country club today. They are headed straight for the penitentiary. And why? Because they have seen you men and women of wealth and position gambling. If every member of that club had been a Christian someone would have stopped and told those boys it was wrong. We must do things for God.

"The biggest thorn in God's sight today is the indifferent church member. A lot of them say they don't believe in revivals. Neither does the devil, nor the bootlegger, the harlot, the liar, the curser. No, no one believes in a revival but the people who love God—that's the reason we're going to have one. One woman's prayers led Dwight L. Moody to the world's greatest revival. Woe be to the man or woman or minister who tries to stop this revival. They might just as well take their puny breath and try to stop a cyclone. I assert in all humbleness that you are going to see a mighty upheaval of God's power before the next eight weeks roll around. And the blood of those people who are lost will be on somebody's hands."

Appeals to Educated People.

Williams appealed to cultured, educated people to give their time to God's calling, as Paul, one of the smartest men in history, did after his conversion. "Some people seem to be irritated because of my plain, simple language," he said. "Listen, friends, I had to go to work before I finished my education. My father lost nearly half a million dollars in a business panic in the South and with it went my education at Princeton. But the time I lost in the business world I now am trying to redeem. And you can redeem some time, too, in the stores, on the newspapers, in the theaters.

"Christ was no recluse," he said. "He had time for lots of things. He went to feasts—but not Belshazzar's feast, like so many of you do. He mingled with folks in the best society—but not fast society. My idea of the Christian religion is Sunny Jim stuff. God deliver me from the "Gloomy Gus variety.

"We also must take time for meditation and prayer. There are people who go through the world who never see the beauty of the pansy or smell the perfume of the rose because they have the dollar mark squarely in front of their eyes.

"Then there are too many church members like the negro preacher who said 'God, use me, but use me in an advisory capacity.'

"'If a man shall win the whole world and lose his soul, what does it profit him?" he concluded. "Think for a second what eternity means. But don't think of it long or it will drive you mad. Eternity—no beginning, no ending."

After the service last night the evangelist made an appeal for choir members. "I've got the best and highest priced gospel singer in America in Charlie Butler," he said. "Yet this great director and his two wonderful assistants, "Happy" Turner and Dow Mooney, have no choir to direct. I fthe singers of St. Louis can't give anything to the Lord they at least should be selfish enough to take advantage of the training offered under these men." Turner led the singing in his jovial way last night and Mooney brought out another of his many instruments, this time a marimbaphone.

ROW OVER FIRE PUMPERS BRINGS CHARGE OF GRAFT

"I Said It in the Beginning and I Say It Now—It's Graft," Alderman Wander Tells Committee.

CHANGE IN PLANS TO BE INVESTIGATED

Kinsey and Dietz Will Be Asked to Explain Why the Original Specifications Were Altered.

Toward the end of a meeting of the Public Safety Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday, at which the members unanimously agreed to support Comptroller Nolte and Director of Public Safety Brod in the controversy over the purchase of five motor pumps for the Fire Department, Alderman Wander said "the whole thing looks like a damn graft to me. I said it in the beginning and I say it now—it's graft."

Alderman Eilers asked Director Brod what company's representative it was who promised him a Packard automobile if he would change the original specifications for the equipment Brod's only reply was that the tempter was not a representative of any of the companies that have bid on the pumpers.

"Is it the same fellow who sold the city some rotten hose about four years ago?" asked Eilers, adding, "I tried to find out something about that myself."

Not a Regular Agent.

"The man who saw me did not directly represent any company," replied Brod. "He may have been sent by them, but they could repudiate him."

Alderman Nangle said he thought he knew the identity of the man who made the offer to Director Brod. Alderman Eilers asked him to give his information to the committee, but Nangle's reply was to laugh and shake his head negatively.

It will be recalled that two members of the Board of Standardization, President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service and Supply Commissioner Dietz, changed the original specifications for the pumpers, over the objection of the third member, Comptroller Nolte, and against the recommendation of Director Brod, Fire Chief Alt and Master Mechanic Meier. They likewise rejected the original bids and received new bids yesterday.

The Aldermanic committee advised Director Brod to seek an opinion from the City Counselor as to whether he must accept equipment for his department purchased against his recommendation. They also told Brod they would embody the specifications he desired in a bill now pending before them, appropriating $186,000 for 14 more pumpers, which would make it impossible for the Board of Standardization to buy any equipment other than that recommended by those responsible for the operation of the Fire Department.

Fire Chief Alt and Master Mechanic Meier, who have just returned from the Fire Chief's convention at Louisville, Ky., where the various types of pumpers have been on display, renewed their recommendation for the purchase of Ahrens-Fox pumpers. Alt said Supply Commissioner Dietz, who also attended the convention, told him in the presence of Meier he thought the Ahrens-Fox pumpers were the best. He said he could not understand Dietz's attitude now.

Brod quoted figures on maintenance on the three types of pumpers in the department for the period from April 1 to October 1. The maintenance on the 27 pumpers of the American La France type during that period was $4,013.45—averaging $148.64 for each pumper. The two pumpers manufactured by the Seagrave Corporation in service were maintained at a cost of $1,076.59—averaging $538.29 each. The two Ahrens-Fox type only cost the department $77.26 to maintain — averaging $38.26 each.

The committee will have another meeting Thursday when President Kinsey and Commissioner Dietz will be asked to explain why they changed the specifications.

Lowest Bid Now $51,450.

The bids opened yesterday developed a new bidder. The Stutz Fire Engine Co. of Indianapolis, whose bid of $51,450 was the lowest submitted. The other bids were the same as those submitted at the last letting. The American La France Co., Elmira, N. Y., $53,500; General Manufacturing Co., St. Louis, $54,426; Seagrave Corporation, Columbus, O., $55,800, and Ahrens-Fox Fire Engine Co., Cincinnati, $64,250.

Another meeting of the Board of Standardization to pass on the bids will have to be held. No date has been set for the meeting.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TAKES AUTOMOBILE TOUR IN ST. LOUIS

Washington. The party took a turn past the fine homes in Brentmoor and Forest Ridge and by the new Fontbonne College, then went east in Wydown avenue to Forest Park.

There was a pause in front of the Art Museum, to see the statue of Saint Louis, and then the cars were stopped in a circle on one of the wings of the hill. The visitors looked at the foggy prospect of the city without alighting. Otherwise the spot was deserted, unlike its aspect in the evening.

The Bears Do Their Stunts.

At the bear pits in the Zoo, the President and Mrs. Coolidge and their escorts got out, to admire the animals in their realistic surroundings. The bear performed their waggish stunts just as they do for the kids on Sunday, but tantalizingly ignored Mrs. Coolidge's happy cries, "Come on over this way, bears!"

The first lady of the land, who was wearing a small, dark hat and black suit, waved at the bears and asked to stop again before the white Polars. When the President reached the other end of the pits, he inquired, pointing: "Do we go out this way?"

Past the foot of the Municipal Theater the machines whisked and then over Kingshighway to go by the group of hospitals centering around the medical school. The trip back to the station was made swiftly, in spite of increasing traffic: Forest Park place, Newstead avenue, West Pine and Lawton boulevards, Chestnut and Twenty-first streets and an unpaved block of Clark avenue comprised the route.

He opposed unification of the air services, declaring unity of command was essential in a naval battle which, he asserted, would still be decided on the surface because the limited capacity of airplanes and submarines made them dependent on other craft for supplies.

More Money Needed for Air Service, Says Longworth.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 7.—Greater appropriations are needed for the air service, Nicholas Longworth, Speaker-designate of the National House of Representatives, said at the conclusion of a visit to McCook Field here, the experimental station of the Army air service. Longworth was accompanied by his cousin, Marquis de Chambrun, a member of the French Debt Commission.

"There is no doubt in my mind of the necessity of greater appropriations for our air service," Longworth said, "the only question being where they should be placed and the objectives to be sought."

REPLY OF POLICE BOARD ASSAILED BY GRAND JUROR

RESENTS REFLECTION ON HIS INTELLIGENCE

Asserts Advice Evidently Is Not Welcome and Criticism, No Matter How Offered, Not Tolerated.

"It is evident that the Board of Police Commissioners have decided upon a policy which is not subject, in its opinion, to change or improvement. Advice is evidently not welcome. Criticism, no matter how offered, is not to be tolerated. The king can do no wrong."

In these words William W. LaBeaume of 5320 Waterman avenue, member of the recent Grand Jury, comments upon the Police Board's reply to the "friendly criticism" offered last Friday by the grand jury after its investigation of police raids in liquor and gambling cases, as well as other police work.

In a letter to the Post-Dispatch, received yesterday, LaBeaume writes:

As a member of the June Grand Jury I consider the reply, published in Tuesday's papers, by the Board of Police Commissioners in regard to the recommendations made by the Grand Jury, a reflection upon the intelligence and honesty of each and every member of the Jury. "In stating that the real basis for this criticism seems to lie in the fact that the Grand Jury feels that violations of the laws against liquor and gambling should not be treated in the same manner as violations of other criminal laws" the Police Board assumes an attitude which is not justified by any statements made in the report of the Jury.

Well-Tempered Criticism.

"Neither individually or collectively can the jury be rightfully accused of objecting to the arrest and conviction of law violators. There is no phase of the report that would indicate a desire on the part of the jurors to have the statutes winked at by the Police Department, the Prosecutors, or the Judges.

"The report does, however, offer well tempered criticism of the manner in which the Police Department has been attempting to enforce the laws. Regardless of any statements which have been made, or are now being made, by the members of the Board of Police Commissioners the real facts disclosed in the thorough investigation made by the grand jury over a period of four months deserve the intelligent consideration of the Police Commissioners and if the recommendations offered were given intelligent consideration the intent and verbiage of the report would not be misconstrued.

Entitled to Consideration.

"The grand jury in making its investigation and the report which followed was not actuated by any malice, passion nor prejudice. It had no political axes to grind. The report does not contain one line of violent criticism and is entitled to more than casual perusal by, and unfair retorts from, the Board of Police Commissioners.

"If, as stated by the Police Board, the department now has "squads" of trained men who immediately investigate all homicide cases, they are to be congratulated upon accomplishing in a day what Scotland Yard and other conspicuously efficient police and detective organizations have taken months and years to accomplish. If the Police Board is not exaggerating the department may well be proud in the possession of a large number of men who are qualified to undertake the investigation of a phase of crime which demands the utmost experience and cleverness of men who are thoroughly trained for the purpose, and who have been devoting all of their time to homicide cases.

"It is now evident that the Board of Police Commissioners have decided upon a policy which is not subject, in its opinion, to change or improvement. Advice is evidently not welcome. Criticism, no matter how offered, is not to be tolerated. The King can do no wrong."

It will be remembered that in the absence of President Orrick of the Police Board, the grand jury questioned Police Commissioner Kortjohn. It also talked with Chief of Police Gerk and Chief of Detectives Kaiser, as well as Circuit Attorney Sidener, Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer and Coroner Vitt.

Freight Loadings Still Gaining.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Freight car loadings for the week ending September 26, placed last night by the American Railway Association at 1,120,645 cars, were described as the second highest week's loading this year. This represented an increase of 22,217 cars over the week preceding and 32,691 above the corresponding week of 1924.

Gives "Big Business" Rules for Religion

Advice on how to "sell" religion and to apply the principles of "Big Business," was given to members of the St. Louis Ministerial Alliance by the Rev. Dr. Christian E. Reisner, pastor of the Broadway Temple, New York City, at Hotel Statler yesterday.

The Rev. Dr. Reisner told the ministers of the component qualities of the word "advertise" by informing them of what each letter stood for.

"A," he said, "stands for Attract. You must attract people to the church. You can't convert an empty pew. Get an electric sign. Not a cheap, dinky, litle thing. Get a great, big, modern one. How? You haven't the money? Go to some rich man after he is in bed. Then stay there until he gets up and talks with you. Make him see the point. A young minister friend of mine did this. You can do it. Get into the papers.

"D," stands for the Daily papers. When I was promoting the Broadway Temple, which will lift the cross of Christ as high as the top of any commercial building, I arranged for a banquet to all the newspaper men in town. It was the first time there had been a function like that for 20 years. As a result I got three managing editors on my publicity committee. Get into the papers. Dwight Moody said that every minister should have been a reporter for six months. He said then he would learn to write and learn to know human nature. Don't be afraid of the newspapers.

"'V,' is for Vivacious. Don't always have a church sermon. Whistle a hymn sometimes, don't always sing them. Laugh. Clap your hands. There is nothing wrong with mirthful energy. Always have a surprise of some sort.

Cultivate Politicians.

"'E' stands for Entertainment. Don't expect people to come to church and be bored. Have something diverting.

"'R' is for Rare Program. Have a prominent speaker. I had Gov. Al Smith talk one night. He's a Catholic and a wet. 'Awful,' you say. Well, he's a good friend of mine. And I have got some influence in New York now. Cultivate politicians. You may want the Police Band sometime. You can't tell when you will want a favor, not for yourself, but for some good cause.

"'T' is for Topic. When you announce the topic of your sermon make it short and to the point. If there is an earthquake near by, made it 'God and Earthquakes.' Or, 'Health and Religion,' would be a good topic. Keep them down to a few words.

Cooking and Health.

"'I' stands for Impressive copy. Impressive copy will attract Jew, Catholic or Protestant. It knows no creed. Change your 'Go to Church' signs to 'Come to Church.' It sounds better.

"'S' is for Service. Why shouldn't the churches have health service? Places for physical examination? Why shouldn't they teach people how to cook? There's precious litof good cooking nowadays. I saw a recipe for sauerkraut in an ad yesterday. I'm taking it home to my wife. She'll cook me up some. I like sauerkraut. If you don't like sauerkraut there's nothing wrong with sauerkraut; there's something wrong with you.

BURGLAR ESCAPES BY HOPPING ON TRAIN

Abandons Auto Containing Loot in Railroad Yards, After Exciting Chase.

An agile burglar and a detective participated in an automobile and foot chase at 11 o'clock last night, which ended when the burglar effected his escape by beating the detective up a scaling ladder at the entrance to the Eighth street railroad tunnel. In making his escape the burglar abandoned his automobile and stolen goods valued at $417.

The chase started shortly after Lieut. Moran, Detective Sanders and police of the Soulard Street Station responded to telephone information that a burglar was robbing a store in the 1600 block of South Broadway. Sanders remained in a police automobile while his companions began investigations on foot. His attention was attracted to an automobile driven rapidly from an alley and west in Carroll street.

Sanders gave chase, firing his revolver as he drove. At Tenth and Poplar streets the pursued driver turned his machine into the railroad yards, where a rear wheel collapsed under the strain of jolting over railroad tracks.

Sanders left his machine, continuing the chase on foot. He stumbled over a switch and in the interim the burglar swung on a freight train entering the tunnel at Eighth street. From the train the burglar grasped a scaling ladder leading up the entrance to the tunnel and gained the street under Sander's fire.

Subsequent investigation disclosed that the burglar had abandoned 72 womens' coats and dresses in the automobile. The clothing had been taken from the Weiner Clothing Co., 1616 South Broadway. The automobile, a Hupmobile, had been rented from the Missouri Auto Livery, 309 North Twentieth street.

PROPHET TO MAKE HIS 1925 BOW AT COLISEUM TONIGHT

PARADE PUT OFF UNTIL TOMORROW

Postponement Announced by Radio and Other Agencies, but Many Gathered Along Route.

The Veiled Prophet will make his first appearance of 1925 when he enters the Coliseum, at some time before 10 o'clock tonight, to greet the thousands of guests at his forty-sixth annual ball, and to announce the choice of his Queen.

The Prophet will not get a view of his most enthusiastic followers, the crowds which view his parade, until tomorrow night. Yesterday afternoon's prolonged rain, which seemed likely to continue into the night, though actually it stopped about dusk, caused postponement of the parade to be announced about 6 p. m. Such postponement has happened but a very few times in the period, now approaching a half-century, in which the Prophet has kept the first week of October as his time for meeting the people of St. Louis.

Although the postponement was announced by radio from Station KSD, and by other agencies, many persons gathered along the parade route and some remained until placarded automobiles, bearing the official announcement, passed. The police had general instructions to spread the news of the postponement. A sell-out business in theaters and moving picture houses resulted.

Excursion Tickets Good Friday.

Return tickets, under Veiled Prophet excursion rates, have been extended one day and will be good on all trains leaving St. Louis Friday.

The ball, as in past years, will be a sociable occasion for the guests seated in the Coliseum boxes and balcony, and an affair of great formality and stateliness on the part of the principal participants.

The doors will be opened at 7:30, and at 8 o'clock the musical program will begin, a 60-piece orchestra having been provided. The first formality of the evening is the arrival of the matrons of honor, escorted by members of the principal committees.

Maids of Honor Next.

The maids of honor are next conducted to the platform where the Prophet has his throne. This progress of the matrons and maids is an unhurried affair, and will continue until after 9. Then will come a ballet interval, two solo dancers and an ensemble entertaining the guests until the Prophet and his court of masked men arrive.

Arrival of the Prophet will not be delayed as it was in the years, up to last year, when the parade was held on the night of the ball, and when any delay along the route added to the time that the Coliseum crowd had to tarry. The Prophet will appear tonight, as soon as a climax in the festivities is indicated.

Following the entrance of the Prophet and his train, a ceremony which takes some little time, the special maids and finally the chosen Queen will be escorted to the throne, and the Queen will be crowned, taking the place of the Queen of the past year, Miss Mary Virginia Collins.

Prophet Leads First Dance.

The first dance is reserved for the Prophet's court, with the Prophet and his Queen leading off. The later dances, lasting as long as the dancers wish to remain, are for all the guests.

Not all the guests, however, plan to stay at the Coliseum for the dancing. Reservations have been made for many fashionable parties at the St. Louis Country Club and other clubs, and at several hotels. This has been the favorite plan, for several seasons past, with those who seek the company of their own set.

The Queen's party, a large affair, will be entertained at the Country Club. The St. Louis Club, at present without a ballroom of its own, has obtained a portion of the palm room of Hotel Chase as a dancing place for its members.

Dress regulations, which are strictly enforced, require full dress for men—Tuxedos and black ties will not do—and costumes without hats for women. The gallery is reserved for those who wish to see the ball without conforming to these dress requirements, but admission to the gallery is only for those who have special gallery tickets. Military and naval officers appear in dress uniform.

The rules in force for automobile traffic provide that Washington boulevard shall be the approach to the Coliseum for cars coming from west of Grand boulevard. The Lindell-Locust route may also be used by eastbound cars, as far as Leffingwell avenue (29th street). Only a single line of cars will be permitted on Washington and Locust. PROPHET TO MAKE HIS 1925 BOW AT COLISEUM TONIGHT

PARADE PUT OFF UNTIL TOMORROW

Postponement Announced by Radio and Other Agencies, but Many Gathered Along Route.

The Veiled Prophet will make his first appearance of 1925 when he enters the Coliseum, at some time before 10 o'clock tonight, to greet the thousands of guests at his forty-sixth annual ball, and to announce the choice of his Queen.

The Prophet will not get a view of his most enthusiastic followers, the crowds which view his parade, until tomorrow night. Yesterday afternoon's prolonged rain, which seemed likely to continue into the night, though actually it stopped about dusk, caused postponement of the parade to be announced about 6 p. m. Such postponement has happened but a very few times in the period, now approaching a half-century, in which the Prophet has kept the first week of October as his time for meeting the people of St. Louis.

Although the postponement was announced by radio from Station KSD, and by other agencies, many persons gathered along the parade route and some remained until placarded automobiles, bearing the official announcement, passed. The police had general instructions to spread the news of the postponement. A sell-out business in theaters and moving picture houses resulted.

Excursion Tickets Good Friday.

Return tickets, under Veiled Prophet excursion rates, have been extended one day and will be good on all trains leaving St. Louis Friday.

The ball, as in past years, will be a sociable occasion for the guests seated in the Coliseum boxes and balcony, and an affair of great formality and stateliness on the part of the principal participants.

The doors will be opened at 7:30, and at 8 o'clock the musical program will begin, a 60-piece orchestra having been provided. The first formality of the evening is the arrival of the matrons of honor, escorted by members of the principal committees.

Maids of Honor Next.

The maids of honor are next conducted to the platform where the Prophet has his throne. This progress of the matrons and maids is an unhurried affair, and will continue until after 9. Then will come a ballet interval, two solo dancers and an ensemble entertaining the guests until the Prophet and his court of masked men arrive.

Arrival of the Prophet will not be delayed as it was in the years, up to last year, when the parade was held on the night of the ball, and when any delay along the route added to the time that the Coliseum crowd had to tarry. The Prophet will appear tonight, as soon as a climax in the festivities is indicated.

Following the entrance of the Prophet and his train, a ceremony which takes some little time, the special maids and finally the chosen Queen will be escorted to the throne, and the Queen will be crowned, taking the place of the Queen of the past year, Miss Mary Virginia Collins.

Prophet Leads First Dance.

The first dance is reserved for the Prophet's court, with the Prophet and his Queen leading off. The later dances, lasting as long as the dancers wish to remain, are for all the guests.

Not all the guests, however, plan to stay at the Coliseum for the dancing. Reservations have been made for many fashionable parties at the St. Louis Country Club and other clubs, and at several hotels. This has been the favorite plan, for several seasons past, with those who seek the company of their own set.

The Queen's party, a large affair, will be entertained at the Country Club. The St. Louis Club, at present without a ballroom of its own, has obtained a portion of the palm room of Hotel Chase as a dancing place for its members.

Dress regulations, which are strictly enforced, require full dress for men—Tuxedos and black ties will not do—and costumes without hats for women. The gallery is reserved for those who wish to see the ball without conforming to these dress requirements, but admission to the gallery is only for those who have special gallery tickets. Military and naval officers appear in dress uniform.

The rules in force for automobile traffic provide that Washington boulevard shall be the approach to the Coliseum for cars coming from west of Grand boulevard. The Lindell-Locust route may also be used by eastbound cars, as fas as Leffingwell avenue (28th street). Only a single line of cars will be permitted on Washington and Locust. From the South Side and from the North, the route will be east on Washington from Grand. From the east, the route will be west on Pine boulevard to Leffingwell, then north to Locust.

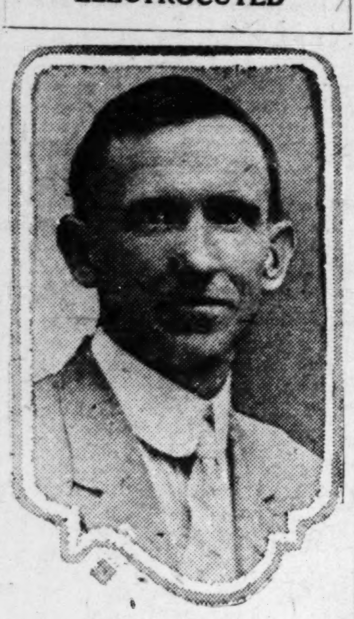
Parking Places Provided.

Parking places will be provided by traffic policemen, and guests on leaving the ball may go to their cars, or may wait to have them called, having arranged for the calling with the telephone operators who will be on duty.

"Any number given to the operators will be called at the parking place without fail," the announcement says. "The responsibility of receiving the call must be with the driver."

Drivers are urged to have their tickets in hand, to enable traffic policemen to direct them without delay. Those who take taxicabs to the Coliseum should have money ready to pay drivers without delay at the entrance.

ELECTROCUTED



GEORGE R. LEWEY.

SHOCK ON PHONE RECEIVER KILLS TRACTION WORKER

Conductor Is Electrocuted in Private Booth of Illinois Company in St. Louis Yards.

George R. Lewey, 45 years old, of 5028 Minerva avenue, a conductor of the Illinois Traction System, was electrocuted yesterday at 5:15 p. m. as he took down a receiver of a private operating line of the traction company in the yards at Twelfth and Linden streets.

The booth housing the phone was leaky, it was testified at the inquest today, and the ground in the booth damp from the heavy rain. It is presumed that in taking the receiver from the hook, Lewey's hand came in contact with the receiver hook or some other metal on the instrument, thus completing a circuit.

E. H. Rowell, claim agent for the company, said today that it had been determined that a cross-arm on a pole had become loosened and had allowed the telephone wire to sag down into contact with a wire carrying 2300 volts of electricity.

The accident caused the Bell Telephone Co to declare today that death in like manner is not possible with the instruments in universal use on its lines in St. Louis. A short gap is proveded in the instrument and, when an extraordinary electric force enters, the gap is fused and the excessive current is grounded.

Lewey is survived by a wife and three children. A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned.

WILL FIGHT FOR SON "UNTIL HAIR IS WHITE AS SNOW"

Says Mrs. E. D. Meier After Custody of Alexander Selkirk Bascom Is Awarded to His Father.

Mrs. Edward D. Meier, of San Rafael, Cal., announced today that she would appeal from the decision of Circuit Judge Wurdeman who yesterday at Clayton awarded the custody of her 6-year-old son, Alexander Selkirk Bascom, to his father, Frank H. Bascom, general manager of the Ben J. Selkirk & Sons Auction Co.

"I will fight the case until my hair is as white as snow," said Mrs. Meier, who has remarried since her divorce from Bascom. "The woman always gets the worst of it from the courts. Even my brothers turned against me in this case and it was only my love for our father and mother that prevented me from giving real testimony against them."

Mrs. Meier did not enlarge on the character of the "real" testimony. In the trial before Judge Wurdeman last week her brothers, Ben J. and Alex J. Selkirk, testified she had drank excessively on several occasions. She declared, on the other hand, that her former husband was not properly supervising the raising of their child. When Judge Wurdeman awarded the child to his father Saturday Mrs. Meier became hysterical and the Court withdrew his order but reentered it yesterday afternoon.

MILLION-DOLLAR THEATER ON GRAVOIS AVENUE PLANNED

Plans are under way for a $1,000,000 movie theater with seating capacity of 3800, at Gravois and Ellenwood avenues, to be financed by Rueben Levin of Chicago. It will be known as the Greater Gravois Theater.

Sidney Schiele of the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co., Levin's local agent, today appeared before the Aldermanic Streets and Sewers Committee and requested the city to vacate a 15-foot alley, on Ellenwood, west of Gravois, to make room for the structure. In exchange, the city would be given equal space for an alley farther west, and back of the theater site.

The theater, Schiele said, will be a luxurious one, resembling in many respects the Missouri Theater at Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue. In addition to the theater, Levin proposes to erect on the south a three-story structure for six stores and 12 apartments. Six hundred feet of land in an adjoining block also have been acquired, with a view to improvement he said.

A building permit will be applied for as soon as the alley is vacated, Schiele said. The committee told him his request will be taken up with Alderman Neu of the Thirteenth Ward, in which the alley is, and if Neu approves, the committee will recommend passage of an ordinance vacating the alley.

Plans for laying the cornerstone of the first settlement house in St. Louis, built by the Neighborhood Associations, were made yesterday at a meeting at the City Club. The ceremonies will be held at 2 p. m., Oct. 17.

URGES REGISTRATION LAW FOR ALIENS NOW IN U. S.

Chairman Johnson of House Committee Also Advocates New Deportation Measure.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 6.—Registration of aliens, a new deportation and a more easily workable naturalization act were advocated by Chairman Johnson of the House Immigration Committee, in an address last night before the League of Women Voters of Rhode Island.

Asserting that 250 Chinese merchants had arranged at one Pacific port for the arrival of their wives and 719 children, under a recent Supreme Court decision, he declared the law should define "merchant" as one who is such in his native country and intends to continue in that occupation.

One and a half million of the 7,500,000 aliens in the United States, he said, "are unable to present proof that they entered lawfully," holding that "registration is necessary for the protection of the hundreds and thousands of well meaning aliens" to "accord them their due privileges under international law."

SHIP ATTACHED FOR DEBT

Supply Houses Brought Libel Action Against Steamer Maud.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 7.—The Steamer Maud, which has returned after failure of a three-year attempt to drift across the North Pole, was attached for debts of $5000 yesterday. At the instance of Armour & Co. and other supply houses, a United States Marshal seized the Maud under a libel.

When the Maud, after being frozen in over winter north of Asia, reached Nome, Alaska, Aug. 22, she was seized for a debt of $600 to the Standard Oil Co., and was released when a bond was put up. Both libels were for supplies furnished the Maud before she set out from here June 3, 1922, on her expedition. The Armour claim was dated May 29, 1922. The Maud was part of an expedition of Capt. Roald Amundsen.

"Medical Education Cost Too High"

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 7.—Dr. William J. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., in an address to the surgical division of the clinical conference yesterday, said: "Too much time is spent in this medical education, and the cost is far beyond what it should be." He pointed out that a medical education after a high school education costs approximately $8000. The fault, he explained, was in the clinical end of the profession. Relief from this situation is to be had only from a reduced cost of a medical education and a more practical course of training, Dr. Mayo said.

'WET GOODS' IN CHINESE LAUNDRY BASEMENT SEIZED

Police Wait for Two Months Rewarded by Discovery of Beer Mash and Bottled Home Brew.

If it hadn't been a Chinese laundry perhaps Patrolman Charles Frank and his partner, Probationary Arthur Abbott, would have found someone to believe their story. But who ever heard of beer being made in a Chinese wash shop?

It was this skepticism that made Abbott and Frank play a waiting game after discovering what they believed to be beer in the basement of the clothes washing place of Lem Yong, at 3868 Park avenue.

The wait came to an end last night when Abbott and Frank triumphantly accompanied a squad of Federal agents to the basement of the laundry and assisted in the seizure of 180 gallons of beer mash, eight kegs of what appeared to be real home brew and 10 cases of the same liquid.

How Wait Began.

The wait began two months ago when Abbott and Frank, who are among the most active of St. Louis policemen in liquor raids, reported they saw whisky passed in the saloon of George W. Troxler, at 3850 Park avenue. They got a search warrant for the place but a search brought forth nothing stronger than ginger ale.

"Charlie," said Abbott, after they had left the place, "that was booze we saw there before. Where did it come from?"

"Art," replied Frank, "I'm just as curious as you are. Let's watch."

They did. It wasn't long until they observed that small packages were being carried from Lem Yong's laundry to the saloon. All this time Yong was busy at his ironing machine, but the policemen were suspicious.

One night, wehr Lem was asleep, they slipped up to his basement door and peered through a crack. In the beams of their flashlights they caw crocks, cases, bottles—lots of things that made them smile and say, "Well, here we are."

Next day they asked Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Fania for a search warrant for the laundry and Troxler's saloon. Fania refused the writs.

"Whoever heard of beer making in a Chinese laundry?" he asked, according to the policemen. "And you've already searched Troxler and found nothing."

Dillon Saw, Too.

On the advice of Capt. Chrismer, their commanding officer, the policemen went to Deputy Prohibition Administrator Dillon. He was more disposed to believe their story. They took him to the laundry one night and let him look through the crack. There he saw nothing—nothing.

But Abbott and Frank kept watching. Monday night they had another look. Apparently operations had begun again for there were the same old crocks, and plenty of bottles and cases. This time Dillon got a search warrant and the raid was made.

On some of the empty cases in the basement the agents reparted they found labels on which were penned the name "George W. Troxler, 3850 Park avenue." Yong and Chu Chor, and associate, were arrested and gave bond.

Chor would make no statement. Long made a brief speech. "Rent basement to white man," he said. "Don't know name. Don't know what do there."

Prosecuting Attorney Fania said today that he had refused a search warrant for the laundry because he deemed the evidence insufficient. He said Abbott told him he had seen bottles in the basement but could not say that he had smelled liquor, or had seen an illegal beverage sold there. "I did say, 'who ever heard of beer making in a Chinese laundry?'" Fania said, "But I was only joking."

$44,000 MEPHAM TAX BILL ARGUED BEFORE BOARD

Former Chemical Plant Owner Says Ill Health Forced Him to Sell Without Making Profit.

The sulphurous trail of the chemical plant of George S. Mepham & Co., makers of colors, whose noxious fumes forced two removals in St. Louis and a third, finally, to East St. Louis, led yesterday into the Federal building, where it was aired in an all-day hearing on an appeal from the $44,000 income tax assessed against the former owner for alleged profits in its sale.

Had it not been for the noxious fumes, which Mepham, the former owner, testified, in his appeal before three members of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, killed off nearby vegetation and life, ruined washings on clothes lines, and caused other unpleasantness, the Government might never have disputed his claim of making no profit in selling the business in 1919 for $300,000.

But, having purchased patents and processes, which finally eliminated the objectionable fumes, Mepham then charged off the cost on his books, and failed to itemize this item of plant value when he sold the plant. To the scrutiny of the Internal Revenue examiners, however, it appeared this item of $18,000 and depreciation charges of the several years preceding the sale combined to give him a profit of $70,000. And the large surtax was so ordered.

An English Process.

Mepham related that after the several forced removals of the plant, together with costly experimentation in endeavoring to rid the plant of the objectionable fumes, he learned of a process in England, which appeared to have solved the problem. He visited the English plants, he said, purchased the American patents and installed the processes. It was a one-man business, he testified, and when the patents expired, he thought nothing of having them renewed. He had the processes anyway, a monopoly in America.

Then, in 1919, his health failed. "I had fainting spells," he testified. "I fainted at the plant, and I fainted at home. Once my heart actually stopped. I decided to sell. For years I had an offer from my only competitor in America. C. K. Williams of Easton, Pa., to buy me out. So I sent for him.

"We had the deal ready to close in a few days. We took the book valuation as a basis. Williams didn't want some of the realty, so to make up the agreed price of $300,000, I added some $13,000 in cash to the assets. Then Williams gave me half, or $150,000 in cash, and the balance in notes over a period of eight years, with the stock of the new corporation as security."

Question of Stock.

It was in the nature of this stock transfer that the Government also had based its claim that a profit had been made, contending that if a straight no-profit sale of a one-man business had been made there would have been no reason for a reissuance of stock. This, Mepham explained, was done at the suggestion of his lawyer, who advised the reissuance so that in the possible event of Williams' death, the seller would not have to go through probate to collect on his notes.

This also contributed to the intangible element of good-will, which Mepham's attorney in the appeal, George H. Moore, former St. Louis Collector of Internal Revenue, brought out. Under his questioning, Mepham related that Williams specified the name of George S. Mepham & Co. should be retained. Mepham repeated that he had made the sale on a no-profit basis, solely because of his ill health and satisfaction that Williams could carry on the business.

Williams, himself, in support of the taxpayer's claim, testified he got the business at a bargain. He said he had been authorized for years by his board of directors to pay $20,000 for the secret process of doing away with the noxious fumes, and that the property was worth many thousands more than he paid for it.

The appeal, one of 44 docketed for the board's sessions here, which will conclude Oct. 23, will be certified to the entire board of 16 members at Washington for final decision. If the appeal is sustained, Attorney Moore told the board, Mepham will pay a tax of only a few hundred dollars.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The $7,000,000 Fifth avenue palace of the late Senator William A. Clark of Butte, Mont., with 121 rooms and 31 baths, is going begging at $2,000,000. Real estate brokers regard the land on which it stands as more valuable than the building and say the house depreciates the site because of the cost of razing it.

The offer of the mansion for sale marks another step in the speedy passing of the famous avenue as the home of fashion and wealth and its development for retail trade and apartment houses. The white marble mansion of Vincent Astor and the chateau of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt both have been sold recently.

Mrs. Clark does not care for her mansion, because she prefers to live in Santa Barbara, Cal. Twenty-five years ago, when it was built, the city's corporation counsel in a tax dispute said neither King nor Emperor could disdain it, so great was its splendor. Some buyers now estimate its value at $1,600,000.

The palace which nobody wants stands at Fifth avenue and Seventy-seventh street, facing Central Park. The site is valuable for apartment house development. The copper king built it to outdo the mansion which Charles M. Schwab had erected on Riverside drive, overlooking the Hudson.

The Senator did not want to be fleeced by contractors, so he bought a stone quarry and cut his own stone. He bought a woodworking and plaster plant. Parts of the interior were gathered from all over the world. He put in a marble swimming pool, a system of Turkish baths, a private electric lighting plant and stuck an astronomical observatory in the tower. The woodwork was inlaid with gold leaf.

CHARGES COUNTY IS TRYING TO HOLD UP CITY

Director Wall Discussed Demand as to Resurfacing Clayton Road.

The county is trying to "hold up" the city on the reconstruction of Clayton road, between Pennsylvania avenue and the Terminal tracks in St. Louis County, Director of Public Utilities Wall declared today.

The stretch of the road was torn up by workmen who laid the five-foot water main connecting St. Louis with the new waterworks on the Missouri River. The County Court is contemplating some action to force the city to rebuild the road.

"It's nothing more than a hold-up," Director Wall said. "We've already given the county $25,000 and we're willing to pay $12,000 more. The County Court is going us one better. It wants to keep the $25,000 as some sort of a condemnation fee and force us to build a better surface on Clayton road than the road ever had before.

Agreement With Engineer.

"When I talked to Highway Engineer Jablonsky in July, 1924, about laying pipe on Clayton road, he said the stretch between the Terminal tracks and Pennsylvania could be put down for $30,000. I told him that if the county would delay rebuilding the road until we had the pipe laid, we would pay half the cost, or $15,000.

"Later the County Court said it would cost $50,000 to rebuild the road and we agreed to pay $25,000. An agreement was drawn up in which the $25,000 appeared as a sort of fee to the county but we signed it because we were anxious to get the work under way.

Water Commissioner Pritchard declared that Jablonsky had told him last August that the road could be repaired and put in its former shape for $8000 to $10,000. But later, according to Pritchard, the County Court announced it wanted to rebuild the road with a Telford base and a waterbound macadam top. The city's share of this work, it was said, would be $16,800.

Still Wants $16,800.

"We refused to pay that," Commissioner Pritchard said. "After a conference with Comptroller Nolte we agreed to pay $12,000. That, plus the $25,000, would enable the county to put in a concrete stretch of road there. The county turned down the offer, however, and still wants $16,800.

"Public utilities are allowed the use of the streets without charge if they put them back in their original shape. It is obviously unfair to charge the city $25,000 for the right-of-way for a public improvement and then try to hold it up once again, as the County Court is now trying to do."

In statistics recently compiled by the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, it is shown that the St. Louis district has been the second most successful area in the country in enforcing the National Motor Vehicle Theft Act, which was drawn up by Congressman L. C. Dyer in 1919. Only the Seattle district has recorded a greater number of prosecutions under the act, and a greater number of stolen cars recovered as a result of prosecution.

Out of 15,434 reports on enforcement of the act submitted to the bureau from all parts of the country, 1083 convictions were obtained, an increase of 450 over the 1924 recorded. There were 2046 arrests made, as against 1923 for the previous year. The fines imposed under the statute amounted to $58,233.58, an increase in revenue of $2,028.58 over 1924 impositions.

Since October, 1919, when the bill went into effect, 502 stolen cars have been recovered in St. Louis under the act, which represents a total value of $322,475. In 1925 alone 173 cars were recovered compared with an average of 83 for each of the five preceding years.

The five districts with the largest number of recovered cars for 1925 are: Seattle, 975; St. Louis, 593; Denver, 450; Oklahoma City, 487; Kansas City, 436.

Miniature Kiln From Pickard Studios

Shows Interesting Process of China Decoration

A MINIATURE kiln is installed in our China Shop, and the whole process will be demonstrated and explained. The design is first applied in wax, then the china is etched in acids leaving the protected surfaces embossed. The first layer of 24-karat gold is then applied, and the piece fused and polished. Several layers of gold must be applied and each time it must be fused in the kiln at a temperature of 1500 degrees Fahrenheit.

This involved process requires the utmost care at every stage, and it is by the high technique developed, as well as on account of the original and beautiful designs, that Pickard China has won its national reputation for durability and excellence.

Daily Demonstration at 3:00 P. M.

FORMER MODEL SEEKS DAMAGES

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The French wife of a former interpreter for the American army, Karl Wilson, was recognized in the recent number of "Paris Plaisirs." Three photographs of herself in an academic pose, clothed in little more than her natural beauty were shown.

The explanation is that she was an artist's model before her marriage and posed for sculptors and photographers and a number of the old studies found their way into the offices of the paper. Mrs. Wilson, however, has begun suit against Paris Plaisirs and asked a court order impounding the annoying copies. The editor having promised not to repeat the publication, the Judge refused her request but sent the case to the courts to assess damages.

TALK OF REPRIMAND FOR COL. MITCHELL

Attorney Hears War Department May Drop Plan to Courtmartial Air Officer.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Col. William Mitchell of the army air service, may not face a court martial for his utterances regarding the conduct of the aviation service, it was learned today.

Representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois, civilian counsel for Mitchell, said he had been informed unofficially that the War Department was considering dropping the idea of bringing the air service officer before an army court. Instead of this, said Reid, it was contemplated that Mitchell should receive a letter of reprimand.

Precedent, it was said, existed for this, even in cases where the officer had not been found guilty by a court and sentenced to be reprimanded. While Mitchell has not said anything regarding such a turn in events, it was considered almost certain he would resist it and demand either a court of inquiry or a courtmartial.

His counsel have not abated preparations for his defense. Representative Reid has asked the American Legion convention at Omaha to aid with lawyers, witness and documentary evidence. This appeal also was sent to the District of Columbia Legionanires and to these in Texas.

Volunteer Firemen and Ring Gone.

Two strangers as volunteers assisted Mrs. Rose Niemann of 3507 Easton avenue in saving her belongings during a fire in her home Monday night. After the excitement they disappeared. Yesterday Mrs. Niemann told the police that when she checked up she found a rosary with a gold cross, a topaz ring, a pair of gold spectacles and a purse containing 38 cents were missing.

HEARING ON 10-CENT FARE IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Street Car Company Asserts It Still Will Face Deficit if Granted Increase.

Even if the East St. Louis and Suburban Railway is granted the increase in fare for which it has applied, it still will have an annual deficit of $16,000 below the figure that is considered a fair return by the Illinois Commerce Commission, according to the statements by officials of the company at a hearing held yesterday at East St. Louis before James R. Clark, assistant commissioner of the commerce commission.

The increase asked for is a 10 cents over an eight cent cash cents ove ran eight cent cash fare or two tokens for 15 cents, the present fare. Application for increased fare was made in July asking that the new application be consolidated with a previous application for a nincrease before any hearing was held on the first. The evidence was taken under advisement by the commission.

City Handicapped in Case.

Attorneys for civic organizations and for East St. Louis, who opposed the increase were unable to disprove the evidence of the railway company or to offer any damaging evidence against the requested increase. "We are handicapped," said City Counselor Gustin, "in that the records of the railway company are not available to us." An auditor employed by the factions opposing the increase, testified he found the books of the traction company accurate and substantiating the statistical evidence submitted.

W. H. Sawyer, president of the East St. Louis and Suburban Railway Co., said that the company faced an accumulated deficit of $126,000 in the last four years. He attributed the loss of business to the use of the privately-owned automobile. The actual operating revenue for the year ending August last was given as $1,086,980. It was estimated that the increased fare if granted would yield a return of $72,856 annually, yielding a total problematical operating revenue of $1,159,837.

Based on the statistics of the past four-year period, the amount available for returns plus the nonoperating income less the depreciation was placed at $320,000. With this was contrasted the figure of $336,000, which was given as the amount required necessary to produce a fair return on the base valuation. The difference is a $16,000 deficit annually including the proposed increase.

Suburban Fares Not Affected.

Evidence offered by attorneys opposing the increase tended to show that if the railway company, which is affiliated with suburban lines, would collect the fare on passengers riding the suburban lines within the city limits, instead of charging the latter 26 cents a car mile as is the case, a total of $75,000 would be collected annually, more than enough to make up the deficit.

The railway company claimed that the decrease in passengers has been 2,500,000 in the past four years. The increase asked for does not affect suburban rates.

Paroles for 27 U. S. Prisoners.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The Federal Board of Paroles, completing its annual series of fall meetings at the three important Federal prisons, has recommended paroles for 27 prisoners, now held in McNeill Island penitentiary. In addition to giving favorable consideration to the 27 cases, Attorney-General Sargent announced today the board rejected 50 applications while 25 prisoners eligible to make application for parole took no action in that direction. Action on approximately 120 cases was postponed until the next board session.

Stout Women

This advertisement will tell you all about Lane Bryant's new footwear . . . . . . ADAPTO SHOES . . . . designed especially to meet your requirements . . . read every word!

To be comfortably and smartly shod, the stout woman requires a shoe that is a combination of two different sizes! As a woman's weight increases, the ball or forepart of the foot expands to better balance and carry the added body-weight. The heel, however, does not assume any appreciable amount of this increased burden and exercise. Hence it does not increase in size in proportion to the rest of the foot.

An ordinary shoe, therefore, that fits the forepart of the foot snugly is loose and uncomfortable at the heel! It fails to support the end of the arch and painful muscle-strain is the result. The average large woman requires a shoe from two to three sizes smaller at the heel than at the ball.

The Big Feature of ADAPTO SHOES

ADAPTO Shoes, in addition to certain patented orthopedic features that tend toward foot-freedom and comfort are built upon a "combination last." This means that if you are snugly fitted at the forepart of your foot the heel fitting will automatically be of a sufficiently smaller size to grip your heel comfortably and restfully with no "left over" space in which your heel can slop about. Thus you get a true fit from toe to heel with constant support to the arch muscles.

How ADAPTO Styles are evolved

But perfect fit and comfort are not all that ADAPTO Shoes have to offer you. Being made along logical, sensible, healthful lines with no "trick" inside appliances to rob your feet of their natural exercise, it is not necessary for ADAPTO Shoes to present the frumpy appearance of so-called "orthopedic shoes."

Why shouldn't the feet of a large woman be as smartly shod as those of her more slender sister?

Before any new ADAPTO models are offered to you, dozens, and often, hundreds, of style sketches are submitted by shoe-fashion artists to Lane Bryant's style experts. They select the most graceful models and then adapt these styles to the scientific last over which ADAPTO Shoes are made. Great care is taken in the case, for instance, of strap pumps that the straps be placed just where the greatest support will be accorded to the instep.

No detail is considered too trivial in the evolution of an ADAPTO model that shall combine a maximum of the better style element with a maximum of foot comfort. And always, of course, the "combination last."

So it is that ADAPTO Shoes are not committed to any set style. You may get ADAPTOS in pumps, oxfords, boots and slippers, and, always, in the most charming of the current modes and in all sizes up to 11, widths AAA to EEE.

An Idea that Has Grown into a Service

When Lane Bryant first introduced ADAPTO Shoes in New York it was found that the feet of many stout women had been so abused in an effort to achieve a smartly-shod appearance that they were not in proper condition to gain the full benefit of ADAPTO fit and comfort.

Accordingly Dr. Byron Schindler, Podiatrist, was called in and he has organized a Foot Service Department with a staff of scientifically trained Podiatrists, that is the only one of its kind in the country. This department is maintained for the professional treatment (at nominal charges), of all manner of foot ailments. Thus, if you suffer with foot trouble you may first have your feet put into healthy, normal condition and then have them fitted to ADAPTO Shoes to maintain that glorious freedom and comfort. The services of this department, under the constant personal supervision of Dr. Schindler, are now extended to the women of St. Louis.

Consultations are free—and, upon request, you may obtain the professional supervision of your shoe-fittings, free of charge.

The models illustrated are but two of a host of seasonal, modish ADAPTO Styles. Stop in and see, for yourself, the range of selection possible.

U. S. GIRL'S FIANCE 'CUTS IN' ON WALES

Invited by Prince to Dance, She Insists Betrothed Also Must Come.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Sept. 14.—The American colony here believes it has a joke on the British colony and also upon select Uruguayan society because the Prince of Wales preferred an American girl as a dancing partner during the social festivities in his honor when he visited the Uruguayan capital.

They think also there is a joke somewhere on the Prince, too, for when the Prince especially invited her to the dance, the American girl would not go unless her fiance was also invited. He was and went, watched the Prince dance with her three times in succession, and "cut in" when his highness begged for a fourth.

Father Invited.

The Prince saw her—Miss Veronica Purviance of Kansas City, daughter of Charles Purviance, manager of the Armour packing plant here—at a luncheon given to his highness by the British colony. Purviance had been invited, with his family, as president of the American Association of Montevideo.

The next day Miss Purviance received a card from the British Minister saying that at his royal highness' request she was invited to attend a reception and dance the Prince was giving.

"Fed Up" on Duty.

She answered that, as she was engaged, the invitation would have to include her fiance, with the result that a card also went to Leonard Welch of the Buenos Aires branch of the National City Bank, who hurriedly took the next boat to Montevideo.

No other Americans and no English were invited to the dance, which was to repay the attentions of the Uruguayans. The Uruguayan senoritas of the best families were out in force. The three dances the Prince danced with Miss Purviance were the first three, and it was said that when she reminded the Prince that he had a duty to perform and should dance with the others, he replied: "I'm fed up with duty dances." It was here that her fiance claimed her.

"BOOTLEG" GASOLINE SOLD

Oil Company Plans to Halt Sales of Inferior Grades.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Tidewater Oil Sales Corporation yesterday announced that hereafter all of its pumps and filling stations will be sealed to prevent the sale of "bootleg" gasoline. F. H. Dickson, vice president, said an investigation revealed that more than 6000 gallons of substitutes had been sold through the company's pumps at the price charged for good gasoline.

He also said that the pumps had been removed from more than 600 filling stations in this city, following an investigation of dealers. Dickson stated that approximately 50,000,000 gallons of gasoline, or one-fourth of the amount used in the past year, was not of the brand and quality indicated. Officials of other large concerns, including the Standard Oil Co. and the Gulf Refining Co., corroborated this statement and told of plans to circumvent the practice.

E. M'D. STEVENS DENIES LINK WITH CABELL FIRM

Says His Office Was Not Used for Drawing Up Oil Contract So Far as He Knows.

E. McD. Stevens, Clayton attorney, today denied he had any connection with the Cabell Petroleum Co., which obtained a $53,800 road oil contract from the St. Louis County Court last spring, when the company's president played host to two members of the court at penuchle-and-dinner parties.

"Were you not present in the office of E. McD. Stevens when a written contract was drawn up concerning the oil contract?" was one of the questions put to a witness last week in a suit by a taxpayer to enjoin performance of the road oil contract. The witness, Roy Essen, said he knew nothing about the former contract.

Stevens represented the Carter-Waters Co., which bid $3000 less for the road oil contract, but did not get it. If anyone used his office, as inferred in the question to Essen, they did it in his absence and without his knowledge, Stevens said.

GRACEFUL EXIT FOR WEEDED DRY AGENTS

Breuer Tells Force Those Not Informed of Reappointment by Oct. 15 Will Be Dropped.

Enforcement agents working under Prohibition Administrator Breuer in Missouri, Kansas and Southern Illinois today received letters from him, advising them that unless they received notice of reappointment prior to Oct. 15, their connection with the service would terminate on that date.

It is a part of the plan of Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, for reorganising the prohibition department. It affects about 68 field agents in this district and will enable the administration to gracefully weed out those he does not desire to reappoint. Civil service employes are not affected.

Breuer said today that he would shortly appoint not more than 50 agents, leaving the 18 remaining positions open to be filled between now and Jan. 1, 1926, when he hopes to have his force fully organized.

Beuer has taken no action of the appointment of a chief deputy administrator in charge of enforcement, a general counsel or a supervisor of the permit section. It is likely that former Judge H. P. Loveland will receive this latter appointment.

An outstanding feature of Veiled Prophet Week was the Veiled Prophet Handicap at the Fair Grounds Race Track.

What today is an attractive park in the North End was, twenty years ago, the mecca for a pleasure-loving multitude. There were races at the track, exhibitions and fairs on the grounds and a variety of amusements at the Zoological Garden, adjoining.

Now, the new Fairmount Race Course revives the Veiled Prophet Handicap after twenty years! These years have seen the small Kline store of those days become one of St. Louis' great mercantile establishments.

NEW YORK BANKS BUY GOLD IN LONDON

Export of $4,000,000 to This Country Largest Since Britain Returned to Gold Standard.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The first favorable export of gold from London to New York since Great Britain's return to the gold standard last spring is under way.

Engagements for approximately $4,000,000 of British gold were announced yesterday by three New York banks, which found it profitable to buy the metal through their London correspondents in exchange transactions. Most of the gold, it is expected, will be shipped on the Homeric, which sails from Southampton today.

Additional shipments will depend on fluctuations of sterling exchange, which recently has been quoted below the gold export point. Following the announcement that between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000 had been withdrawn from the Bank of England for export to the United States and the continent sterling quickly strengthened and local bankers expressed doubt that a profitable margin could be long maintained.

Although a few small shipments from England, aggregating about $1,000,000 seeped into the United States last May, the consignments announced yesterday are the largest since July, 1924, when New York received $13,000,000 in gold from London. Most of the precious metal brought from England since the war has been in the form of trans-shipments of gold direct from the South African mines.

Approximately $2,000,000 of the gold now on its way will go to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Co., and about $1,000,000 each to the Seaboard National Bank and the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Co.

Bankers expressed the opinion that New York would be able to absorb considerable gold without any effect on its credit position, but held the effect in Great Britain would be a slight stiffening of money rates. If the export movement becomes dangerously large, it is expected that the American credits of $300,000,000 will be brought into play to protect sterling.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE RULE CHANGES UP TO COMMITTEE

Directors Vote to Submit Plan Similar to New Chicago Board System to Rules Body.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Merchants' Exchange held yesterday afternoon it was voted that certain proposed changes in the rules of the organization should be submitted immediately to the rules committee.

The proposals, which provide for a check on wide price swings, creation of a business conduct supervisory board, and for outside members to vote by mail, are very similar to those adopted by the Chicago Board of Trade last month. It is expected that the rules committee will have the new proposals drafted in proper form to submit to the members of the exchange for a general election by Oct. 20.

ISSUE OF BELGIAN NEUTRALITY UP AT SECURITY MEETING

GERMAN TREATY WITH RUSSIA STANDS

Stresemann Says He Will Enter Pact That Lines Up Germany Against Soviet.

LOCARNO, Oct. 7.—The old Belgian neutrality convention which the Germans violated at the beginning of the war and was declared dead by the Treaty of Versailles, is before the Locarno conference in another form.

The question has arisen whether to revive the convention of 1839, guaranteeing Belgium's neutrality and to make a German-Belgian pact a part of the German-French one.

The question arose in the jurists' conference and the need to go farther into the political aspects of the matter led to private conversations between the powers.

Sciajola, of Italy, gave the Germans unexpected support when the question of Belgian neutrality was raised in the plenary session yesterday.

"What effect upon the Rhine pact will be the Franco-Belgian military convention have?" Stresemann asked.

Sciajola surprised the other allies by replying: "Yes, we ought to know that."

This is considered to indicate that the Italians are remaining somewhat aloof and ready to side with Germany on occasion if their interests are served by doing so.

How Question Arose.

Of course the subject of Belgian neutrality did not come up directly—cynical comments about repiecing torn scraps of paper were too certain. It came about over a question of a Franco-Belgian military alliance. The German jurist, Dr. Heinrich Gauss, wished to know the judicial status of a Franco-Belgian military convention in respect to the Rhine pact. Dr. Gauss pointed out that the question was of special importance, due to France's alliance with Poland and Czecho-Slovakia because there were no similar pacts between Belgium and those countries.

The French and Belgian jurists said that the military alliance is purely defensive, but the correspondent understands the Belgians have made a move which would indicate their willingness to have the old pact renewed by asking that the pacts between Belgium and France and Belgium and Germany be separate, although parallel. This would leave open the possibility of all powers guaranteeing the Belgian-German pact just as they did in 1839. Vandervelde of Belgium would like to have his nation disarm completely, it is known, so this would fall in with his ideas, but he must go slow and get French adherence on account of the existing treaty.

Vandervelde held a long conversation with Berthelot of the French delegation, presumably on this subject, and French Foreign Minister Briand talked with Dr. Luther, German Chancellor, in private.

Germany's Eastern Policy.

While this was going on Stresemann was busy preventing Germany from getting into difficulties with Russia. He made a statement for Moscow on Germany's position at the conference declaring:

First, that Germany will enter into no engagement at Locarno that can in any way interfere with the treaty of Rappalo or oblige Germany to enter any combination of powers against Russia.

Second, that Germany in agreeing that arbitration treaties between Germany and Poland and Germany and Czecho-Slovakia be discussed between Germany and the four Western powers, will not agree to France's guaranteeing these treaties in the manner of Great Britain and Italy guaranteeing the Rhine agreements. In other words, she will not submit to France having the right to fall on Germany from the Rhine in the event of disputes in Eastern Europe.

Germany's statement can only be taken to mean that Germany refuses to allow French interference in Eastern Europe, except under the right which the Council of the League of Nations may decide. France has under treaties with Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. It is conceded that France would have such a right if it were decided that Germany were an aggressor.

War=Time Letters of Ambassador Page

THIS is the fourth installment of a series of unpublished letters written by Walter Hines Page, wartime Ambassador to Great Britain, to President Wilson. The letters are edited by Burton J. Hendrick, who consulted various leaders, political and diplomatic, with whom Ambassador Page came into contact, in his preparation of them.

EDITED BY BURTON J. HENDRICK.
(Copyright, 1925.)

(Continuing the letter of January 12, 1915, from Mr. Page to President Woodrow Wilson.)

A stone would weep to hear what Hoover has seen in Belgium—pitiful beyond all telling. Refugees are still coming here in considerable numbers, and the English take them into their homes. My daughter goes every day to help at one of the receiving and distributing places, where poor women come in demented from terror; they do not know their own names. When she speaks to them in their own language, (French) they begin—some of them—to come to their senses; some never do. The pathos of all this—the sin and misery of it—God! life has nothing left for about half the people on the Continent. It would be a mercy to be shot. You weep at every corner of whatever road you travel until you can weep no more.

There was a meeting in Brussels a little while ago of prominent men. The patriarch of the meeting was a cultivated and (formerly) rich old gentleman now past 80, a fine old character who, I am told, is known and respected all over Europe. He got it into his head somehow that I had done far more for the Commission than I have done or could do; and he wrote me a letter, which he took to Whitlock and asked him to send it to me.

I can quote it because you know I don't deserve it; but I have not many times in my life been so touched. He concluded his courteous French letter, in all sincerity, thus: "I offer my homage and kiss your hand in profound gratitude—with the sublimest admiration for your generous great country. Adieu. We shall all soon pass. But God does not forget."

A Gigantic Collapse.

One reflection that saves us from collapse is—the world is as infinitely as it is unspeakably cruel.

Collapse—that's what we are witnessing, a gigantic collapse, not a mere war—something far more than that; and individual kindness and unspeakable pathos run through it all.

Since the allies have not even considered the possibility of an early peace, and since the English preparation for the war is only fairly begun, not only (so it seems to the best-informed men here whom I see) is all peace talk received with a smile or (more likely) with resentment, but all indications point to a very much more severe and determined phase of the war. The feeling is that it is just beginning. There will be very much more suffering; there will be very much more stringent regulations of every sort; there is likely to be—so there are private strong intimations—a complete cable blockade of the Continent—except the territory of the allies.

England owns all the cables. She can use them or throw them out of use, as war measures, as we did in our war with Spain. This Government is sincerely and carefully friendly to us—and most sincere—but it isn't going to consider our convenience, when no clear rights are involved, in any action that it thinks necessary for victory. Victory will be won by long and hard economic pressure and by supplying unlimited men from all parts of the Empire. It is the last 100,000 men and the last 100,000 that will win. Hence the struggle is already passed out of the sentimental stage. Public opinion in England—well-informed men in private life—do not care a fig what people in the United States or anybody else think. They think only of winning the war. Their fortunes and their sons go—to this end—everything goes, including the friendship of the United States, if that must be; they have passed the mood where they particularly care for anything. Their own business, their own wealth, their own sons are all going. They are in no mood to consider too carefully anybody else's business or wealth. This mood doesn't seem to me to get into the papers. I sometimes wonder if it be understood in the United States.

No Personal Hatred.

In all this there is no personal hatred or ferocity. It is simply a desperate fight for English independence. And I see no reason to think that they will call on any neutral in the interests of peace at any time. The belligerents will settle it themselves nobody knows when, but not till Belgium is restored and Constantinople is taken.

And the area as well as the earnestness of the war will increase. Rumania and Italy will almost surely come in. No end, therefore, is visible, as the thoughtful men know that the totally unexpected may happen. All our conclusions and conjectures are at best guesses. A guess here may be right or wrong. So with a guess made at Washington.

Picture to yourself, if you can the state of feeling in Washington and (I will say) in Boston during our Civil War, after the Battle of Gettysburg. What did people there care for feeling in England, provided only that the English Government did not go against them? The growing feeling here is somewhat like that to us—of entire good will but of increasing indifference among the public. The English public, while respectful and friendly, cares less for us now than at any time during recent years—this by a process of exclusion, since their own big problem wholly fills their minds. The Government here is frank and friendly as ever and most eager to cause us as little trouble as possible. They have not changed at all—except as I will presently explain. They are eager to keep our good will for its own sake and now also for a new reason: they do not want the Germans to have the satisfaction of seeing any difference between England and the United States. The English Government gill go the full length for both these reasons.

Notes a Difference.

But there is one difference I could not help seeing if I were blind, which (it has for some time seemed to me) I ought to tell you about. They make a distinction in the Foreign Office—they never SAY this, and perhaps they show it all unconsciously—between communications that come from the department and communications that the newspapers say come with your approval. The department's insistence on the acceptance in toto of the Declaration of London, and the several mares' nests that the department has found, and the sometimes "shirt-sleeve" tone of their communications causes them to take them rather pro forma.

I fear the Government suspects that the department suspects it. The dispatch that I received some time ago to make, in conjunction with the Consul-General, a thorough investigation of the licenses that have been granted to export copper and other things that has been kept locked up in my private box. But it implied carelessness of the Government in permitting English merchants to take advantage of us, if not complicity with them. Our investigations have shown neither. I do not know that this Government got any hint of our investigations, but their spy system—"intelligence bureau" they call it—discovers absolutely everything; and they may know that somebody in the State Department (I do not know who it is) seems to suspect the good faith of the British Government.

This fear of mine—it is only a fear—is increased by this fact: The department has had some correspondence or conversations with the British Ambassador in Washington which do not seem to have gone well. I know nothing about it, for I am seldom informed by the department what it does in Washington. But I have heard numerous references to some note preceding the recent one—if there was such a note; as I say, I am always in the dark about what goes in Washington. Lord Haldane remarked one day during his temporary occupancy of the Foreign Office that on the whole it seemed more satisfactory to deal with such questions when the mind and the hand of the President were visible.

Agreement on Rubber.

And they have ceased to tell me here what Spring Rice telegraphs. For instance, although it is distinctly said in Sir Edward Grey's note and in the newspapers that we have come to an agreement about exporting raw rubber from England and her colonies—a subject that I had much to do with—I have no idea what the agreement is; and for four or five days I have had to tell rubber exporters and importers who have called here that I know nothing about it. If I ask the Foreign Office what the agreement is, that makes a bad matter worse; it betrays the situation.

Understand—I am not complaining: that does no good and is not my nature. I mean only that the Foreign Office makes, consciously or unconsciously, all the difference in the world between a communication or a complaint that comes from the department and one that is understood to have your approval; and they listen less and less to what the department says. As for its silence to me about what it does with the British Ambassador at Washington, don't trouble about that: it is beyond remedy and I have ceased to worry about it, dangerous as it is to be. I know, of course, that there is no slight meant to me; it's their way. But, as soon as this war job is passed and conditions come when I can be relieved, I shall be glad to escape the constant danger of this situation and the continual leaking of confidential information, the sending of which is necessarily reduced to a minimum by this constant danger. With the most active "intelligence" system and the most rigid suppression of information here and with the grave danger of leaking in the department—well, I watch Scylla on this side and keep my rudder as true as I can—understanding, too, perfectly clearly, as I think I do, the entire good will and sincere friendliness on both sides. It is not a thing to have any emotions about—only unavoidable dangers ever to keep in mind.

Heavens! how long a letter. Forgive both its length and its matter. It is written out of affectionate loyalty to you and from this volcanic outburst of all fundamental emotions. I thank Heavens, I keep well under it all. Very heartily yours,

WALTER H. PAGE.

$38,867,000 PAID AS U. S. INCOME TAX IN MISSOURI

Federal Levy for 1923 on Corporations Totaled $25,782,000 and on Individuals $13,085,000.

MORE THAN HALF OF RETURNS FROM CITY

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Income statistics published today by the Bureau of Internal Revenue show that Missouri corporations and individuals paid $38,867,690 in Federal income taxes for the calendar year 1923. The tax on corporations was $25,782,472 and on individuals was $13,085,218. Individuals were assessed on a net income of $605,275,520 and corporations on $227,323,356, a total taxable net income of $832,598,876.

This taxable income was 2.51 per cent of the total for the nation. The tax collected was 2.43 per cent of the total collections.

Detailed figures relating to personal income taxes for Missouri and the nation were issued by the bureau last June. These figures, repeated in final form in the current report, give the total number of personal returns in Missouri as 192,282, of which 176,035 were on incomes under $5000; 10,475 on incomes from $5000 to $10,000 and 5772 on incomes over $10,000. More than half the returns, or 98,920, were from the city of St. Louis, while St. Louis County was credited with 10,274.

9018 Corporations Reported.

Missouri had one taxpayer in the income class from $750,000 to $1,000,000, two in class from $500,000 to $750,000; one in the class from $400,000 to $500,000; two in the class from $300,000 to $400,000; three in the class from $200,000 to $250,000, and 11 in the class from $150,000 to $200,000.

Detailed corporation statistics, not hitherto published, classify 9,018 Missouri corporations as having reported net income for 1923, as against 5,544 that reported no net income. The gross corporation income was $3,147,538,670. Deductions of $2,290,215,314 were allowed, leaving a net taxable income of $227,323,356. The tax paid, as already noted, was $25,782,472. In point of net income, trading corporations, with a total of $50,667,136, outranked the other classes. Second in this respect were transportation and other public utilities, which paid taxes on $31,667,113, and third were corporations devoted to the manufacture of food products, beverages and tobacco, which had a net income of $23,020,762.

Other Industries in Group 7.

Corporations in the last named group stood at the top of the manufacturing list. Among the other groups listed under manufacturers were: Textiles, with a net income of $3,749,618; leather, $14,935,216; lumber, $18,852,990; printing and publishing, $3,991,568; chemicals, $8,872,388; stone, clay and glass products, $6,320,609; metal and metal products, $20,663,612.

Among the non-manufacturing corporations, in addition to the groups already named, were: Construction, $3,142,864; public service (professional, amusements, hotels, etc.), $4,986,889; finance (banking, insurance, etc.), $22,283,994.

The 5544 corporations that showed no net income had a deficit for the year of $51,267,986.

Under the Federal estate tax, there were 322 returns in Missouri for 1923, representing an aggregate gross estate of $52,658,869. The number of estates found subject to the tax was 252. They had a gross value of $47,877,161, of which $26,288,263 was taxable. The tax paid amounted to $780,681.

FORD PREDICTS TWO-DAY AIR TRIP TO EUROPE

THINKS AIRPLANE WILL DESTROY WAR

Eight-Cylinder, 200-Horsepower Engine for Planes Completed in Laboratories at Dearborn.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 7.—Henry Ford has announced that an engine for use in light airplanes for general transportation virtually has been completed in his experimental laboratories at Dearborn. He said the engine was an eight-cylinder, 200 horsepower motor.

For this engine, the manufacturer claimed all the economies of the small automobile engine. He said the motor would not require adjustment and parts would be interchangeable so that a wornout part could be easily replaced. The motor will be tested soon.

In the new motor a short, rigid crankshaft is enclosed in a barrel case and around this case are four banks of two cylinders each, set at right angles to each other. Each complete set of four cylinders operates on one arm of the crankshaft. Timing gears are all accessible when the wheel gear box is removed from the engine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Oct. 7.—Henry Ford sees the day when the airplane will equal the automobile in popularity and predicts that great airships—a combination of semi-rigid dirigible and airplane—will make the trip to Europe in one or two days.

"They tell me I'm quoted as saying that the recent reliability tour proves the airplane reliable," he remarked. "Maybe I said that, but I doubt that the tour alone would prove such a thing. I'm a greenhorn at this aviation business, but I can see that it is going to be a great industry.

"It's bigger in possibilities than anything else in the world; too big to be a one-man patent affair; too big to be any man's contribution to the sciences.

Patents as Hindrances.

"Patents are silly things when they are used to hinder any industry. No man has a right to perfect a patent for profit only. That produces parasites: men who are willing to lie back on their oars and do nothing. If any reward is due a man whose brain has produced something new and good he should get it from profits from the manufacture and sale of the thing.

"We take patents out on developments and discoveries only to prevent others from freezing us out when they may have a chance to make the same discoveries. We use patents to prevent a shut-out game. We believe in the gospel of use.

"Besides a patent is very seldom wonderful. There is nothing new under the sun. We thought we had something fine when we invented the little gear just under the stearing gear to make the steering of our cars easier. Then we found that a piano tuner had found the same principal in 1826 and used it to tune pianos—identically the same gear arrangement."

Ford said he had no idea of making an airplane motor to sell separately, and he fully expects, he declared, to use all such motors that he manufactures.

The Ford of the air will be first a motor. The kind of a motor which is being developed at Dearborn will be the kind available for the light plane—the kind that the average man will fly. Ford continued:

"We'll put all the people into the air whenever they want to fly. What I am doing is helping to get ready for the flying generation when it comes. This new art belongs to the younger generation. Here in my own family, it is Edsell who is mainly responsible for what we are doing."

Airship With Wings.

"What do you think of the manufacture of an airship larger than the Shenandoah by the navy?" he was asked.

"They ought to do it," he said, "but it should have wings, too. The wing should never be alone or the the gasbag alone. Such a ship must be strong, to resist storms, and have power enough to drive it through the storms. The helicoptic principle should be used, also, together with the wings, to control its ascent and descent.

"I see no reason why the trip to the old countries should not be made in a day or two on such ships. Put power enough into them to make them stronger than the elements. Man must conquer the elements, and he will.

"Of course, my biggest interest in the airplane is that it will be a destroyer of war. I think that will be its biggest service.

SHIPPING BOARD'S ACTION IN REMOVAL OF PALMER DEFIANCE OF PRESIDENT

Fleet Corporation Head Ousted Before Investigator Chosen by Coolidge Made Report—Political Problem Involved.

By CHARLES MICHELSON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The United States Shipping Board celebrated the absence of Persident Coolidge by removing Admiral Leigh C. Palmer as president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. They named in his place Elmer E. Crowley, who has been operating manager of the American Export Line in New York since he severed his connection with the Shipping Board several months ago. Crowley is a Massachusetts man which may sweeten the defiance of the President.

Inasmuch as the Board's refusal to let Admiral Palmer have full say in operatinfg the fleet caused the President to demand the resignation of Commissioner Haney, which he did not get, and effected the resignation of Commissioner Thompson on the ground that he did not dare to violate his oath of office by doing the President's bidding instead of following the dictates of his own conscience and intelligence, Washington is wondering what President Coolidge is going to do about it.

Investigation May Continue.

The President appointed H. G. Dalton of Cleveland, to investigate the chaos in the Shipping Board situation the other day and the idea was that nothing would be done about Palmer until he had reported. Presumably, Dalton will go ahead with the investigation, but what action the President can take in view of the board's declaration of independence, is one of the problems of the future.

The matter has a serious political complication. The West Coast sentiment, as well as that of the Gulf States, is against the one-man control of the Government's merchant mleet, alleging it is inspired by the big Eastern shipping interests, concerned with the diminishing of the sailings and the Senatorial elections in the West Coast States are likely to hinge on that issue.

Washington and Oregon Senators have been bombarding the President with pleas to abstain from making their troubles insurmountable by conniving at the policy of cutting down the fleet, which was Palmer's way of reducing the deficit.

On this account, there is one theory that the President knew what was coming and arranged to have the jettisoning of Palmer take place while he was away.

Republican Votes With D-mocrats.

One Republican, Plummer, the representative of the New England region, voted with the three Democrats, Haney, Thompson and Benson, to cancel the share of stock that was held by Palmer and issue another to Crowley, to qualify him for the presidency of the Fleet Corporation trustees.

Chairman O'Connor abstained from voting to accept Palmer's resignation, but voted with the board for the rest of the performance. Both Commissioners Hill and Lissner are away.

The board voted to make Palmer vice president, in charge of operations in Europe, which carries with it a $18,000 salary—the same as Crowley will get as president, the salary of $25,000, which went with that job when Palmer took it, having been cut down the other day. Palmer, however, in a statement, declined the place.

Admiral Palmer's statement of the incident follows:

"I accepted the presidency of the Fleet Corporation in January, 1924, only because of the definite understanding that I would have a free hand in the operation of the fleet. A few days ago, when four of the seven members of the Shipping Board rescinded the authority necessary to handle the fleet, I informed the President that I could not continue to serve if that condition were to be permanent.

"However, in view of the fact that Commissioners O'Conner and Benson and I had agreed to fully co-operate with Mr. Dalton, who was designated to make inquiry and submit his views for the Chief Executive's consideration, I did not think it proper to take any action until such times as the President had been fully informed and was ready to announce his wishes in the matter.

"Under the circumstances, it would be impossible for me to accept the board's offer in regard to the European position."

Vice Chairman Plummer was the only one of the commissioners to make any comment on their action. He said:

"That imported smoke has blown away, people can see that the Shipping Board has been trying to put the management of its great commercial fleet into the hands of a practical steamship man instead of having it in the hands of a man who had practically no commercial shipping experience.

"The board believes that when it is building a brick wall it should employ a brick mason. Some of the critics appear to claim that it should employ a ladies' tailor."

Hostile to President's Policy.

Plummer has been hostile to the President's effort to have the board function his way ever since he was called down from the White House for opposing the sale of the Pacific mail steamers to the Dollar Line Co. His rather cryptic comment refers to Admiral Palmer's lack of experience in handling commercial vessels, and perhaps slants at his service as naval attache and White House aide.

With their announcement of the choice of Crowly to head the Fleet Corporation, the Shipping Board issued a little history of the head of the Shipping Board. He went to sea at 15, rose to be a master of sailing vessels, among them the only seven-mast schooner ever built in this country. After nine years of this service he was master of steam vessels five years ago, and was in charge of shipbuilding for the Coastwise Transportation Co., when that fleet was taken over by the Government at the beginning of the World War.

Made Record in Operation.

He became vice president of the Coastwise Transportation Co. and about two years ago he was appointed by the Shipping Board to survey the laid-up fleet, which job he left to the president of the East Baltic Line in New York. According to the Board, he placed it in the front rank of all fleets operated for the Board, by his efficiency and economy.

A year ago he was made special assistant to the president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, then operating manager in the New York district and then went to the American Export Line in New York.

Despite this record, the resolution carrying his appointment to the presidency of the Fleet Corporation was conditioned in this wise: Provided that the said Elmer E. Crowley shall deliver to the secretary of the United States Shipping Board his resignation as a trustee for acceptance at the pleasure of the Board."

It was the possession of such a resignation that enabled the Board to drop Admiral Palmer yesterday.

Must Appoint Democrats.

The President will appoint the successors to Haney and Thompson when Congress meets, but as the law creating the Shipping Board directs that the various marine sections must be represented he must choose another man from the Pacific Coast and one from the Gulf Coast—and the likelihood of his getting any who will take a different view of the desires of these sections as to maintenance of ships and sailings is remote. The bipartisan character of the Board is also included in the law, so his choice is limited to Democrats. In the same resolution that deposed Palmer, the Board relieved Joseph E. Sheedy, vice president in charge of European affairs; Trustee Sidney Henry, and named in place of the latter, George Nichols—provided the latter also deposit his resignation.

Palmer, who was born in St. Louis, has had a notable record in the navy, having been chief of the Bureau of Navigation and having served as Chief of Staff of the battle fleet in the North Sea during the World War.

Fleet Corporation's General Manager Quits, Protesting Palmer's Ouster.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Hutchinson I. Cone, vice president and general manager of the Fleet Corporation, submitted his resignation to the Shipping Board today in protest of its action in removing Leigh C. Palmer as president.

The Shipping Board, Cone said, "openly defied" President Coolidge, when it sheared the Fleet Corporation several days ago of the wide powers given to it at the instance of President Coolidge, and it also ignored the President when it removed Palmer before the inquiry of H. G. Dalton, appointed to study the situation, had been completed.

"Without regard to other considerations," he added, "I cannot, as a retired naval officer, serve any organization that defies the wishes and policies of the President of the United States."

Cone, who is a retired Rear Admiral, took office with the Corporation soon after Palmer was made president, nearly two years ago, and has been regarded as one of the latter's right-hand men.

Elmer E. Crowley, who was elected president of the Corporation, arrived from New York today and at once took the oath of office.

NEW POLICY IN FEDERAL TRUST CASES ANNOUNCED

Department to Discontinue Investigations of Business Based on "Unsubstantiated Complaints."

TO CENTER WORK ON 'SERIOUS VIOLATIONS'

One Purpose of Attorney-General Is to Clarify Law Relating to Trade Associations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Business with a clear conscience that it is not trespassing on the antitrust statutes is not going to be hampered by activities of the Department of Justice.

The department is going after the cases involving "serious violations of the law," but the investigation of "unsubstantiated complaints" such as tends to the unsettlement of private business and generally leads to nothing more is not going to clutter up its procedure henceforth.

This policy is announced in the annual report of William J. Donovan, assistant to the Attorney-General, in charge of antitrust work.

Crystallization of this attitude in the department under the administration of Attorney-General Sargent has been indicated in the utterances of the Attorney-General on a number of occasions.

Fifty Cases Closed.

As illustrating why the department purposes to restrict its antitrust activities to the "serious" cases, Donovan disclosed that about 50 cases have been marked "closed," in the last six months because the complaints "showed clearly that no violation of law was involved."

With less time and effort devoted to the pursuit of futile investigations of unfounded complaints, his report said, the policy to be pursued will mean that "substantial complaints will be investigated and violations prosecuted with greater effect."

Attorney-General Sargent said the department had taken no formal cognizance of the recently announced merger in New York of the Ward, Continental and General Baking interests. Sargent's only information as to the amalgamation of the concerns had come through the press and he was unwilling at this time to indicate whether an investigation will be ordered to determine its relation to the antitrust laws.

It is emphasized that in the last year the efforts of the department have been directed largely to the pressing of cases that would clarify the laws as to rights of trade associations and patent owners.

Cement Case Rehearing.

Attention was called to the petition filed by the department for a rehearing of the so-called Maple Flooring and Cement Manufacturers' cases before the Supreme Court.

"The department has filed the petition for rehearing," Donovan's report said, "expressly accepting the principle of the decision but pointing out evidence which seemed to prove that the associations involved had exceeded their rights in the use of the statistics.

"The position of the department as outlined in these petitions brings it more nearly in line with the views of other agencies of the Government having to do with the subject of trade associations, thus bringing about a uniformity of policy and practice. Such will be of assistance to business men who desire by co-operative methods to eliminate waste and unfair practices in industry and at the same time to keep strictly within the law."

The report added that in the last year only 16 new antitrust proceedings, eight criminal and eight civil had been instituted. In the same period, 15 cases were concluded, 11 of which were begun prior to July 1, 1924, while 45 antitrust actions still are pending.

EDUCATION AND BIRTH RATE

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 7.—After an exhaustive research Dr. S. J. Holmes, professor of zoology of the University of California, has announced that fewer children in the ratio of 1 to 4 are born to parents having a college education than to parents who have not attended an institution of higher learning. The report of Dr. Holmes was based on data gathered on more than 42,000 families.

He also found that a college educated wife leads to a smaller family than does a college educated husband; that college men tend to marry high school graduates rather than college graduates, and that the average number of brothers and sisters of the modern college youth is about 50 per cent less than the number possessed by their parents.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To Relieve Traffic Congestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE cartoon in your issue of Oct. 5, with the title "There is room under the street," opens a wide field for study. The problem of how the ever-increasing traffic on surface streets is to be accommodated provides one of the big engineering dilemmas of the era.

Transportation engineers are now face to face with this difficulty in New York City, especially in the congested areas of Manhattan. The first solution offered was to construct subsurface streets for motor vehicles in the first underground area, but it immediately became clear that this could not be done as such underground streets would conflict with the electric traction subways occupying the first area. They then went so far as to suggest the removal of the electric traction subways to a lower, or second, subsurface area so as to provide room for undersurface streets in the first area for use of all classes of motor vehicles.

The New York dilemma should be of interest to local engineers who plan to have the city invest about $100,000,000 in the construction of electric traction subways under downtown St. Louis. Even if these traction subways are deemed essential to provide rapid transit here, we must take into consideration the fact that several years would elapse before they could be finished and put into operation. Can St. Louis afford to wait that long for quick transportation? Why not let the United Railways' subsidiary bus company inaugurate a system of fast-moving busses on important primary routes, with the speed and safety guaranteed by synchronized traffic control? Or, if that company still clings to the "bus only as feeder" idea, let the independent company study the establishing of such a service. This might eliminate a few trolleys which are the main traffic-jamming element.

Prices of Coffee.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SOME time ago I saw an article in your paper to the effect that coffee was so plentiful they had to stop the shipment. If this is so, why don't the prices come down? We have to pay 55 cents for ordinary coffee. It is the wholesalers that keep up the prices. I wish someone would do something about this.

A HOUSEWIFE.

Sunday Recreation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE noted the published opinion of the lay evangelist, "that men and women who are Christians do not play golf or attend ball games on Sunday." It appears that his success at Herrin, Ill., has gone to his head.

The one really great Christian (who never called himself a Christian) plainly stated the truth: "That the Sabbath is made for man and not man for the Sabbath: therefore the son of man is lord of the Sabbath."

Any form of relaxation and recreation that enables men, women and children to recuperate in mind and body, which is the result of getting their minds away from work and study, is entirely righteous, because the Sabbath day, being made for man, is therefore for his benefit and not for a state of stagnation and sober-faced inactivity nor to bow down to.

That evangelism which thus ignorantly and harshly condemns, is not evangelical; it is merely a false doctrine of so-called human reason which drives people from the church and turns them against Christian teaching.

Light Washington U. Campus.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE two daughters attending Washington U. They have written to me asking for two flashlights, so they may cross the grounds after dark. If they attend a picture show or spend an evening at a friend's home they tell me the campus is so pitch black they are almost afraid to go back to their room over such a long stretch of darkness. I can hardly believe a building like Washington U. should be surrounded by darkness—one of St. Louis' most wonderful show places.

Have Wood Pavements Failed?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

RECENTLY every heavy rain has caused the buckling and displacement of sections of wood pavement on some of our most traveled streets, particularly on the downtown section of Washington avenue. With the wood blocks displaced, some scattered on the surface and the rest lying loose, with holes between them, the traffic, especially of heavy trucks and busses, makes matters worse, and the condition is one of danger. Several thousands of dollars will have to be spent in mending these broken places, and further trouble can be looked for as long as bad weather continues.

Does this mean that the wood block pavement is unsuited for modern traffic? Or does it mean that the wood block pavements, or some of them, have been neglected and left in a state of disrepair? I certainly did not feel safe recently when the bus on which I was riding, too fast, passed over some of these broken places in the pavement.

PASSENGER.

MR. COOLIDGE AT HIS BEST.

If President Coolidge has ever made a better speech than that he delivered before the American Legion at Omaha we have not read it. It was an excellent speech. It compares favorably, not so much in eloquence but in sanity and soundness and breadth, with some of the best utterances of American Presidents.

Mr. Coolidge did not define any new or original policies, but he did comment wisely on existing conditions, and in a broad way touch upon evil tendencies and suggest good thought and action in both national and international relations.

Approving reasonable military preparedness and advising a sound measure of selective service in preparation for emergencies, the President unqualifiedly condemned militarism. He said with truth that there is no protection against war in vast armaments, but on the contrary they promote war. They are a menace to peace, and he expressed the opinion that in the present trend of the world toward the substitution of reason and arbitration and conference for the arbitrament of the sword, the money could be saved from expenditures on war preparation and better devoted to peace improvements such as "the making of good roads, the building of better homes, the promotion of education and all the other arts of peace which minister to the advancement of human welfare."

Especially good were his pointed and pithy comments on the danger and folly of intolerance and narrowness in all their forms. He condemned directly religious intolerance, racial intolerance and that sense of superiority and fixity of judgment which leads one nation to look down upon another, one race to despise and hate another, one citizen to differentiate between himself and his group and other citizens. He condemned the misuse of the phrase "100-per-cent American," by which one group of citizens assumes to be better Americans than others, saying that Americanism is not measured by birth or length of stay in the country, or by race or social advantages, but by loyalty to American principles and to the obligations of citizenship. He remarked that "whether one traces his Americanism back three centuries to the Mayflower or three years to the steerage is not half so important as whether his Americanism today is real and genuine," and added that "we must all realize that there are true Americans who did not happen to be born in our section of the country, who do not attend our place of religious worship, who are not of our racial stock, or who are not proficient in our language." This thought was summed up in the following paragraph:

> It seems clear that the results of the war will be lost and we shall only be entering a period of preparation for another conflict unless we can demobilize the racial antagonisms, fears, hatreds and suspicions, and create an attitude of toleration in the public mind of the peoples of the earth. If our country is to have any position of leadership, I trust it may be in that direction, and I believe that the place where it should begin is at home.

We do not doubt Mr. Coolidge's sincerity in condemning militarism, recognizing the ways and agencies making for peace that are now working in the world and urging co-operation with them. We believe he is thoroughly committed to peace. He favors the participation of the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice. But he can do more than any other living man to strengthen all the agencies for peace. If he will round out his utterances with a definite policy to commit the United States to support not only the International Court, but the League of Nations, he will make America a true leader in the peace movement.

We know now that there is no danger of war or of commitment to European intrigues in the League of Nations. Elihu Root's admirable definition of the functions of the League and Court and The Hague Tribunal stands as the true view of these peace agencies, the League for conference, The Hague for arbitration and the Court for the settlement of judicable disputes. It is time for America to co-operate with all these peace agencies. The banner of leadership is within the grasp of President Coolidge.

A BRAKE ON BUSINESS.

Present postal rates are cutting down the volume of the country's business approximately a billion a year. This statement was made by Homer J. Buckley of Chicago in a discussion of his report on the subject to the National Advertising Commission, of which he is a member.

The figure, of course, is an estimate. Yet, as Buckley explains it, it is clear that these rates are a serious brake on business. He shows that different lines of enterprise, like mail order houses, department stores, etc., have materially reduced the large catalogues they formerly sent out. The tangible and direct losses from such economizing are obvious. The paper manufacturer and the printer both suffer from the slump in the demand for their products. And these small books, inferior in every way to the old editions, have an impaired selling power, as unhappily shown in the records of sales.

The ill effects are not confined to the jobbers or wholesalers. The retailer is also a victim. When the small merchant's bill for mailing price lists to his customers is increased by $150 a year he refuses in many instances to incur this additional expense. Thus his business feels the blight.

How accurate the estimate of a billion a year is we do not pretend to say. But excessive taxes, in whatever guise they are levied, are invariably a brake on business. For that reason they defeat their own purpose. Instead of increasing revenue they decrease it. Carried far enough they destroy business, whose other name is prosperity.

ATTA BOY!

Today we must gaze upon the sad and melancholy spectacle of a whole nation gone suddenly balmy. The focal point of American life is Forbes Field, Pittsburg, where Pittsburg and Washington are contesting the world's baseball championship. Scientists, philosophers, business men, clam diggers, railroad engineers, steeplejacks and office boys are all afflicted with one common form of madness. All eyes are on the scoreboard.

What could be sillier?

This is supposed to be a materialistic nation, yet it drops all its gainful tasks to concentrate on a series of baseball games from which it can derive no good, financially, spiritually or physically. Today as the earth pursues its whirling flight through the mystic spaces of the universe, while babes are born, men die and the prices of butter and eggs continue to rise, and many other things of great moment are in the throes of creation, fulfillment and decay, America heedlessly follows balls and strikes. The thing is inexplicable, unfathomable and absurd.

Come on, you Senators! Come on, you Pirates!

MITCHELL AND THE LEGIONNAIRES.

The American Legion, according to reports from Omaha, is boiling to get into the Mitchell scrap. There are older heads who would like to keep this question out of the minutes, but they will probably be overruled. The legionnaires for the most part are still young, and youth is always insurgent. In the words of the immortal Florian Slappy, a fight is "the fondest thing youth is of."

Nevertheless, a resolution by the Omaha convention unreservedly indorsing and glorifying Col. Mitchell would be unfortunate for the American Legion. The American legionnaires, as experienced soldiers, know that discipline is indispensable to military efficiency and morale. They know Col. Mitchell is now under trial for defiantly violating the rules of discipline. However much they may admire his courage and previous record, it would be unwise now to approve his conduct.

There is one point, though, on which the American Legion might well commend Col. Mitchell. The charge preferred by him that the Shenandoah's last flight was a propaganda voyage which was ordered over the protest of Commander Lansdowne has been proved. It has also been proved that Secretary Wilbur of the Navy in denying that fact was either untruthful or inexcusably ignorant of what is going on in his department. Whichever explanation is correct, Mr. Wilbur should retire as head of the navy in deference to public opinion, for the good of the service and in justice to the men in the air service.

A resolution declaring that Secretary Wilbur had forfeited the confidence of the American Legion would, we believe, be entirely proper and effective.

REAL PROGRESS IN AVIATION.

News of the success of the Ford tour airplanes, in which 16 out of 17 ships completed a 1900-mile air journey without accident, comes on the same day as the news of the completion by Lieutenants McReady and Stevens of a 20,000-mile flying tour, in approximately 200 flying hours, or at the rate of 100 miles an hour.

In the Ford tour speeds ranged from 73 to 101 miles an hour, the tour being made for the purpose of proving reliability rather than speed, and of demonstrating the possibilities of commercial aviation. Ten of the 17 ships finished within the time and speed limitations and were declared winners. Most of these planes will, after a short rest, fly on to New York for the national air races at Mitchel Field, where the Pulitzer speed trophy contest will be one of the principal events.

Reliability will be a settled matter, if it is not already proved. As for speed, that is something which will probably always be open to new records. The world's official record of 278 miles was recently broken by Lieut. Alvord Williams in a flight in which he made, unofficially, 302.3 miles an hour, or five miles a minute. Lieut. Williams is one of the navy's champions in the coming Pulitzer race.

It will be a great event. In all previous Pulitzer races the speeds have been below 250 miles an hour, but even this was too fast for the camera, with the quickest lens, to catch a satisfactory impression of the race in progress. If, in this race, it is officially shown that more than 300 miles an hour around the triangular course is possible without accident it will be a notable achievement.

RUSSIA'S RETURN TO VODKA.

As with the United States, Russia imposed prohibition upon the people as a war measure in the first instance, while the late Czar was in power. After the war the bolshevik dictators, ardent experimenters in social and economic affairs without regard to individual liberty, put the lid on tighter. They have held it down desperately for 11 years, latterly through an attempt to make the production and sale of what liquor was permitted a Government monopoly.

And now the lid is off. Not only is the Government monopoly abandoned but private manufacturers can make what they please, and private purveyors may sell all sorts of liquors, of the highest proof, wherever they please.

It is not because the bolshevik dictators have changed their minds as to the desirability of prohibition. It is because Government control of the industry and of the people's habits has utterly failed. Bootlegging flourished, the people "made their own," and in making it wasted the country's precious crops of grain and violated the law everywhere. Besides, the Government needed the revenue that had been diverted to the bootleggers by prohibition.

Russia under the bolshevik dictatorship had everything in its favor to compel enforcement. The Red army, the Cheka, with spies in every district and village, the Government control of industries and of the grain crops and imports, and the use of a Government controlled press for the purposes of propaganda—all these factors could not avert the inevitable. The Russian wanted his vodka. He had enjoyed it since his nation was born and before. He had abused it, but prohibition did not force him to amend his ways, but rather to the contrary. And what power or influence, ignoring human nature and human needs and the undying love of liberty, can prevent the same outcome of the prohibition experiment in America?

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"The trouble with the American commissioners in the French debt parley was that they were afraid of having it said that Caillaux put something over on them," Mr. Antwine said.

"Except for that fear an agreement would have been reached and the incident closed. Failure to reach such an agreement hurt the French—their pride and their prestige. They are worse off than they were for having made the gesture of honor and not having closed with us on terms tolerable to both.

"It must be recalled that Caillaux has a great reputation. It put men like Mellon and Smoot in the position of having to be extraordinarily cautious. They knew it did not much matter to the country whether the French pay us or not. The country was not waiting to applaud them if they made the French pay. What the country was waiting for was to laugh at our side for having let Caillaux best it.

"If you know men like Smoot and Mellon you know how much they cared about letting the country have this laugh at their expense. They went into the conference with their cards held so close to them that they had to stand up to breathe. You have observed an amateur poker player facing an expert. Then you have seen Mellon and Smoot sitting across the table from Caillaux. Many an expert poker player has at last risen in this state of affairs and quit the game, saying he could not win anything because the other man would not bet. That was precisely how Caillaux went home. Smoot and Mellon were sitting on their chips and France hadn't a chance.

"I am sorry Caillaux came. While I appreciate that in bluffing two hardened old financiers like the head of the aluminum trust and one of the treasurers of the Mormon Church all over Washington meant more to his reputation and self-esteem than getting the debt settled possibly could mean, I still regret that an agreement was not reached and the matter settled.

"As the thing stood, Smoot and Mellon had their money buried before Caillaux got here," Mr. Antwine said.

BRAVO, BROTHER!

Dear Prof.: Can't you get behind Evangelist Williams in his noble crusade against Sunday golf and for the redemption of the Sunday golfer? It is simply disgraceful the way our golf courses are jammed on the holy Sabbath day. Often one has to wait three-quarters of an hour—sometimes longer—before he can tee off. And after one finally does get started it's a case of wait, wait, wait for the interminable dubsters ahead. Howinel can an earnest golfer improve his game under those blasphemous conditions? Well, he just can't do it. This is no impressionistic judgment. I know what I'm talking about.

Brother Williams is on the right track. If 90 per cent of the boobs that now clutter up the courses on Sunday would go to church or stay at home and on bended knee implore the Lord's forgiveness for the sins they have made other defectives commit this would be a happier world and golfing on Sunday would be a joy and glory for the unregenerate 10 per cent of us who are gone beyond recall.

There on that throne, to which the blind

His dazzling brow, till man could bear its

Incidentally, "The mystic order, Veiled Prophets of the enchanted realm is like the ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, a smaller but similar annex to the craft:" (Chambers Encyclopedia.)

Then, does not the shade of this Veiled Prophet come to his good city of St. Louis every year at the invitation of, perhaps, the M. O. V. P., to see those things in procession which he foretold? One year it was transportation—one year it was literature—as a lady said to me, "A horse eating a vine," "how funny," etc.—everything that has been of benefit to us might have been foretold and can be used to make floats.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

ECONOMY IN PUBLIC SERVICE.

From the Washington Post.

SEVENTY million dollars saved is $70,000,000 earned. This is the amount returned to the United States Treasury by Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans' bureau, from its appropriations of some $450,000,000. In making this return, the director of the bureau hands back to Uncle Sam an amount of money practically equal to one-half the sum total returned by all other departments. But cutting down expenses where pruning and paring brought no harm to the disabled soldiers, Director-General Hines at once effected an economy and bestowed a blessing on the taxpayers. Cuts in salaries and administrative costs effected the larger saving. The release of unnecessary employes in the local office and in the regional districts brought about a more compact and efficient working force. Vocational training schools, to the number of 21, where there was no absolute need for them, and the unsystematic transportation of patients, tended merely to run up bills. Director Hines put a stop to all this. He discontinued schools that had outlived their usefulness and sent patients from one hospital to another only when such changes were for the good of all concerned. Common sense in the management of the veterans' bureau has brought Gen. Hines before the American public as a man worthy of a supreme trust. In his care are the lives and welfare of many who followed the flag. In effecting an economy that does not encroach upon the rightful domain of the disabled veterans—their allotted compensation, hospital treatment, and vocational training—Gen. Hines renders a distinguished service to his Government and his whilom comrades in arms.

REFORM FROM WITHIN.

From the San Francisco Bulletin.

THE organization of lumber men with the comic name of Hoo Hoos is considering conservation from within. At a meeting of the association in Spokane the "Grand Snark" of the Hoo Hoos proposed that the organization form a forest board to take legal steps, when necessary, to prevent lumber companies from despoiling the forests. From a man bearing the title of "Grand Snark of the Universe," one would naturally expect a rollicking invitation to join in the merry-merry, rather than a statesmanlike suggestion for conservation. But J. H. Allen, father of the idea, asks, "Cannot the lumber industry alone, without another law added to the statutes, create reforms that will bring about forest perpetuation?" Therein lies the virtue of the suggestion. Much of the legal interference with private business existing now is due to the cynical indifference of business interests to the good of the community. Business would not reform itself, so cumbersome and often impractical laws had to be passed to protect public rights. If the lumber men can see the light before Legislatures experiment further with their affairs, a great advance will be made; something really practical will be done, and, thank Heaven, there may be fewer laws written into the calf-bound books.

HAMLET UP-TO-DATE TO BE SHOWN HERE

For the first time in the United States, "Hamlet" will be acted in modern costume by Robert B. Mantell and his troupe on Thursday night of next week at the American Theater. This novelty follows the example of a similar performance given on Aug. 25 at the Kingsway Theater, London.

Queen Gertrude with bobbed hair, grave-diggers in overalls, Laertes in a lounge suit, and a Hamlet alternating between a dinner jacket and a hiking suit of khaki are some of the surprises to be expected. According to reports from London, the innovation was received there without casualties.

On Tuesday evening, "Hamlet" will be presented in conventional habiliments. Mantell's essay in twentieth century garb will be an incident of his present tour, in which he is bidding farewell to the stage.

The first experiment of the sort occurred in 1923 at the Repertory Theater in Birmingham, England, which celebrated the tercentenary of Shakspeare's birth by producing "Cymbeline" in modern attire. The heroine wore knickerbockers, and the King alternated between full-dress military uniform and a crown and ermine cape. Leonatus, Iachimo and the other young men in society wore dinner jackets of an evening, and by day flannels with sports coats.

The courtiers, in morning coats, were described as looking quite grievously like minor members of Mr. Law's ministry. The Queen wore the tight and sinuous gowns affected by "vamps" in the movies. Belarius was dressed like a scout master, and the First Jailer went into battle in a tin hat. The ancient Britons were uniformed like Tommy Atkins, and the Roman Legionaires were attired as Bersaglieri.

Critics pronounced that the great episodes of the play, and its poetic incidents, survived with little damage, but that for the most part the effect of the experiment was to stress those tracts of fustian and empty rhetoric which a romantic setting comfortably conceals.

It is recalled that historical accuracy of costuming is comparatively new in the theater. Elizabethan actors wore Elizabethan costumes, and in the early days of Italian opera Alexander the Great appeared in periwig and small clothes, and Caesar in a cocked hat and buckled shoes.

YOUTHFUL OPERA SINGER COOKS AND IS NOT BOBBED

Miss Marion Talley of Kansas City Uses No Cosmetics and Dresses Plainly.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.— Miss Marion Talley, soprano from Kansas who has signed a Metropolitan opera contract at the age of 18 likes to cook. Her preference is for layer cakes, but she will boil potatoes, or fry chicken with nearly as much pleasure.

Three years ago, when she was given a tryout at the Metropolitan which led to a contract, she wore her auburn hair in curls. "But I've had to do it up now because I'm getting older," she says. "I don't intend to bob it. For one thing I might get in hot water at home.

Her mother, Mrs. C. M. Talley confirmed this by nodding her head. Mrs. Talley who has taken an apartment west of Central Park says that household duties will be divided between her two daughters according to their preferences.

"Marion does most of the cooking," Mrs. Talley said. "She likes to shop for groceries and choose the food. Her sister Florence prefers to sew."

"Florence makes nearly all of my clothes," volunteered Marion. "I can sew, but I don't care enough about clothes to sew for myself."

Her father, a telegraph operator for the Missouri Pacific Railroad at Kansas City is not expected to move to New York at present.

Interviewers noticed that the young singer used no cosmetics and was dressed with almost severe simplicity. She gave the following as the ten commandments for success:

Talent, study, rest, exercise, simplicity, obedience, concentration, patience, work, and work.

MONUMENT AT CAMP SITE

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Oct. 7.—A large granite monument was unveiled here yesterday on the site of the camp of the Twenty-first Illinois Infantry, on July 5, 1861. The infantry was at that time under command of Col. U. S. Grant and was on march from Springfield to Quincy. More than a score of veterans of the Civil War attended the ceremonies, among them James Skinner of Arcola, Ill., who was a member of Company D of the Twenty-first Illinois at the time the regiment marched through Jacksonville.

The monument on the camp site is the gift of the State of Illinois and is on State land, property of the Illinois School for the Deaf. It is planned to create a small State park about the monument and covering the supposed camp site as nearly as possible. Grant marched the regiment to Meredosia, Ill., where the men were put aboard a train and taken to Quincy. Here the regiment crossed the river into Missouri, expecting to meet the rebels, who had disappeared.

EPISCOPALIAN CREED DEFENDED BY BISHOP

"It Is Not the Labored Deduction of Fables," Gailor Tells New Orleans Conference.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—Definition of the creed which has been the subject of widespread controversy in the Protestant Episcopal Church of America was the outstanding feature of the sermon of the Rt. Rev. Theodore D. Bratton, Bishop of Mississippi, read before the forty-eighth general convention of that church here today by Bishop Thomas Gailor, Bishop of Tennessee and president of the church's national council.

The sermon was read by Bishop Gailor on account of the illness of Bishop Bratton.

"Let us reiterate the truth," he said. "Our Christian creed is not the labored deduction from 'cunningly devised fables' framed to prove a case; it is not imposition by authority of perplexing dogmas upon reluctant minds. It is the amazing, convicting discovery of souls in accumulated communion with the God of souls and fellowship with the Holy Spirit of light and truth, issuing in an experience of spiritual truth assured just as every other truth of science is assured."

Age of Individualism.

Bishop Bratton touched briefly upon present-day controversies in the church, referring to "the experience of the fellowship of the Holy Spirit."

"Surely our age is illustrating a lack of accommodated balance between corporate and individual experience, without which the former is so nearly inoperative, and the latter faulty and dangerous. And is not the cause of this that we have failed to give the full value to the spirit of the fellowship of the Holy Ghost?"

The Bishop declared we live in an age in which insistence upon individualism and the right to private judgment "have violently asserted their supremacy over corporate authority."

New Interpretation Needed.

Again referring to the creed he said:

"The clamor of today is for new interpretations clothed in the language of today and against what are called the archaic phrases and terms of a long dead past. . . .

"It is the liberty of the sons of God released by the truth which makes us free.

"The scientist discovers a law and wakes up to the knowledge that he has thought God's thoughts."

This was the mirst outdoor opening in its history. The convention was formally opened in Audubon Park by the singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and "The Son of God Goes Forth to War" by a choir of 250 voices, made up of singers from churches in Louisiana and Mississippi.

In the processional of 120 Bishops to the park for the formal opening, which attracted a crowd estimated at 7000, the Right Rev. William Montgomery Brown of Galion, O., Bishop of Arkansas, had a place. Bishop Brown has been convicted of heresy by a church court and his conviction confirmed by another. A further appeal to the House of Bishops is expected to be heard at this convention.

Interest centered in the election of Bishops and the full participation in the activities of the Federal Council of Churches in Christ, a close second. The church at present is a participant with the federated council in joint working of their social service departments.

$20,000 PRIZE DESIGN CHOSEN FOR MEMORIAL TO ROOSEVELT

John Russell Pope of New York Winning Architect in Competition.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. — John Russell Pope, New York achitect, has been awarded the $20,000 prize for the best design submitted to the Roosevelt Memorial Association for a national memorial in Washington to Theodore Roosevelt.

Announcement of the award, which went to Pope in competition with designs prepared by seven other architects, was made today by James R. Garfield, president of the association after a meeting of its directors.

The character of the winning design will not be made known until it is presented to Congress, in accordance with the law under which the association was created and authorized to make recommendations for a suitable memorial for Congressional approval.

Decision as to the location of the memorial here and its design also must have the indorsement of the Fine Arts Commission.

The most generally discussed location for the memorial has been Potomac Park, where the Washington monument and the Lincoln Memorial stand, but President Coolidge recently has indicated interest in a suggestion that it be placed in Rock Creek Park. Those favoring this plan recall that the natural beauties of that park so often drew the former President there for horseback rides and long tramps with his children.

While Mr. Coolidge feels that a good location could be found in Rock Creek Park, he is forming no definite opinions on the matter pending the action of Congress and the Fine Arts Commission.

DENIES EVANGELINE BOOTH WILL LOSE ARMY POST

Gen. Booth's Wife, Here to Attend Conference, Says No Change Is Planned.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Mrs. W. Bramwell Booth, wife of Gen. Booth, international commander in chief of the Salvation Army, arrived from England on the Olympic yesterday, on her way to conferences in Winnipeg and Toronto.

She was accompanied by Commissioner Henry W. Mapp, international secretary of the army, and her daughter, Staff Capt. Dorothy Booth.

Mrs. Booth's sister-in-law is Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in America. For several years the General has been expected to recall Miss Booth, leaving in command commissioners directly responsible to him.

Although Mrs. Booth intends to see Miss Booth, she denied she would see her concerning any official matters and said no change will be made in the government of the army here.

"I shall see Miss Booth before I leave for Canada tomorrow," Mrs. Booth said, "as a sister of whom I am very fond. Miss Booth's appointment in office will end next year, but I am sure she will be reappointed by the General."

The party will return from Canada to sail on the Majestic Oct. 24. They said they will have no official connection with the Salvation Army of America.

the use of the automobile. The motor car has mixed the people up so thoroughly that you could not fool any American about any part of the country, but they still can be fooled about other parts of the world. Well, the airplane will stop that. In a motor car you can go wherever land exists; in an airplane you can go wherever man can breathe. When the plane becomes general it will put power in the people's hands, just as the motor car has done.

Short Work of Navies.

"The airplane will make short work of big navies, I think. Force and money are still the great delusions. Take Europe, with her navies as the symbol of force. Neither keeps her out of trouble. The money idea is strong enough here in America, but there is no comparison with what it is in Europe. There they think money has a magic power. They have been educated in the idea for centuries. They have been taught to look up to money. Well, they're doing it now, and they are finding that money cannot start anything or save anything.

"The airplane is going to destroy the delusion of force, and that will bring peace."

Remembered Employes in Will.

By the Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 7.—Associates among the older employes of the newspaper were remembered in the will of Hibbard O. Davis, late publisher of the Bloomington Pantagraph who died recently at his home in Glendale, Cal. The will was filed yesterday in California. One-half of the estate goes to the widow; the sum of $5,000 to the local Legion Post and the remainder is to be used as a trust fund which provides annuities to certain relatives and older Pantagraph employes. Such annual payments are to be made during the respective lives and shall not exceed the sum of $500 per annum to any one of them. Davis' interest in the Daily Pantagraph consisted of a life estate under which now passes to the grand children of his father, Wm. O. Davis, who are Adlai E. Stevenson, Elizabeth D. Stevenson, Davis Merwin, Mester E. Merwin and Loring C. Merwin.

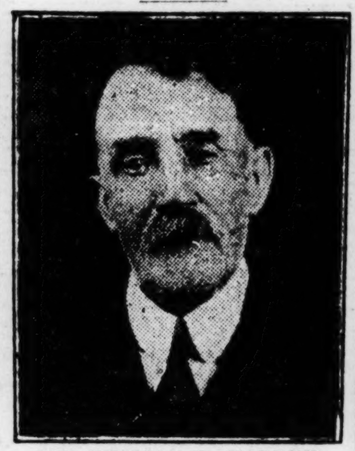
THE REAL THING DOES MAKE A DIFFERENCE

And Since Herb Juice Has Relieved His Constipation and Stomach Trouble, He Has Decided It Is the Real Thing.



MR. THOMAS W. FARLEY

"I was in a terribly rundown condition, generally speaking, having suffered for years with constipation, very bad stomach and dizzy spells. But since taking three bottles of your remarkable remedy, Herb Juice, I now feel and look better than I have in years," said Mr. Thomas W. Farley, residing at 4102 Maryland Av., St. Louis, Mo., when he called to see the Herb Juice man recently.

Continuing, Mr. Farley said: "It seemed that I could not get anything to relieve me of this condition. I had a very stubborn case of chronic constipation and I think that was the seat of my whole trouble, because from constipation comes stomach trouble and dizziness such as I have suffered. It seemed to me that regardless of how light my diet, my food positively refused to digest. I would get very bad gas attacks after eating, would bloat badly and have pains in my stomach. And in later years I have been annoyed a great deal with a very dizzy condition caused, I suppose, from a sluggish liver. I read so many remarkable things which Herb Juice was doing for people right here in St. Louis, that I decided I would try it myself, as I had tried just about everything else. And I am happy to say that after I had finished my third bottle I was a changed man. My bowels now act regularly; my stomach is in excellent condition, as I can eat anything I want and digest it; never suffer any more from that distressed feeling from gas; those dizzy spells have left me entirely and I feel 100% better than I have in several years. I know that Herb Juice has done more for me than any other medicine I have ever taken, and I gladly make this statement in hope that others will try it, for I am quite sure once they will sing its praises as I do."

Hundreds are now calling daily to see the Herb Juice man, who has established headquarters at Walgreen Drug Co., 514 Washington Av., giving statements for publication and praising Herb Juice that their friends may be induced to try the great remedy which is relieving so many sufferers in St. Louis.

AIRPLANES IN NIGHT STUNTS AT NEW YORK

"Comet" and Three "Satellites" Herald Coming of the Pulitzer Races.

By Leased Wire From New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Times Square beheld a new comet last night and the comet did strange things above the heart of the world's greatest city. Lieut. Eugene C. Barksdale was the guiding spirit of the heavenly visitor, which really was no comet at all, but a speedy PW-8 pursuit plane with wingtip flares which streaked a fiery trail across the sky. Unlike other comets he had three satellites—De Havilands flying in V-formation themselves all lit up to the rival even vivid Broadway.

The DH's pilots, Lieuts. Rideneau, Batten and Moffett, flew swiftly north over the Great White Way alternately winking red, white and blue lights in pyrotechnic humor. The lights were so directed as to illuminate the ships themselves and give them a strikingly chameleon appearance. But Barksdale frisked back and forth before them blinking the port and starboard lights of his plane and startling the crowds below with his motor's winning roar.

Advertising Air Races.

He climbed and dived, at the same time setting off his flakes. A wage of fire followed him through the air as he looped, banked, zoomed and spiraled in the heavens. Broadway gazed entranced, scarcely noticing a busy flivver made to resemble an airplane which bore signs announcing that the show was to stir up interest in the national air races at Mitchell Field tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

Lieut. Cyrus Bettis landed just at dark last night on Mitchell Field, after taking up the army's Curtiss Pulitzer racer for its first thirty minutes in the air. He put the little speed ship five times back and forth across a one-kilometer course on Curtiss Field for its official acceptance tests, while a joint army-navy board clocked its speed.

The latter refused to disclose any figures until the results have been forwarded to the chiefs of the two air services in Washington, but it was learned Bettis averaged 262 miles an hour on at least two laps, or a little less than the speed of the dog ship when Lieut. Alford J. Williams, navy color bearer in the coming speed classic, put it through its acceptance paces two weeks ago. Bettis' ship, No. 43, has a black fuselage and a golden wing. Its twin sister, which is to be flown by Williams, probably will be delivered to its pilot this afternoon and taken up by him for its air tryout.

Brokerage Firm Value $287,362.

An inventory of the partnership estate of the brokerage concern of Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., filed yesterday in Probate Court, appraises the value of the business at $287,362. The principal owner was Lorenzo E. Anderson, who died several months ago. He left a personal estate, exclusive of his interest in the business, valued at $34,603.

$35,000 TO BE ADDED TO NIGHT AND DAY ACCOUNTS

Settlement of Claims Against Trust and Investment Firms Ordered by Judge.

A settlement of claims which will add more than $35,000 to the accounts of the defunct Night and Day Bank was ordered yesterday by Circuit Judge Falkenhainer on application of Charles N. Giles, deputy state finance commissioner in charge of the institution.

The first claim was for $25,766.75 against the Meramec Trust Co., also defunct. The Night and Day Bank claimed that amount as due on an overdraft. The trust company declared the overdraft was to be credited to the personal account of its cashier and denied liability. Finally E. H. Benoist, deputy finance commissioner in charge of the trust company agreed to settle for $16,000. The trust company has already paid 50 cents on the dollar and the $16,000 will be paid on that basis, $8000 immediately, and such of the remainder as can be paid, at a later date.

The second claim aggregated $29,823.91 against the Nida Investment Co. The Night and Day Bank claimed to hold notes of that company aggregating $20,903.79, and notes indorsed by C. E. Hayden, aggregating $8919.72 for which it charged liability of the Nida Company. The claims will be paid in full from $36,755.75 of the Nida Company's funds held in escrow by the Liberty Central Trust Co. pending settlement of the claim.

FORMER TEACHER SUES BOSTON UNIVERSITY DEAN FOR $50,000

Charges She Lost Position Because She Said Certain Men Teachers —Were Unfit Morally.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Mrs. Louisa Tufts Ford, former instructor of the College of Practical Arts and Letters of Boston University, has filed suit for $50,000 against Theodore Lawrence Davis, dean of the College, alleging that she lost her position because she informed Acting President (Bishop) W. F. Anderson, that certain men teachers were not fit to teach in the college.

Mrs. Ford sets forth that in the month of April, 1925, charges were pending before the acting president and the trustees which declared in substance that men unfit morally to be associated with young women of the age of the students, were being retained on the teaching force. She further states that she investigated certain of these charges at the request of the acting president and gave evidence in their support. As a result Mrs. Ford asserts she was infomed by Dean Davis that if she did not retract her testimony in writing he would see to it that she was not reappointed instructor in stenography.

Although she made application for reappointment her name was not presented for consideration, the declaration sets forth.

Hair Secrets

Gleamy, Thick, Wavy Hair in a Moment!

Girls! Try this! When combing and brushing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can dress your hair immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy, and abundance of gleamy, wavy hair, sparkling with life, incomparably soft, fresh, youthful.

Besides beautifying the hair, a 35 cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" from any drug or toilet counter will do wonders, particularly if the hair is dry, thin, brittle, faded or streaked with gray from constant curling and waving which burn the color, lustre and very life from any woman's hair.

"Danderine" acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, stopping falling hair and helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

PARLIAMENTARY UNION HOLDS FINAL SESSION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The Interparliamentary Union Conference in final session here today adopted a resolution calling for an investigation of economic barriers between European nations.

The resolution, which was adopted without objection, was introduced by H. J. Procope of Finland as a substitute for one presented by Adolf Braund of Germany, recommending the creation of a customs understanding between European nations. The Procope resolution directs a subcommittee of the Conference Committee on Economic and Financial Questions to study the problem and report to the next conference.

A resolution on armaments reduction, reported by Dr. P. Munch of Denmark and adopted yesterday, expressed regret that expenditures for armaments by "most countries" showed a "serious increase;" stated the necessity of giving nations a feeling of security, and called for a thorough examination by a special sub-committee of methods for reducing armaments, including the drafting of a technical scheme to bring this about. It was adopted without dissent.

Yesterday's session was suspended early in the afternoon to permit the foreign visitors to journey to Mount Vernon, Va., home of America's first President, and to attend a State banquet given by the Americans' Secretary Kellogg. After the closing session today the visitors will depart for New York to spend several days before proceeding to Ottawa, Canada, to resume the conference Oct. 13.

Praises Security Pact.

Referring to the proposed European security pact as "one of the most important steps in German foreign policy of the last 50 years," Dr. Josef Carl Wirth, former German Chancellor in a prepared address told those at the banquet last night "that the German people and their Government were prepared to bear their share and carry out in good faith their obligations in healing the wounds of the war."

Dr. Wirth lauded America for its postwar efforts, particularly in setting up the Dawes plan, which, he said, "provides a speedy rehabilitation of normal and sound economic conditions, not only in Europe, but in the whole world" and places reparations on a basis where clear and sound reasoning and economical considerations alone are prevailing."

"As far as the reparation question is concerned," he said, "peace has come to stay."

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Bertha Strome, 49 years old, stepmother of Esta Strome, 14, of New Carlisle, who died suddenly Saturday under mysterious circumstances, was being held in the county jail here today while county authorities, aided by the police, continued their investigation into the mystery. Examination of the girl's stomach disclosed poison.

Mrs. Strome was questioned at length last night by Prosecutor O. L. McKinney and Sheriff Walter L. Lewis. Authorities have also started an investigation into the circumstances attending the death of Mrs. Strome's former husband, George Frock.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.

COTTON BELT "DEAL" NOT YET ABANDONED

Chairman Hayden of the Rock Island Says Cancellation of Notes Didn't Mean Defeat.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Cancellation of a $7,500,000 note issue sold by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway because of failure to obtain the Interstate Commerce Commission's approval will not deter the road from proceeding with its plans to acquire control of the St. Louis-Southwestern Railway, Charles Hayden, chairman of the Rock Island, announced today.

Although the notes were sold to finance the purchase of St. Louis-Southwestern stock, their withdrawal had no connection with the broad question of approval by the commission of the Rock Island's right to acquire control of the "Cotton Belt," Hayden asserted. The action was taken, he explained, because purchasers of the notes could not receive interest on them until the issue had been formally authorized by the I. C. C.

The Rock Island's expectation to obtain full control of the "Cotton Belt" is expected to be reviewed by the commission in November. If approval of the merger is denied, Wall street believes that control will then be bought by the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway, to which the "Cotton Belt" was allotted in the tentative consolidation program of the I. C. C.

E. N. Brown, chairman of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway, today said that no negotiations toward acquisition of the St. Louis-Southwestern were now pending. Tentative suggestions had been made in that direction some time ago, he said, but nothing had developed. He referred to the fact that the consolidation plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission allocated the "Cotton Belt" to the Frisco, declining, however, to indicate whether future affiliation of these two roads was likely.

Gould Says Note Withdrawal Is Mere Matter of Detail.

Edwin Gould of New York City, chairman of the Cotton Belt, was in St. Louis yesterday for the annual meeting of stockholders and directors. When asked about the withdrawal by the Rock Island of the $7,500,000 note issue, secured by a pledge of Cotton Belt stock now owned by the Rock Island, Gould said he considered this a matter of detail, caused by the delay of the Interstate Commerce Commission in acting on the Rock Island's application for authority to sell the notes. He said this has no bearing on the acquisition by the Rock Island of the Cotton Belt stock, which was consummated several months ago and was being financed satisfactorily in another manner.

The Rock Island, according to last reports, owns $14,926,000 of the Cotton Belt's total stock, $36,249,750.

$80,000 LOSS RESULTS FROM TORCH EXPLOSION

Furniture Finisher Knocked Over Torch When Trying to Put Out Fire on His Sleeve.

Fire resulting from the explosion of a benzine torch caused damage estimated at $80,000 to the building and contents of the National House Furnishing Co., Nineteenth and D streets, Granite City, yesterday afternoon.

Herman Meyer, a furniture finisher, was at work on the top floor of the building, a three-story brick structure, at 2:30 p. m., applying the torch to furniture in a finishing process, when his shirt sleeve became ignited. In attempting to extinguish the flames, Meyer knocked over the torch and it exploded.

Firemen summoned from Madison and Venice, along with two Granite City companies, confined the flames to the third floor and the damage resulted chiefly from water and smoke. The fire was under control within an hour. J. R. Hurwitz, manager of the concern, estimated the damage to the stock of furniture at $60,000. Elmer McNary, owner of the building, said the building damage was $20,000. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

With the exception of Meyer, who suffered burns on the arm, no one was injured in the blaze.

LEGION TO DISCUSS MITCHELL'S CHARGES

Contest Is Expected Regardless of Committee Reports on Air Service.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 7.—A decisive contest on the floor of the American Legion's seventh annual national convention as to the official attitude toward Col. William Mitchell, critic of the nation's air service, seems certain.

The Rev. Joe Mike Lonergan of Illinois, national chaplain of the legion, last night, was chosen by the Oregon delegation to take the place of the State's delegate at large who did not come to the convention. He is known to be a strong supporter of Col. Mitchell, and in the unusual action by the Oregon representatives some of the delegates professed to see a determined move toward a showdown on the Mitchell matter.

The Aeronautical Committee is expected to recommend that Col. Mitchell's recommendation for a unified air service under a separate cabinet officer be accorded the Legion's approval, but that the name of no person be mentioned.

Committees at Work.

After the gala occasion of yesterday when the legion laid aside its work to hear an address by President Coolidge and to march in a colorful four-mile parade before the chief executive, a perfunctory program was set for today with six addresses by high ranking army and navy officers and two civilians and three committee reports. That gave additional time for the committees to perfect their recommendations and for the delegations to draw their lines on the other important item, the election of officers.

The Time and Place Committee has decided unanimously to recommend that the 1926 convention go to Philadelphia.

C. E. Eskildson of Denver, was elected president of the Eighty-Ninth Division Veterans yesterday. The 1926 re-union will be held at St. Louis. The Rev. Stewart Long, Richmond, Ind., was named chaplain.

Floridians Led Parade.

The parade yesterday was two hours and 40 minutes passing. Heading the line, by virtue of its greatest increase in membership last year, was the delegation from Florida. Nebraska was second. But both were far outnumbered by the Iowa and Wisconsin men and women. Bands, drum corps, floats, clowns and civilians made up the long line. Iowa, with its great mass of men, each bearing a cornstalk and shouting Iowa's "national anthem," "That's Where the Tall Corn Grows," held a place in the parade nearly 30 minutes. President Coolidge was saluted by the lifting of a veritable forest of corn stalks.

Massachusetts had an impressive delegation in the line. They wore purple collegiate caps and gowns. Mrs. Coolidge applauded vigorously as the Massachusetts men and women filed by singing the State song. The Vermont marchers were few, but President Coolidge beamed as they passed.

Your Child's Laxative! Does It Regulate for Weeks?

Does the laxative you now give your baby or child promote regularity for weeks and often for months—or must you "purge" and "physic" the little one every little while to keep the system clean, fresh and sweet?

Even a cross, feverish, sick baby or child will love the taste of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and one dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even if the child was heretofore chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement, but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary.

SAYS RACE DOMINATION WOULD RESULT IN WAR

(Copyright, 1925.)

EAST BOURNE, England, Oct. 7.—The only practical solution of the race problem is "to treat all colored men in a spirit of absolute equality," Viscount Willingdon, former Governor of Bombay, declared in an address today before the Anglican church congress.

It was imperative, he said, that the question should be solved peacefully and not by a clash of the races, which would be "the most ghastly tragedy the world has ever known."

Dealing with the same problem, J. H. Oldham, world traveler and secretary of the International Missionary Council, said a keen student of Asiatic affairs had significantly remarked to him that although there was nothing whatever in common between the Moslems and bolshevists, many leading Moslems were throwing their lot in with bolshevism. This was solely because they felt that the bolshevists treated them as equals, while the western nations did not.

FORCED TO DO HOUSEWORK

John C. Beck yesterday filed suit to divorce Mrs. Mabel Beck, 4339 Olive street, alleging among other general indignities that she compelled him to assist her with household duties, such as washing dishes, after he had done a hard day's work. He also charges she refused to get breakfast for him and would scold him if he dropped sawdust, matches or cigar ashes in the house.

According to the petition plaintiff was forced to do as his wife commanded as he was "fearful of a tongue-lashing" if he did not obey. On July 1 last she accepted employment downtown, although her husband amply provided for the household and furnished her with sufficient "pin money," the petition states. They were married June 19, 1921, and separated a week ago.

Firestone

Why Gum-Dipping is so Important to Car Owners

GUM-DIPPING—the Firestone extra process builds into tires extra quality by impregnating and insulating every fiber of every cord with rubber.

This exclusive method is carried out in special Gum-Dipping plants, after which the cords are put through the usual calendering process.

By this method, added strength and flexibility are imparted to the cords, making Gum-Dipped Balloons most serviceable and enduring over rough roads.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

FRANCES.—Consult Shakespeare's works at the Public Library.

THANK YOU. — A safety device which has a good working value could probably be sold. We could not advise you in such a matter.

A. H. K.—Veterinarians are listed in the classified section of the city and telephone directories; inquire among them for the information desired.

MARGARET. — Perhaps your milk is not fresh, otherwise we know of no reason why the custard would curdle since you say you follow the recipe.

FRANKS.—Rules on card games can be seen at the Public Library free of charge or if you care to buy a book on cards, you can obtain one at any of the book shops or department stores.

THANK YOU.—See the answer to Thank You, which appeared in this column on Sept. 29 for preserving flowers and changing their color. Consult reliable furniture dealers regarding furnishings for the room.

A READER OF DISPATCH.—Irvin S. Cobb, celebrated American humorist, is not dead. In denying such a report of his death, Cobb, in a letter to the New York World, sent from Paducah, Ky., and dated Dec. 29, 1924, wrote as follows: "I hate to disappoint anyone, but the Chicago report that I am dead is, so far as I can learn, entirely unfounded."

E. A. L. — To keep new cider from fermentation, powdered wood charcoal in the ratio of a pint to a barrel is recommended. Cider should be stored in a cool place. Bulk cider should be kept especially cool, otherwise it is likely to sour after being tapped. At a temperature of about 75 degrees F. it will gradually become vinegar. The use of preservatives in cider made for beverage purposes is undesirable and is unnecessary if it is carefully made and barreled or bottled and stored under favorable conditions.

A. A. T.—A simple remedy for damp walls is to apply a size made of India rubber, applying it with a broad brush in a uniform layer, about eight to 10 inches higher than the wall appears damp, then cover with size paint or wall paper and plaster. This size, which can be prepared from rubber hose, which is liquefied by heating, adheres equally well to all surfaces, stone, glass, metal or wood. Another coating for damp walls is prepared as follows: Dissolve 30 parts of tin in 40 parts of hydrochloric acid and add 30 parts of sal ammoniac; prepare a powder of 50 parts freestone, 20 parts zinc oxide, 15 parts pounded glass, 10 parts powdered marble, 5 parts calcined magnesia, and make this into a paste with the above mentioned liquid. Coloring matter may be added if desired. This composition may be used as a damp-proof coating for wall or for repairing stonework or for molding statues or ornaments.

ASTRONOMY.—Ursa Minor (Little Bear) is situated between Cassiopeia and the Great Bear. The Polar Star is its brighest gem. Ursa Major (Great Bear) resembles a great dipper. The two stars in the cup, on the side opposite to the handle, are called the "pointers" because they point towards the Polar Star. Luriga (The Charioteer) is a short distance east of Perseus and north of Pleiades. Capella is its brightest star. Perseus is a part of the Great Square of Pegasus. Taurus (The Bull) contains the two remarkable clusters, Pleiades and Hyades. A line from the Pleiades through Alderaran and continuing south will almost pass through the middle of Orion. Pisces (the Fishes) lies betwen Pegasus and Fomalhaut. Gemini (The Twins) lies a short distance north by west from the Bee Hive. Hercules lies between Vega and Corona. Pegasus, called the Great Square of Pegasus, with Andromeda and Perseus form a group of seven stars resembling very much the Great Bear. Aries (The Ram) lies just east of the Pleiades. Cepheus is found between Cassiopeia and the Polar Star. Vega is in the Constellation of the Harp and is one of the brightest stars in the northern heavens. A line from Arcturus through the brightest star of Corona, and continued easterly, will touch Vega.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

B. H. W.—The Health Department has a regulation requiring owners of dogs to keep them muzzled or held on a leash when on the street. Report violations to the Health Department or to the police.

N. C. G.—You can be held liable for the full amount of the note which you signed. Your wages can be garnished after a judgment has been obtained. However, if you are the head of a family only 10 per cent of your wages can be garnished.

A READER.—The disposition of the property depends upon whether the widow elected to take a child's share of the estate in lieu of dower, or not. If she did she can will it as she pleases. If she took dower, then she has merely a life estate in the real estate, which ceases at her death.

A STEADY SUBSCRIBER.—The right of the husband to claim part of the property which he has signed over to his wife for the support of his children would depend upon the circumstances. Probably the court would order that the property be held for the support of the children, as he conveyed it for that purpose.

E. J. W.—If the man held the check for longer than a reasonable time before presenting it for payment, then if the bank failed it would be his loss. Just what is a reasonable time is a question of degree, a month might be, but it probably would not be considered as such. This would depend upon the circumstances.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

MRS. B. B.—The condition of the heart should be ascertained before any change of residence is made. Lower California, New Mexico and Arizona are places which may be considered for the disease.

STELLA.—We believe that it is possible for you to obtain relief under the care of a competent orthopedic surgeon. If you wish a list of competent men from which to choose make such a request enclosing a stamped addressed envelope for reply.

Wondered Why Breath Was so Bad

Brooklyn. Miss Rose Dittmar writes:—"Even though I brushed my teeth and used a mouth wash, my friends turned away when I talked and I wondered why my breath was so offensive, while people less careful were not troubled at all. After taking Carter's Little Liver Pills for a while the trouble started to disappear. I also noticed my face had better color and was clearer, my eyes brighter, my appetite more hearty and I had no constipation. Now I can see that bad breath comes from the stomach." Bad breath can only be dismissed temporarily. You must reach the source of the trouble. All druggists, 25c, red packages.

JOE HARRIS' HOMER, IN SECOND, WAS DRIVE INTO EMERGENCY STAND

Cuyler Would Have Caught Ball in an Ordinary League Tilt

By J. Roy Stockton,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 7.—Pittsburgh baseball fans gathered early today for the first game of the 1925 world series between the Senators and Pirates and it was just the kind of a gathering one would expect to see in a city where the populace had been acquiring an appetite for a title series for 16 years.

Early last night the prospective bleacher occupants formed a line outside the gates and this morning, long before game time every seat in the $1.10 sections was occupied. Even the $5.50 reserved seat patrons turned out earlier than in blase New York, where a world series is only of passing interest, or in Washington, where important gatherings are frequent.

An hour before game time, the stands appeared to be jammed as full as they could be jammed, but the gateway to the park showed streams of people still pouring into the park.

With perfect weather prevailing for the opening game there was no change in the battle plans of either manager and announcement was made early that Walter Johnson, the great right-hander of the Washington staff, would pitch against Henry Lee Meadows, the Pittsburg hurler, who wears glasses. Muddy Ruel, a St. Louis boy, was the Washington catcher, with Earl Smith, formerly a Giant, behind the plate for the Pirates.

Teams Impressive in Practice.

Charlie Rigler, National League umpire, was assigned to work behind the plate. The other umpires were Brick Owens, American League, first base; Barry McCormick, National League, second base, and George Moriarty, American League, at third base.

Both teams made impressive showing in the batting practice and there were roars of applause when the Pirate batters banged the ball into the bleachers. Later when the Senators went to bat and the sluggers from the capital bombarded the sunseats, the applause was tempered with a bit of worry.

The Pirates, being the entertaining team today, wore their white at home uniforms and Barney Dreyfuss, the king of certified checks, had the boys all dolled up in new clothes. The Senators, garbed in their traveling gray, also sported new toggery for the festive occasion.

Traynor Makes Fine Play.

The stands, unusually silent for a world series gathering, warmed up as the Pirates ran onto the field and Umpire Rigler called play ball.

The spectators who had sat silently as baseball notables such as Judge Landis, Walter Johnson, Manager Bill McKechnie, Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb appeared on the field, cheered lustily as Glenn Wright took a grounder from Sam Rice's bat and tossed him out for the first play of the game. There was a still greater cheer when Pie Traynor made a fine stop of Bucky Harris' nasty hopper near the third-base line and retired the runner with a rifle-like throw. Goslin was just as easy for Meadows, being retired on a grounder to Grantham.

Walter Johnson also hurled impressively in the first inning. Moore sent a short fly to Rice. Then Johnson hit Max Carey with a pitch. The Pirate appeared to be injured, but stayed in the game. After the inning he was treated by the club physician.

He tried to steal second, but was out on a close play, Ruel to Peckinpaugh. Johnson then ended the inning spectacularly by striking out the great 'Kiki" Cuyler, the Pirate swinging at a curve on the outside corner.

Lucky Homer for Harris.

The first hit of the game probably would not have been a hit at all in an ordinary league game. It was a line drive to right-center off the bat of J. Harris. But with the temporary stands cutting down the playing area the ball hit in the front row of the emergency seats and was good for a home run. The ball bounded back onto the playing field and Harris was held at second until the umpires decided that ground rules made a circuit drive out of the hit. Cuyler undoubtedly would have caught the ball on a clear field.

Joe Judge nipped a rally for the Pirates in their half of the second inning. Barnhardt started the inning with a fly to center, after which Traynor smashed a single to right. Glenn Wright then sent a smash toward right field, but Judge stuck out his glove and grabbed the bounder on the hop. He threw to Peck and it would have been a double play, but Peck fumbled the ball. Peck fell headlong, however, and keeping his foot on the bag he recovered in time to force Traynor at second. Grantham ended the inning by striking out.

Ruel Robbed of a Hit.

"Pie" Traynor had the honor of making the first spectacular fielding play of the series. In the third inning he made a fine catch of a whistling low liner from Muddy Ruel's bat. The stands roared their appreciation of the fine play. Walter Johnson then grounded to Wright and Sam Rice singled to right only to be caught napping on a snap throw from Meadows to Grantham.

After Smith had flied to J. Harris to start the Pirate half of the third, Johnson walked Meadows, a notoriously weak hitter, but nothing came of it, as Peck turned Moore's grounder into a double play, stepping on second to force Meadows and tossing to Judge to double Moore.

A more brilliant double play pulled Meadows out of a precarious position in the fourth inning. Lee hit Stanley Harris with a pitched ball to start the inning. Goslin connected solidly with one of Meadows' curves and sent a low liner toward right. Grantham took a dive for the ball and held it. He then ran to first to double Harris off the bag. Grantham was a bit excited by the play and started off the field, thinking there were three out. Judge ended the inning with a grounder to Moore.

Johnson appeared to be improving as the game progressed. He struck out Carey to start the fourth, the Pirate taking three called strikes. Cuyler then bounced a single over Johnson's head, but his speed got him into trouble, for he took too big a lead off first and was trapped off the bag on Ruel's fine throw to Judge. Cuyler was run down, Ruel to Judge to Peck to Judge to Harris, and Johnson then whipped over a third called strike on Barnhart.

Meadows Strikes Out Two.

J. Harris opened the fifth inning with a scratch single, a slow grounder which Wright could not reach in time to make a throw to first. Bluege then singled to left and Peck's Texas Leaguer to the same field filled the bases.

Meadows demonstrated his courage and ability under fire by striking out Ruel and Johnson. He also had two strikes on Rice, but the outfielder connected with the next one and bounced a single over second base, scoring J. Harris and Bluege, giving the Senators a lead of 3 to 0. After the three singles, Johnny Morrison started to warm up in the bull pen, but when Ruel and Johnson struck out, Morrison returned to the bench. Stanley Harris ended the rally by grounding to Traynor.

New York Bettors Make Pirates Slight Choice Over Rivals

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.

Pittsburg is still the favorite, but the odds were 11 to 10 instead of 6 to 5. Two wagers of $5000 each were made at the former price yesterday, to say nothing of many others of smaller amounts.

The reason for this change was due to the fact that a lot of Washington money suddenly made its appearance.

Several wagers were made at 6 to 5 that the Pirates would win the opening game.

Smith, Pirates' Catcher, Studies Senator Batters

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1925.)

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 7.—The Pirates got a good look at their American League adversaries from Washington before the rain began to fall yesterday. The Senators looked good in practice, but they didn't throw any appreciable fear into the Pirate hearts. Pittsburg, from club owner down to the smallest bleacher seat patron, expects to "cop" this series.

Just saying that Washington looked good in practice isn't sufficient. They looked mighty good. In fact, they looked better than they did a year ago when they were limbering up for the Giants.

In the clubhouse, Manager Bucky Harris exhibited the finger that had been spiked a few days ago. A long crescent cut, still angrily red, but healed perfectly. Bucky pressed it and said most of the soreness had gone. It is doubtful if the cut would open if hit by the ball. Yet the joint has swelled some and might affect Harris' accuracy were he called on to make a hurried throw. However, Harris may not get a play in the series that will embarrass him.

Smith Studies Senators.

Roger Peckinpaugh displayed an ankle bandaged from heel to instep and back again. "I don't fear anything," he said, "that bandage is my insurance."

Perhaps the most interested spectator of Washington's practice was Smith, the Pirate catcher. Goslin came to bat and hit one down into right field.

Rice came up and rapped a stinger. "He don't get anything centered over the plate while I'm catching," muttered the Pirate receiver.

Joe Judge tried for the right field stand and hit it on the bround. "No pitching for him where he can pull the ball," vowed Smith.

Bluege lifted a nice, low looper over the shortstop's head. "They say he did that in the last series," recalled Smith. "We'll make him hit toward right field if we can."

"These birds sure can hit," Smith continued his soliloquy. "They need study." And study them he did, up one side and down the other.

PLANS FOR MISSOURI U. STADIUM COMPLETE, BREWER ANNOUNCES

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 7.—Completion of all financial and physical plans for the new University of Missouri Memorial Stadium and complete approval of the project by the Board of Curators of the university was announced today by C. L. Brewer, director of athletics.

The first unit of the new structure, which is to be completed by Sept. 1, 1926, will seat 26,000 persons, and additional units will be built as the need for increased seating capacity becomes evident until a final capacity of more than 38,000 is reached, according to Mr. Brewer. The first unit is to cost $300,000, and contracts will be let as soon as possible, so that blasting and grading can be carried on throughout the winter.

The stadium is to be built in a natural ravine, with approximately half the seats below and half the seats above the surface. Entrance will be through portals on a level with the outside ground. The first unit will consist of the lower half of each side of the stadium. Next, plans call for construction of the upper half then the closing of one end and finally the building of an upper deck on each side of the field.

Rosenberg Cancels Bout.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 7.—Charles (Phil) Rosenberg, bantamweight boxing champion of the world, has called off his scheduled match with Sammy Sandow of this city. The bout was to have been held at Dayton, Ky., next Monday night. Fear that he might hurt his hands was given as the champion's reason for deciding not to fight Sandow.

Aldridge Will Be Pirates' Best Pitcher, Wagner Says

Former Star Cites Righthander's String of Victories at End of Season as Proof That He Is at Top Form—Staff Steadier Than That of 1909.

By Hans Wagner.
Shortstop on Pittsburg's World's Champions of 1909.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—If it had not been for Babe Adams, the Pirates of 1909 would have lost the world's series to the Detroit Tigers. Everybody who was a fan in those days remembers the mighty important part which the Missouri lad played in that engagement.

WAGNER.

Pittsburg faced the great post-season clash in a bad way for twirlers. We had plenty on the roster, but——. Well, there was no prohibition amendment to the United States Constitution in those days, no Volstead law and some ball players did like some other folks. They didn't think quite so much about business as they did about pleasure.

At any rate, we went to that series with our twirling department pretty well shot. I remember how much figuring Fred Clarke did before the fire game, trying to dope out the best man to use against Hughey Jennings' crew.

The 1909 Pitching Staff.

Our pitchers in 1909 included Vic Willis, Howard Camnitz, Nick Maddox, "Deacon" Phillippe, "Lefty" Leifield and Sam Leever. Leever and Phillippe had both been on the team for years, being members of the pennant-winning outfit of earlier years.

Like Sam and the Deacon, the others were pretty well worn out, except Adams, even though they they hadn't been in the league as long as Leever and Phillippe. Most of them passed on before the dawn of the next season, Manager Clarke realizing that he had to have new pitching blood to carry on.

Comparing the artillery corps of 1909 with that of 1925, it looks to me as if the present day staff is much the steadier and more dependable.

McKechnie hasn't any real outstanding twirlers—that is, he hasn't any single man who looms up as the best pitcher of the year. But he has a flock of men who have delivered the goods consistently.

Lee Meadows has had the best year of his career. Meadows ought to go strong against the Senators, but I have a hunch that Vic Aldridge is going to be McKechnie's one best pitching bet. He is possibly just a bit fresher at this stage than is Meadows.

Expects Much of Aldridge.

Aldridge has come down the stretch like a well-trained race horse. He got off to a rather mediocre start, due entirely to the fact that he hadn't had any spring training. He had some sort of a dispute before he signed his contract, and passed up the training trip.

The result was that it took several weeks for him to get into condition to do his best work. Once he came around right, though, he was a winner, and the long string of straight victories he piled up toward the close of the campaign is indication enough to me that he is at his best, and that he will prove a tough nut for the Senators to crack.

I imagine McKechnie is figuring on using about three pitchers in the big series, unless called upon by circumstances to use more. I suppose Aldridge, Meadows and Kremer will probably be his starters. They say that Washington punishes left-handers, so Emil Yde may not get a chance to work against them.

As far as catchers go, I think George Gibson was a more valuable man than any man on the present staff. Gibby caught 150 games for us in 1909, and you can't beat a steady plugger like that. He was in his prime then, a glutton for work, and always on the job. He wasn't a great hitter, and he wasn't as fast as Gooch, but he was a great man to work with pitchers, and he had a lot to do with what Babe Adams accomplished against the Tigers.

Cobb Picks Washington To Win on Experienc

Points to Coveleskie as a Great World Series Hurler—E pects Meadows and Yde to Shine in Box for Pirates.

By Ty Cobb.
Manager of the Detroit Tigers.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct 7.—Eliminating all bias because of ciation with the American League, I think Washington will win world's series on account of being world-series experienced. Al because of their great record during the season, when they did not slump once. Also because of the age and experience of ball club as a whole, which gets us back to the main idea— they are able to do their stuff under the tighest possible con

Coupled with all this, they have a great world series pitcher in Coveleskie. They have also Johnson, who has been through the fire of experience.

COBB.

Another man that I expect to have success against the Pirates, if he is used, is Ferguson. I think his style of pitching will be particularly effective. Zachary, also, should give the Pirates trouble, if he has control.

I don't look for Manager Bucky Harris to use Ruether to start a game. Johnson might have trouble getting by wtih his fast ball.

An Allround Good Team.

Now, back of these pitchers there is a stone-wall infield and a great catcher in Ruel. These men will absolutely not let a pitcher go very badly wrong.

Another great thing in their favor, Washington has very capable and experienced substitutes. Now, with Manager Harris in the game as the strong link in their defense and also the great moral effect his presence would carry, the Senators will prove a tough team to beat. If Harris is not in the game, there might be a good chance of the Pirates winning, for there is no doubt about their ability, defensively and offensively.

Many might lay great stress upon the Pirates' wonderful speed. It is my opinion that this asset will have very little effect in the world series. If it is used and they get away with it, it will be after they have scored enough runs to win, anyhow. You will find Ruel a very fine catcher with a fine arm.

I doubt seriously if there ever was a world series won by stealing bases. One thing all the readers should remember is that very few ball clubs that have won have done so with medioc ing. Look back at your winners and you will find catchers and real second-base binations, such as the Washing club boasts.

Even if Manager Harris not be in the game, don't thi is going to be a runaway, for Washington club has backed very little in the last two years has that thing managers seek ball club—balance and ence. Washington has a good fense, good defense and lots of perience.

I look for Meadows and Y have success. I base this abs ly on dope. I look for Covel Johnson and Ferguson to be cessful for Washington.

In closing, I want to say am not posing as the final aut ty on the question of this series. I am merely hazarding guess and all you readers real we all have a right to a g Yours might be just as good mine, but there is one significa fact: Just before the penn race was decided for Pittsburg, St. Louis Nationals gave them sound drubbing and since it w decided, the Giants took them to camp. On the other hand, Washi has steered a straight cour right on through and kept play up to their fine stand

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Wilbert Robinson made his first big deal yesterday to strengthen the Robins for the 1926 National League pennant race. He traded Jimmy Johnston, veteran infielder; Eddie Brown, outfielder, and Zach Taylor, catcher, to the Boston Braves for Jesse Barnes, pitcher; Gus Felix, outfielder, and Mickey O'Neil, catcher. No cash was involved in the transaction.

The news of the first trade of the winter season does not come as a surprise, for it was rumored about Ebbets' Field last Sunday that Brown was going to the Boston club for Felix and that Robbie was ready to talk trade for any player on his club with the exception of Dazzy Vance, Zach Wheat and Jack Fournier. The passing of Taylor will be regretted in a way as he had a good year and finished the season with a batting average of .309. O'Neil caught in 70 games and batted only .261.

But Barnes was the player Robbie wanted most and to get the slender pitcher he had to inject Taylor into the deal. The trade dates back to the time when the Brooklyn team asked waivers on Andy High so that they could send him to the Boston club. At that time the Boston club promised Robbie a pitcher for the little infielder.

AILEEN GUY WINNER IN KENTUCKY FUTURITY VALUED AT $14,000

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 7.—Aileen Guy, driven by Ben White, won the $14,000 Kentucky Futurity here yesterday in featureless style. In each heat she was the winner without apparent effort, having a most comfortable margin over Guy Ozark. It was White's fourth victory in the stake and the third one in four years. The first heat was trotted in 2:03¾. The last heat of the second was trotted in 1:00¾, final quarter in 29 seconds. She was not driven out in either heat.

The big surprise came in the 2:12 pace, in which Miss Czar Moko was an overwhelming favorite but in which the Canadian mare, Jean Grattan, was first in each heat. The second round paced in 2:17¼ is the world's record for pacers for the distance. Braden Ruler was second, the favorite dropping back to third. The consistent trotter, Oscawanna, was easily best of the 2:06 trot.

PLAYING SECRETS OF Famous Football Stars

No. 13—ELMER OLIPHANT

(Halfback, West Point)

HE WOULD TWIST AWAY FROM A "ONE-LEG" TACKLE
OLIPHANT RAN WITH LEGS WIDE APART— THE HARDEST TYPE TO TACKLE

ELMER OLIPHANT.
BY ED THORPE.

OLIPHANT is generally placed first in the list of West Point gridiron heroes. Almost single-handed he defeated the Army's ancient rivals from Annapolis every year he was at the Military Academy.

Oliphant was short and stocky. He had an unusual style of running, spreading his legs and revolving his body so that opponents could not make a sure tackle. While he represented the Cadets, Oliphant was never down by both legs in a front tackle.

Here's how the former West Point star describes his playing style, which has few equals in the annals of football:

"Like Ty Cobb, was always thinking ahead. Never worried about the man nearest me about to make the tackle. I had already figured out how I would get past him. Before reaching the first man, would be planning how to elude the second man and so on down the field.

"After breaking through the line would frequently change pace, cut in or reverse the field. Spreading my legs and revolving body was a big help, as opponents invariably would only grab one leg and many times it would be possible to slip from the grip. Once in the open, would mix up everything. I had to confuse the opponents."

Oliphant made his greatest reputation as a halfback but before going to West Point played end on his high school team and freshmen eleven at Purdue. His offensive strength was so apparent that Oliphant was transferred to the backfield and developed quickly in his new position.

Soccer League Opens Sunday

Three Managers Report All Star Players Signed, Ready for Action.

The threat of a strike of players in the St. Louis Soccer League apparently will not materialize. The opening double-header of the season, scheduled for Sunday at St. Louis U. Field, will be held as advertised for all four managers have been successful in their efforts to line up a full team.

Manager Foley of the Ben Millers has had greatest difficulty and it is probable that he will be forced to present a somewhat altered battle front. The others report every star signed up and ready to play.

Manager Ratican of the Pants team has added two Englishmen to his roster, Martin and Edward Towey, a fullback and a center halfback. His regulars of last season, with the exception of Brannon, center forward, are ready to play. Manager Brady of the Wellstons and Manager McCarthy of the Vespers have all their men in line.

Craddock to Referee.

John Craddock, for several years one of the leading soccer and baseball arbiters of the Municipal Athletic Association, will be the referee in Sunday's double-header. Robert "Ribby" Murphy, veteran player of the Ben Millers, and Charles Carey, also formerly of the Ben Miller team under Pete Ratican, will be the linesmen and on the following Sunday Murphy will be the referee and Carey will follow him.

The first game is scheduled to start at 2:15 o'clock and the halves will be of 35 minutes. The Ben Millers and Vespers are scheduled to meet in the second game and the Wellston and Pants teams in the first.

Billikens Expect To Give Iowa U. A Real Struggle

Gridiron Battle at Iowa City Saturday May Favorably Surprise St. Louisans.

It is the general opinion around St. Louis University that, given a hard dry field, the heavy and fast Billiken backfield may spring something of a surprise when they oppose Iowa at Iowa City Saturday afternoon, in spite of the 26-0 trimming Arkansas suffered at the hands of the Western Conference team last week.

Certain it is that the St. Louis backfield will outweigh the Hawkeye backs and, according to men who scouted the Arkansas-Iowa contest, are faster on getting started. The advantage in the backfield will be overbalanced, or more than overbalanced, by the bulk of the Iowa line which averages 190 pounds, while the Billiken wall is mostly new and not especially bulky. The systematic tutoring of the erudite Harvey Brown, and it is actually tutoring, has worked wonders with the linemen, however, and it will not be an altogether green barrier that faces the Iowans.

Team's Ends Dependable.

The ends are another strong feature of the local aggregation. It would be hard to go back into Billiken history, one particularly noted for its hard-playing wingmen, and find a time when four better ends were available than Stanton, Kahle, Fitzgerald and Sweeney. All are experienced, quick-thinking players and it takes great interference to get around them. Their tackling is hard and sure. Tackling, incidentally, is one department of the game on which the entire team needs little brushing up. It is one of the best tackling teams in years.

Rain Halts Workouts.

Heavy rain prevented a tryout yesterday of the Billiken defense against the Iowa plays which have been learned by the freshmen. Practice was held under the grandstand, Savage drilling the backfield and Brown putting the linemen through their regular classes in blocking and charging. The postponed defensive exhibition will take place this afternoon.

The "Billiken Special," a Burlington train which has been chartered by students and alumni, will leave Union Station Friday night at 9 o'clock, arriving in Iowa City in ample time for the game. Tickets will be available at the gate or can be reserved by calling Frank Kennedy at Central 1370. The special price is $10.75 for the round trip.

Last practice will be held by the team tomorrow and the players will entrain for the field of battle in the evening and work out on the Iowa field the following afternoon.

Pirates' Great Hitting Will Decide Series, McKechnie Says

By William C. McKechnie,
Manager Pittsburg Pirates, 1925 National League Champions.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—The opening day of this series will be one of the happiest days of my life. I have been waiting 20 years for this event. The Pirate team meets the Senators in the first world series game in Pittsburg since 1909.

My prediction is that the Pirates will win this series after a hard battle. It is going to be a battle between two courageous, capable ball clubs. I figure that the heavy attacking power of my club will outweigh any factor that might point to a Washington victory.

Last night I had a talk with my players and anyone attending that meeting could not do anything but come away with a feeling that our boys are set for a victory. They have ability, confidence, gameness, speed, hitting power, coolness, steadiness and brilliance, to help in their defensive work.

My team is going to play the same kind of ball in the series it played throughout the season. The players will be in their natural stride. Our strategy will depend on the circumstances. Our club is adapted to any kind of a game. If we need a stolen base, we usually get it; if we need a bunt, that can be done, and there are eight men in that lineup liable to crash that ball out of the ball park at any time at all.

Predicts Low Scores.

My pitchers are in the best of condition. Every one of them is rarin' to go. I believe that the series, on account of the excellent pitching boasted by the Senators all season and by the form my pitchers have shown in last-minute workouts, will be a nip and tuck affair. I look for low scores—pitchers' battles—all the way. The team that gets the jump in a short series like this is going to have a big edge. With that in mind, my club is ready to go into this series and throw everything they have into every play. Our reserve strength is good. We can make several shifts that will keep our club at par, even if one of the men gets hurt.

It ought to be a great fight because a heavy attacking force is going to be pitted against a great defensive unit. The Washington pitchers have shown remarkable stuff all year, but on the other hand, the heavy attacking Pirates, with their daring speed, have mowed down pitching just as good as Washington can offer. All I ask the baseball fates for is an even share of the breaks and to have my pitchers at their best form.

Washington is going to have a great team with individual stars on the field. The Pirates are going to show the best third baseman since the days of Jimmy Collins. I refer to Pie Traynor. They will show you the kind of shortstop that for a time was almost extinct. I mean Wright. They will show you the best base-runner in baseball—Carey, and in Cuyler you will see one of the greatest arms that ever graced a world series spectacle. I could go down the whole line anl say something about every Pirate on the club, but space will not permit.

You will see two great ball clubs in what I believe will be the most brilliant and colorful world series ever played. May the best team win.

Deberry to Face Baltimore Today

Thomas or Earnshaw to Pitch for Dunn in Fifth Series Game.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 7. — With the game count standing two-all, the Baltimore International League champions and the Louisville Colonels, title holders in the American Association, today will resume hostilities for the minor league baseball championship.

Following final workouts at Oriole Park yesterday, Joe McCarthy, manager of the Kentuckians, announced that his ace, DeBerry, will take the mound. Jack Dunn's choice is expected to fall between Thomas and Earnshaw.

The two teams stand in the same position as in 1921, when Louisville was the Dunnmen's opponent in the junior series. In that year also the teams began play at Oriole Park with two games each to their credit. The Orioles divided the next four games and then wilted, the Colonels taking the deciding contest.

POLARINE maintains a film of oil between all frictional surfaces, seals full compression, and gives your engine a velvety, resilient action. This means marvelous motor flexibility and a frictionless response which makes driving a sheer delight.

This unbroken Polarine film, while it is tough and resistant to pressure and heat—yet acts as a cushion for moving parts—is the supreme achievement in modern lubricating science, accomplished after years of labor by technologists of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The Polarine film means scientific protection of your motor parts—provided, of course, that you use the right grade of Polarine specified for your car, in the chart above, and drain and refill your crankcase every 500 miles. RAJAH AND CHILD'S PLAY IN FEATURE EVENTS AT FAIRMOUNT TODAY

Recent Victors To Be Rivals In Fourth Race

Hullo, Wedding Prince, Antiquity and Attoo May Crowd Rajah.

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK, Collinsville, Ill., Oct. 7.—Chilly winds, and a threat of rain held the attendance to less than 5000 on the occasion of the tenth day of racing at the new Fairmount plant this afternoon. The track was muddy, but there was no surface water.

Rajah, three time winner in four starts on the local track, is favored to win the feature event of today's program at the Fairmount Race Track. The race is a one-mile affair for four-year-olds and up at one mile and it is called "The St. Louis Star Purse," with $1200 added.

A. P. "Tony" Foley's Child's Play, which failed to get into the money in his only previous start here, heads the list of six good horses entered in the fifth race, the "Belleville Handicap," at six furlongs, with $1500 added. Child's Play will carry top weight, 105 pounds.

No Sure Thing Here.

In addition to Rajah, in the fourth, there will be Hullo, Antiquity, Wedding Prince and Attoo, all former winners at Fairmount, which fact seems to assure a great race and a close finish.

In the fifth, Tony Foley's horse, to win, will have to beat the following: The World, Fanny de Coursy, Doctor Glenn and others. It looks like a tough assignment.

The sixth brings out a great field in Wrackhorn, Ramkin, Mercutio, and others, while the seventh promises to bring out a duel between Al Stebler and Gayly, with Kent L. likely to set the pace at one time or another.

Handicappers Call Turn.

The track handicappers, who have been hitting the nail on the head ever since Fairmount opened, had another good day, yesterday. Their choice for first, second or third, came into the money in every race except the seventh. In the first, they finished first and second; in the second, two were in the money; in the third, two again placed; in the fourth only one, Captain Seth, supported their judgment; in the fifth, two horses placed; in the sixth, one, but in the seventh, they were all out of the money.

Two Plus Two Equals Four.

The accuracy with which track handicappers forecast the result might lead a casual track follower to believe they had "inside information" but as a matter of fact their judgment is based purely on the past performances. They are, in a sense, mathematicians and some of the greatest handicappers in the country seldom look at a race.

Pays 60 Cents for $2.

One of the shortest prices of the meeting was paid yesterday on Captain Seth, winner of the fourth race, the Rotary Club Purse. The Captain was quoted at 1 to 5 in the preliminary betting and actually paid 60 cents profit on a $2 bet.

Strange Mutuel Odds.

One of the strange results of the mutuel system, whereby odds are arrived at through a mathematical comparison of sums bet on each horse with the amount bet on the entire race, was on display yesterday when General Ginockio, finishing second in the first race, paid $10.70 for a show ticket and only $10.20 on a place ticket.

Tommie Won Some Friends.

Sentimental Tommie, B. F. McClain's 5-year-old gelding, was an easy winner in his first start at Fairmount, yesterday. He is a big horse with a long body and in many respects different in appearance from the ordinary type of race horse but, withal, very sturdy looking. Garner was on him yesterday.

Garner today will ride at Omaha, Ben A. Jones having selected him to take care of Prince Til Til in the $3000 stake race there.

Geving Returns to Saddle.

Jockey Lloyd Geving, the first-string rider of the Harned Brothers Stable, returns to the saddle today after a five-day layoff. He was one of the leaders before his suspension, had a very good record at Coney Island track before coming here, and is expected to get his share of winners during the remainder of the meeting.

Geis Named Captain.

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 7.—Clarence Geis of Enid, Ok., was elected captain of the University of Illinois wrestling team for the coming season here last night. Geis, a middleweight, succeeds A. E. Mathis, captain-elect, who is now coaching the Washington and Lee mat team. Coach Paul Prehn has started active practice with a squad of 50 varsity candidates, including but four "I" men.

County Football Elevens to Be Busy This Week

Six Games Are Scheduled to Be Decided Friday and Saturday.

Six games this week end, three Friday and a like number Saturday, will find seven of the County High School football teams in action. Friday, Normandy plays at Washington (Mo.) High School; University City tackles Chaminade on the Pershing Field, and Webster battles Benld (Ill.) on the county field. Saturday, Maplewood goes to St. Charles to open its schedule; Clayton and Ritenour clash on the Davis Field and Kirkwood and Edwardsville (Ill.) mix at Kirkwood.

Ritenour, Normandy, University City and Maplewood will be playing their opening games. Webster owns a 19 to 6 victory over East St. Louis and has downed Cleveland, 8 to 6.

Kirkwood dropped a 12 to 6 decision to Staunton (Ill.) in the first game of the season two weeks ago.

Webster Outweighs Benld.

The game between Benld and Webster is expected to be close. It will be Benld's first battle. Webster will have a weight advantage.

Little can be said of University City, champions of last year. There are few veterans back. Capt. Leyhe and Lamotte Jenkins are the only two players assured of their positions. The remaining positions will be filled by comparatively green men.

Normandy and Ritenour will be put to a severe test. Normandy will be playing on a strange field, opposed by a first-class team. Clayton showed enough fight to down the heavy Christian Brothers College elven, 2 to 0, last Monday.

Maplewood, too is of the unknown quantity. Coach Wahlbrink has been loathe to say what he thinks of the team, but the men who compose the squad are for the most part veterans from last year. The Blue and White will lineup Saturday with such men as Capt. MacClanahan, quarterback; Mutschler, half; Kimmeil, half; Marvin, fullback; Timm, "All-Star" center, and Gusoskey, tackle, all from 1924.

Fairmount Workouts.

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK, COLLINSVILLE, Ill., Oct. 7.—Workouts were few over a muddy track at Fairmount Park this morning. In contrast with Monday, when horsemen flocked to the oval to make up for two off days, the course was practically deserted in the training hour. The sky was clear and the temperature low.

Here are the best of the moves:

Quarter—Dukedom, 27.

Three-eighths—Sequel, 42; Doctor Glenn, 42; Runall, 40 4-5.

Half—Ampolac, 55; St. Charles, 58 1-5.

Five-eighths — Mary Mc, 1:10; Tiptoe Inn, 1:10; Polo Star, 1:11; Boots and Saddles, 1:12; Ocean Current, 1:09 3-5.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Big Business.

FORBES FIELD seats 44,000; yet the management returned the checks of almost that same number of fans who could not be accommodated. Almost $500,000 was therefore sacrificed for lack of seating space.

It is safe to say a park of 100,000 would not suffice to accommodate a world's series crowd, if everybody who desired to go and who had the price, attended.

When, some 39 years ago, St. Louis won its first, last and only world's championship from Anson's Colts, it is doubtful if the margin of profit for the entire series was more than twice the amount of one winning world's series player's share today.

We'll say one thing for the 1886 championship—it was a truly sporting affair. It was the only world's championship in history wherein the teams agreed to play "winner-take-all."

Now they split 60 and 40 and play it right close to the vest.

A Mental Hazard.

WHEN Glenna Collett defeated Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser for the women's golf championship at Country Club, the match was finished at No. 13. Jimmy Manion was invited out of the gallery of 1500 to finish out the remaining five holes with Miss Collett.

That was one of the severest hazards Jimmy has had to face in his long career on the links. Miss Collett was playing in par of better and was at the top of her game. Jimmy had to to the honors for the sterner sex without a warm-up, using a strange set of clubs and with half the gallery "kidding" him.

Jimmy failed us. On five holes play Miss Collett finished two up, despite the fact that Manion outdrove her about 30 yards on every hole.

The first hole was won by the champion when she chipped in a long shot for an eagle 3. The next three holes she halved in par and on the final hole she set Jimmy down another peg with a birdie 4.

Gaining Fame.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY had a unique experience, Saturday. On its first game of the year the once-despised Pikers enjoyed the novelty of being "scouted" by practically every school in the valley conference.

The undergraduates were inclined to jubilate and take the view that this indicated a general fear of Washington's strength.

Lest the hat-band grow too tight for some of these, Dr. Bill Edmunds informed them differently. He said:

"I asked one of the scouts what caused his school to send him up to see such an early game; whether reports of a strong Washington team had gone forth. He told me that it wasn't the Piker material they were afraid of but the Piker coach—Bob Higgins."

That's something, at least, to please the Pikeway followers.

Silence the Yowlers.

THE persecution of referees at local fights ought to be the subject of attention by the boxing commission. Harry Sharpe particularly is a victim of nagging by indivduals seated far from the ring, in a safe spot.

It is quite possible that foul fighters or their managers, who know Sharpe's desire to see all boxers fight and break clean, plant some of these leather-lunged yelpers to disturb the referee and intimidate him into a less severe stand toward rule infractions.

The commission could stop it readily and the promoters should lead the objectionables to the door and hand them their money back.

Dave Shade Gives Up 3-Year Quest For Welter Title

Californian Finds He Can No Longer Make Weight Without Severe Training.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Dave Shade of California yesterday indicated that he was prepared to give up his three-year quest of the welterweight boxing championship now held by Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J.

Shade admitted that he has become too heavy to qualify for the 147-pound division without severe training methods, after the New York Boxing Commission had returned to his management a forfeit of $10,000 posted to bind a championship contest. This action was accepted by boxing men as indicating that expectations of an indoor struggle between the rivals this winter are doomed to disappointment.

"Get me a match with Harry Greb for the middleweight and I won't worry about fighting Walker," said Shade.

Walker and Shade fought 15 rounds to a decision here a few weeks ago, the former winning by a decision of the referee after two judges had disagreed.

GERMAN TENNIS STARS ARE ELIGIBLE TO PLAY IN AMERICAN EVENTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Restoration of tennis relations between the United States and Germany was announced yesterday by the Executive Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Under a ruling just promulgated by the association, German players are restored to eligibility in American tournaments, except the national championships, for the first time since the war, while American players may again participate in German net competitions. The title fixtures are not included in the events opened to Germans, the Executive Committee explains, because of restrictions placed on the contests by the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

President Jones W. Merserau of the United States Association, in notifying European tennis associations of the lifting of the ban here, explained that the organization "would be favorable to the admission of the German association to membership in the International Federation if and when they make proper application.

OWNERS FAVOR EARLIER STARTING TIME FOR WORLD SERIES TILTS

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 7.—A plan to advance the starting time of world's series games from 2 p. m. to 1:30 was favorably discussed last night at a meeting of major league club owners with Commissioner Landis.

No definite action was taken but it is understood this change will be recommended for adoption at the next joint major league business session and made effective next fall. It will chiefly lessen the likelihood of darkness interrupting long drawn out or extra inning games.

The club owners were also to have transacted the annual draft of minor league players but this was postponed until Thursday because of a delay in the arrival of the player lists.

OPEN MEETINGS OF SCHOOL BOARD COMMITTEES FAVORED

Issue of Fuel Publicity Now Put Up to Vote of the Entire Board.

By a vote of 2 to 1, the Committee on Instruction of the Board of Education has indorsed the movement to throw open to the public all meetings of board committees and thus formally place the issue before the board, which will meet Tuesday.

The movement is being led by Myrt A. Rollins, former president of the School Patrons' Alliance, who was elected upon such a platform. Rollins said today that the votes for full publicity to board affairs was supported in the Committee on Instruction by himself and Mrs. Elias Michael and opposed by Henry F. Fahrenkrog, who is preparing a minority report. He believes the movement will be supported in the board by Mrs. B. F. Bush, L. A. Schollmeyer and Henry Heter. He counts on active opposition from Stephen M. Wagner, Richard Murphy and Fahrenkrog. President Tobin and other members, he says, are noncommittal.

A majority vote in the board is required to change the rule. Rollins said he had been told that the Committee of 3000, which supported candidates for the board on a nonpolitical basis, soon would meet to approve the effort for more publicity for Board of Education matters.

MORANT BARRED AS BONDSMAN IN CIRCUIT COURT DIVISION 11

Judge Landwehr's Order Against Negro Follows Failure to Appear in Criminal Case.

William A. Morant, negro bondsman, was barred by Circuit Judge Landwehr yesterday from offering any more bonds in Division No. 11 of the Circuit Court, when both Morant and Albert Pratt, negro defendant in a criminal case, failed to appear in court when Pratt's case was called for trial.

Authorities charged with the collection of bond forfeiture judgment recently announced that efforts will begin immediately to collect $145,000 in forfeitures now pending against provisional bondsmen.

Pratt, whose bond was ordered forfeited by Judge Landwehr, was charged with leaving the scene of an automobile accident in which he had run down a pedestrian.

"DRIFTING FROM REPUBLIC"

Dr. Glenn Frank Says Nation Has Been Going Toward Democracy.

By the Associated Press.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 7.—American leaders and statesmen will some day refuse to be mere instructed messenger boys and the American people will be driven back to the conclusion that the basic principles of a republic are the soundest principles, said Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, in an address here last night.

"America has slowly been drifting away from a true republic toward a democracy," he said, after defining a democracy as a Government of "instructed delegates," and a republic as a Government of "selected representatives." "The basic idea of American Government was that of a republic. But we have been slowly encroaching on the right of the leader to lead."

The Austrian Government, when questioned by the Italian Ambassador, indicated it would make all necessary amends for the attack on Mussolini.

Italian Socialists Reject Pact.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 7.—The General Federation of Labor, a socialist organization, has adopted a resolution refusing to recognize the accord announced between the General Confederation of Industry and the Confederation of Fascist Labor Unions. The Socialist labor organization voted that the accord should not be recognized as affecting its members. It also accepted the resignation of Lodovico d'Aragona, its general secretary. Premier Mussolini today received the framers of the accord and declared that Oct. 2, the date it was concluded, will go down in history as marking the collapse of the conception that inevitable class war is a feature of the relation of labor and capital.

What's that they said?

He was just entering the locker room at his club. From back of one of the tiers came voices: some men were talking about him. He had heard his name mentioned.

They had also said something about a certain advertising campaign. Then the conversation died away.

Jenkins suspected who the men were. Yet he was too sensitive a fellow to investigate. It ruined his game that day but started him thinking.

You, yourself, rarely know when you have halitosis (unpleasant breath). That's the insidious thing about it. And even your closest friends won't tell you.

Sometimes, of course, halitosis comes from some deep-seated organic disorder that requires professional advice. But usually—and fortunately—halitosis is only a local condition that yields to the regular use of Listerine as a mouth wash and gargle. It is an interesting thing that this well-known antiseptic that has been in use for years for surgical dressings, possesses these unusual properties as a breath deodorant. It puts you on the safe and polite side.

Listerine halts food fermentation in the mouth and leaves the breath sweet, fresh and clean. Not by substituting some other odor but by really removing the old one. The Listerine odor itself quickly disappears.

This safe and long-trusted antiseptic has dozens of different uses; note the little circular that comes with every bottle. Your druggist sells Listerine in the original brown package only—never in bulk. There are four sizes: 14 ounce, 7 ounce, 3 ounce and 1¼ ounce. Buy the large size for economy.—Lambert Pharmacal Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

Southern Fruit and Vegetables Moving Earlier.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—With the harvest of Northern fall fruits and vegetables in full swing, reports are coming from the South as to prospective acreage of new-season crops.

The United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics announced today that growers along the Gulf of Mexico are figuring how much of the Northern fruit and vegetable crops may be in storage in January when the new Southern produce season becomes active. Meanwhile, the shipment of nearly 5000 more carloads of fruits and vegetables in the last week than during the corresponding period a year ago is an indication of continued earliness of present season.

The total volume of fruits and vegetables filled 31,350 cars this week. Three-fourths of this volume were grapes, apples and potatoes.

Bond Market Review

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Today's bond market was enlivened by a demonstration in Brazilian issues. New high records for the year were made by both Brazil 8s and Brazil 7½s, the former touching par. The advance may have been a belated recognition of the financial improvement in Brazil as testified to by the rise in the exchange rate or it may have foreshadowed a new Brazilian loan to be placed in this country.

Other foreign bonds dragged along without much change.

Within the general market there were offerings of both speculative and investment rails, offerings which came, it was said, from real holders. Bonds of the grade of St. Louis San Francisco prior lien A 4s and of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5½s were in larger supply than in some time. The junior rails were even weaker. St. Louis San Francisco incomes got down to 83 as against 90 at the end of last week. The same road's adjustments broke below 92 where they were a point and one-half down from the high since they sold ex-the semiannual $3 disbursement. Seaboard Airline adjustments were heavy and so were Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s which at 60 were off nearly five points from last week's high. Today's price also was only five points up from the extreme low. Meanwhile Denver & Rio Grande Western is making a remarkably good showing in net income.

In the industrial and utility groups Market Street Railway 7s dropped below par following the decline in the stocks Tuesday. American Writing Paper 6s reacted from their high of Tuesday.

WHEAT SELLS OFF AFTER EARLY UPTU

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The wheat mar had a sinking spell today as a reactio from the steady and sharp advance of th past few days. The reported failure of big foreign concern for $5,000,000 the Budapest market, influenced the oth foreign markets and had some effect he Wheat prices slumped further in trading as a result of reported liquida by foreign longs and selling by Southwe interests. Closing prices were 2½c 3⅝c lower. December new, $1.38¼ $1.38⅝, old $1.37⅛ to $1.37¼; May new $1.39 to $1.38⅞, old $1.38½ to $1.3 Corn closed 1⅛c lower. December 75⅝c t 75½c, May 80¼c to 80⅜c. Oats wer ⅝c to ¾c lower. At the opening there was a mixed com mission house trade. Prices at first wer steady, but then a reaction set in. Th reported failure abroad seemed to u the morale of the longs and on every litt rally there was plenty of wheat for sal shorts took profits on the dips and th was buying for Northwest account, pr sumably because of the unfavorabl weather.

Deliveries of Canadian farmers fell t 2,200,000 bushels yesterday. All contrac grades in the Winnipeg market are sellin at a slight premium, checking deliverie on October contracts. Milling demand fo cash wheat continues good but sales a smaller because holders advanced askin prices. Demand from abroad continu disappointing.

The Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Founda tion issued a bearish crop estimate fore casting a total crop of 750,000,000 bushe for this country or 50,000,000 bushe over the last Government estimate.

Corn started firm, but the break i wheat depressed prices later. Locals wer friendly to the market at the start an were principal buyers. IXED TREND TO PRICES IN STOCK LIST

w Securities Again Provide Bulk of Activities—Trading in Smaller Volme—Bonds Featurless.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Eve Post in its copyrighted finan review today says:

"The same mixed trend that has racterized fluctuations on the k market for several days was valent again today, but trading in smaller volume and move- nts were confined to narrower its. Motor and mercantile issues ntinued to attract attention, but trend was not so definitely to- rd higher levels. As in previous sions, a few stocks provided the k of activity. It was noted that yesterday's session of approxi- tely 2,000,000 shares, transac- s in 20 individual issues ac- nted for nearly 1,000,000 shares, half of the day's sales. The bond rket was featureless, price move- ts being narrow and irregular. easier money market helped ces to some extent, but little ing power was in evidence.

• • •

Influence of Money Market.

"With the drop in the rate for loans to 4½ per cent in the ernoon, after renewals had been anged at 5½ per cent, specula- operations showed a tendency expand, reflecting the psycholog- l effect of an easier rate for y. The fear of an advance in Federal Reserve Bank's redis- nt rate from 3½ per cent to 4 her was not so prevalent or the rket was prepared for such an ntuality and felt that it would without effect in view of the erally higher rates which have vailed in the market for call s recently. With money lend- on call at 5 and 5½ per cent, a per cent rediscount rate would seem out of line. The stiffen- in money rates since the middle last month has served to reduce kers' loans, according to reports banking circles, and is believed have given the market a firmer ndation.

• • •

Irregularity in Active Stocks.

"Prices of the active speculative diums lacked a definite trend, market backing and filling in atic fashion. Several of the mo- shares were depressed at the rt, but in other sections of the up good buying power devel- d. Several specialties which have n in the foreground lately were again in demand. New York Shipbuilding was strong, while U. S. Rubber rallied. Marine preferred was active and higher. Market Street Railway, on the other hand, was weak, and Shattuck stock was depressed. Detroit Edison was in good demand. Rail shares were more freely offered and several favorites lost ground rather easily. Pressure was based on speculative fear of unfavorable developments in merger negotiations and was helped by liquidation of tired longs. Southern Pacific fell to a new low for the year.

• • •

Steady Tone in Exchanges.

"Offerings of remittances on European centers were easily absorbed and rates were inclined to advance slightly in quiet trading. Sterling rallied fractionally, while French, Belgian and Italian rates were a trifle higher. Scandinavian rates were again strong, both Norwegian and Danish crowns advancing sharply. Argentine exchange was higher, but Brazilian rates eased off on increased offerings. Canadian exchange registered another advance.

• • •

Reaction in Commodities.

"Trading was unsettled in the markets for the principal commodities. Grain prices dropped back on profit-taking as a result of yesterday's sharp rally. December wheat cotracts lost more than 2 cents a bushel, while corn fell back more than 2 cents a bushel. Cotton was quiet and somewhat lacking in support. Nearby months were fairly steady, but later deliveries were more freely offered. Approach of the Government's fortnightly crop estimate, due tomorrow, restricted operations.

Based upon semiofficial statements that $200,000,000 would be required to take Continental Baking into the General Baking Corporation and the $100,000,000 to take over Ward Baking it is believed in one quarter that Continental stockholders will be offered about $50 a share for the "B" stock or its equivalent in new stock. Ward B is expected to receive $90 or $100 a share, with Southern Baking going in at $500 a share.

Production is 400,000 barrels daily. Crude storage has been reduced to about 5,000,000 barrels, compared with 7,701,221 the first of the year.

• • •

Consolidation of the Armour and Morris companies, which was recently confirmed by the Secretary of Agriculture, will result, it is estimated by industrial engineers, in an annual saving of more than $10,000,000 through the reduction of overhead and other charges. This would be equivalent to about $2.50 a share on the 4,000,000 shares of A and B stock outstanding. The A stock, now selling around 27, pays $2 a share and cannot pay any more until the B stock pays $2 and thereafter both share alike. Total sales of the company last year were $800,000,000, with indications that the billion dollar mark well be reached this year.

• • •

BULLISH ACTIVITIES IN THE MEDIUM PRICED INDUSTRIALS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—There was an essential change in the character of the curb market in many respects which became most marked today, although it had been in progress for some time. This was in the development of bullish activities in a number of medium-priced industrials. Tobacco Products Exports became strong and active and Curtiss Aeroplane was another strong feature, selling at a new high record. Armour B wa sagain actively traded in, but did not move into new ground. There was a show of strength in Stutz Motor, which made a fractional advance, while Durant Motor had a small loss.

The higher-priced industrials generally were strong. Johns-Manville moved up from 155 to 160, and Gillette rose over a point to 107. The heaviest trading in the industrial list was in Continental Baking B, which rose over a point but later lost its gain on a reaction. Many of the refrigerating stocks were actively traded in arround recently established high levels. Victor Talking Machine advanced over 5 points.

There was lively trading in many of the utility issues. A feature was the display of strength in Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, which, after being under pressure following the dividend meeting, reflected steady accumulation and today moved up nearly a point. National Power, after falling 5 points to 383, moved up to 391. Mississippi River Power was again strong, but Southern California Edison was under pressure and had a shorp decline.

Humble Oil was a strong feature in the petroleum group, advancing over a point, but did not hold this gain. Vacuum Oil also reacted after a fractional advance. Prairie Oil continued firm and moved up half to 49¾. There was activity also in a number of the mining stocks, with Kay Copper continuing to be traded on a large scale at around its recent high level.

QUIET COTTON TRADE ON NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 6 points to an advance of 5 points, with some selling by those who had bought on yesterday's apprehensions of a cold wave in the belt and who were evidently disappointed by the showing of this morning's weather map. On the other hand, there was covering and buying on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool cables and after selling off to 22.88c at the start, December rallied to 22.98c, making net advances of 3 or 4 points on the active months. The quietness of general business suggested that traders were waiting for tomorrow's Government report.

Another private report estimated the crop prospects at 14,301,000 bales, and the ginnings to Oct. 1 at 6,732,000 bales.

Trading remained quiet throughout the morning with fluctuations correspondingly narrow. After the rally to 22.98c December eased off to about 22.90c and was ruling around that figure at midday. Prices generally were 3 to 5 points net lower on active months. According to a canvass made today New York cotton exchange members, on the average, are expecting a crop indication of about 14,170,000 bales. A private authority estimated the ginnings to Oct. 1 at 7,000,000 bales.

The large private ginning figures seemed to create a bearish impression on sentiment and offerings increased slightly during the early afternoon. December sold off to 22.85c, or 10 points net lower and active months generally showed net losses of about 4 to 10 points at 2 o'clock.

When You Own Cotton

There is a commercial risk in the ownership of cotton. This risk cannot be eliminated. But it can be shifted. And such a course is generally sound business policy.

Cotton merchants and manufacturers avoid the speculative risk of ownership by "hedging." They buy futures against sales which they have made of cotton or goods and for which they do not then hold the actual cotton. Or they may sell futures against cotton or goods on hand which await a satisfactory market.

Houston and Galveston are the markets in which the Chicago contract is consummated by delivery. These two ports where chosen because together they constitute the largest spot cotton market in the world. Deliveries may be made there without extra freight and handling costs. Stocks always on hand are sufficient to protect the interests of buyer and seller.

Delivery at Houston or Galveston makes the Chicago contract especially attractive. It is an excellent hedging contract.

For full information write the Cotton Registrar, Chicago Board of Trade. Literature on the world grain market may also be had on request.

Minimum cotton contract 100 bales. Commissions the same as New York and New Orleans. Warehouse capacity 1,500,000 bales

Ask Dad— See If He Knows

Father and mother are always thinking of your welfare—there isn't a thing within reason they wouldn't do for you.

But they may unknowingly have been risking your life every day.

Perhaps he won't be able to answer—he may not know.

Ask dad if he knows that somewhere in the country a schoolhouse burns every day. Ask him if he knows that one-third of all the schoolhouses in the country are nothing better than firetraps—maybe your school is one of them.

Of course dad knows that buildings can be built that will not burn. They are being built everywhere, every day.

If your school is firesafe, you're lucky. If it isn't, ask dad what he is going to do about it. You have a right to know.

• • •

The highest type of firesafe construction is concrete. Our illustrated booklet "Concrete Schoolhouses" contains a wealth of information on firesafe construction with which every parent ought to be familiar. Write today for your free copy.

OFFER FOR PRODUCERS' MILK PLANT RENEWED

The corporate life of the Illinois-Missouri Co-operative Milk Producers' Association, which has been churned through two bankruptcies in three years, emerged today with a demand by its old members on Referee J. G. Burnside to accept or reject an offer of $20,500 which they, as the Ill-Mo Co-operative Inc., made for the properties Aug. 21 last.

G. Edwin Popkess, trustee under the receiver, approved the offer and recommended a sale of the properties for that amount which would put the company back on its feet. But, for nearly seven weeks, Burnside has declined to act and the Ill-Mo Dairy Co., the marketing subsidiary of the co-operative association, is, according to Popkess, losing $500 monthly because of its uncertain status.

The offer of $20,500 was made for the co-operative association's creamery plant and its other equipment, including a building at 116 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, and $4100 earnest money was paid to Popkess. The new concern has an authorized capitalization of $50,000 of common stock and $100,000 preferred stock. It proposes to manufacture butter and sell milk at retail in the St. Louis district.

A resolution adopted today by the officers of the newly organized Ill-Mo Co-operative, Inc., calls upon Burnside to accept the offer, or in the event he rejects it, to return the earnest money which is on deposit at the Union Trust Co., in East St. Louis. The resolution is signed by R. H. Isaacs, president.

Simultaneously, the officers of the Ill-Mo Dairy Co. addressed a resolution to Burnside, demanding a reasonable extension of the lease in order that a readjustment of its business plans may be made in the event the $20,500 offer is not accepted.

The bankrupt company owned $10,000 of the $12,000 common stock of the dairy company.

Popkess pointed out that the only liquid asset of the defunct company was this stock and that, because of its effect on the dairy company's lease, the latter was losing $500 per day. The dairy company offered to surrender its lease to Burnside on the theory that a friendly group would take over its old parent company.

Popkess said many of the persons interested in the new company had lost money in the old one. "Their money is tied up in the plant," he said, "and the delay is not only preventing a settlement of the bankrupt estate but is delaying organization of the new company."

Ask Dad— See If He Knows

Father and mother are always thinking of your welfare—there isn't a thing within reason they wouldn't do for you.

But they may unknowingly have been risking your life every day.

When you are at dinner tonight with dad, ask him this question:

"Dad, is our school firesafe?"

Perhaps he won't be able to answer—he may not know.

Ask dad if he knows that somewhere in the country a schoolhouse burns every day. Ask him if he knows that one-third of all the schoolhouses in the country are nothing better than firetraps—maybe your school is one of them.

Of course dad knows that buildings can be built that will not burn. They are being built everywhere, every day.

If your school is firesafe, you're lucky. If it isn't, ask dad what he is going to do about it. You have a right to know.

The DIVINE LADY

by E. BARRINGTON

LADY HAMILTON AS CIRCE

FROM THE PAINTING BY G. ROMNEY

"The Divine Lady" is the story, partly fiction but largely based on fact, of Lady Emma Hamilton, the Englishwoman of lowly birth who became one of the best known and most talked about women in all Europe.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX.

AND safely. Emma, the Ambassadress, is more inclined to magnify her office than to roll the carpet with it. Great ladies, the truly great, do not commit such faux pas. She mused often over the unspoken lessons in demeanor of the sweet Gunning Duchess, now gone to rejoin her lost and lovely sister. Emma had studied that soft dignity to some purpose, and if the original Eve broke forth sometimes primitive and unashamed, who can blame her?

She sat one day in her room of the mirrors dressed in her white morning negligee and looked out upon the blue bay, with many thoughts of public anxiety. It was dawn, and a golden calm subdued the water into a peace so exquisite that it quieted her into a serene delight. They were to spend the day alone, and she was glad; a little tired of unceasing anxiety and the long uneasy talks with the Queen and Acton. The air was full of trouble; she hankered sometimes for the good old days when all was gayety and gladness by the blue sea that has seen so many revelers come and flit away into the darkness forever. And as she leaned and watched in pleasant idleness, a ship hove in sight, far off but drawing in slowly and steadily with white sails set to catch every drift of the faint morning breeze—a great ship with yawning ports along her checkered sides, with the English ensign flying: English, therefore, and certainly a news-bearer.

She started up and caught at Sir William's glass, steadying it against a flower-stand and kneeling while she looked. Yes—English.

Good God! Sir William must know.

He was not in his room and she sent Teresa flying all over the house to search for him. No—His Excellency was out. He had dressed and gone hastily down to the water's edge. Then he knew—he had known before she did. She knelt down and resumed her glass. Presently, their own boat pulling off from the pier. That would be Sir William in the stern and one of the secretaries. Which, she could not be sure. Now they were nearing the big ship as she turned, rounded broadside on to the windows, and Emma, through the slid-back panes, could hear the great rattle when the mighty anchor loosed from the catheads sent blue water flying as it sought its home below. And then the thunder of the Royal salute to the flag of the Two Sicilies flying on Uovo and Nuovo. Twenty-one guns. She put her hands to her ears, laughing for pride and pleasure as the roar of the Lion sent the wild echoes flying. These Neapolitans—they should see the might of her own people at last; the floating battlements which alone stood between them and the French devils. She clapped her hands when gun after gun along the bay, and Uovo and Nuovo responded with feebler crackling honors.

What! The Royal Barge putting out to the ship, and at this early hour! And that was the King in the stern if ever she saw him. Then that was Marie Caroline's doing; a special honor to the ship representing the friend of the Two Sicilies. She saw her husband's boat draw back politely, and the Royal Barge gained the rope ladder first with Sir William's hovering attendant, and the boatswain's shrill pipe cut the morning air, and the officers gathered at the gangway, and she could see the King laboriously ascending the rope ladder, Sir William following, and a bright bugle call was heard, and then for watchers ashore, the scene was closing unless one cared to watch the boats making off hot-foot from the shore with cargoes of fruit and vegetables very acceptable to men so long afloat as the bluejackets of the English fleet.

Emma did not. With Teresa she made such a careful toilette as a beautiful young woman of 27 would naturally achieve with hospitalities of importance to come. The Captain and all the officers on leave would be entertained at the Embassy. Indeed, the Queen might send for her any moment to discuss the news, whatever it might be. Word had already reached the Embassy that the ship was the Agamemnon—detached from the English fleet blockading Toulon. Good God! What was the news? But no one was sure, though wild rumors were flying about and nearly all the population on the quays. She lived at the window that morning, and watched the royal barge return with all the honors, and received a messenger who came from Sir William with news that preparation must be made for the guests she expected. She was half frantic with suspense.

An hour went by. Evidently long private discussions between the Ambassador and the Captain. Good heavens! Why couldn't they talk as well ashore? And then again the boatswain's piercing call, and the Embassy boat at the ladder, and Sir William clambering down slowly hand under hand, and a slight man in uniform taking the descent as to the manner born. She had heard, but could not for the life of her remember who commanded the Agamemnon.

Steps. Voices—Sir William's a little excited; she knew that note! A strange voice answering. A group of uniformed men at the door, the Ambassador leading and waving the Captain to precede him.

"Emma, my love, Capt. Horatio Nelson of the Agamemnon. Lady Hamilton, sir. He brings the news that Toulon is in our hands."

She had started to her feet to curtsey ceremoniously when the last words caught her ear, and then, radiant, rejoicing, the Ambassadress caught his hand in both her own.

"Toulon ours? Oh, sir, you are God's messenger as well as our King's. Thank God. Thank God."

* * *

Capt. Horatio Nelson was at this time 24 years old, and far from despicable in person. He was slender almost to a fault and so small-boned that most observers classed him as a little man, which was far from true, since he touched middle height, and bore himself well and serenely except when suddenly agitated; and then his nervous temperament sparkled in his eyes and twitched his mobile lips. His brows were arched and gave a clear lift to the penetrating eye beneath; his forehead lofty and commanding. Yet it is possible these characteristics might be read into the face by later knowledge rather than by present observation, and to Emma, not so quick to read character as to feel and humor it insensibly, he appeared at first sight an ordinary sea-captain in the ordinary plain uniform (devoid of epaulettes) of the time. His consequence lay in the news he brought, and his interest to her personally in the fact that he had a petition from his Admiral, my Lord Hood, to be preferred at the Neapolitan Court, which she might raise her own consequence by aiding.

When they were alone, Sir William gave her the necessary outlines.

"I am impressed with the air of this young man, my love. He met the King with the utmost composure and appeared so full of business as to have room for nothing else. Important business indeed. Toulon is in our hands, but troops, troops are of all things needful and Lord Hood has sent the Agamemnon to beg for them. I know what the Queen's mind will be, but the King's jaw dropped. He is willing enough to take his subsidy from England, out not to spend a penny of it but on his own fancies. Work for my Emma."

She opened the subject again with Nelson, whom she found in the reception room, turning over the ornaments on the tables with fingers curiously delicate for a man and of his profession. He had a tall, good-looking boy in attendance in midshipman's uniform, dirk and all complete, whom he presented as his stepson, Josiah Nisbet, and to whom Lady Hamilton overflowed with cordiality. Boys were her delight, she protested. No, of course he should not live aboard. The poor little fellow (who blushed to be so named) must need a change after that cruel cruising for weeks and months! Sir William's Italian secretary should take him to see the sights, and she would talk with Capt. Nelson.

Nisbet dispatched, there was much to tell and hear. The long and weary blockade of Toulon.

"We got honor and salt beef, madam, not much else!" says he, leaning back on the fine silk of the settee as if a little wearied. "My good fellows have not had a morsel of fresh meat or vegetables for 19 weeks and though I did my best to keep them amused and distracted, Your Ladyship will judge there was much sickness aboard. I have been luckier than some captains, but"——

"Hold! Not a word more."

"Tell Ferrari to have six boatloads of fruit and vegetables sent off to the Agamemnon in my name. The best in the market. And let it be done now."

"Indeed, madam, words fail me to express my sense of your consideration!" the young Captain cries with warmth. "Your Ladyship shows a sensibility I can never forget. The world that hankers for victories ignores the poor fellows that win it for them. I thank you in their name. That fruit will be the sweeter to them coming from our Ambassadress."

Indeed, it won his heart, which was at that time centered in his men. Never a commander more zealous for their good with all in his power. She touched the right string there.

"Indeed, sir, you have but to speak and have in Naples," says she earnestly. "If you could but guess the terror and agony of the Queen's mind with her sister in the hands of those French monsters, and Jacobinism rolling like the lava from Vesuvius ever nearer and nearer, you would comprehend your consequence here. Her only hope is England."

"I don't mention him because he has not even the merit of being neutral to his wise Queen's English policy, but is forever angling after his brother on the throne of Spain, who is in the pay of the French Jacobins, so sure as I sit here."

"Then, Your Ladyship, was I amiss in mentioning first to the King my Admiral's need of troops? Good God, how is a plain sailorman to see his way through such a maze! Surely the Ambassador would have checked me if I mistook."

"No, sir. It is true it would be well if the King could be dropped out of any negotiations, but being King 'tis not possible. I shall see Her Majesty this afternoon after the King and she have received you, and will lay before her any private particulars you may have reserved for Sir William. He will give you my character for good sense and secrecy. Confer with him and let me know the result. And leaving you to this I will put on my hat and take your little Nisbet for a drive along the seaboard from Naples to Posilippo. I see him in the loggia. You can rely on my taking care of him."

Capt. Nelson sat alone in the cool and beautiful room considering the events of the morning with that swift mind of his, and of these his beautiful hostess came last in interest. Could he have made a mistake in opening the Admiral's request for troops to the King? That was a vital matter for the fleet and, not only that, but it would affect his own professional reputation according to success or failure. But then, if so, Sir William should have given him a check somehow. He rose and took a turn about the room, considering, and touched the bell and with what many young Captains would have considered consummate impudence requested he might have the honor of a few words with His Excellency before starting for the royal audience. "Certainly," was the answer. "If Capt. Nelson would kindly follow the messenger."

EVERY day holds a surprise just now — sometimes new in the way of fashion. It is a season showing many changes. Some of them are so subtle as scarcely to be noticeable, but others are really radical innovations which will intrigue those who love change and who like to contemplate themselves in entirely new sorts of costumes.

Of course, we all know about the flare. That has become an established fact, but the various ways of that flare and the methods of its design and application are intricate in the extreme. Each new dress that appears has something new in the way of a flare and often you will think that there can be no flare at all when suddenly you will find it hidden away so cleverly that the first moment when it shows at all is when the dress is on and in place and the first step in it is taken. That motion is needed to throw the fullness into bold relief.

Yes, it is true. The dresses of this new season do take more material than they have in the past and they are things more complicated as to making, so that it takes somebody really experienced in the art of dressmaking to put them together and to fit them so that the finished product is really something to be proud of and to hold its own among the mass of elegantly made costumes that are being presented.

The Novelties in Wraps

Coats are quite thrilling, for they are enough like last season to make the case hopeful for any one whose wrap needs only doing over. But they are different, too, and the new ones have many little details about them which make us wonder why we had never thought of that little thing for coats before.

For instance, there is the trimming of fur. Once it was placed only on the collar and cuffs, again it made its appearance only at the bottom. Now, the newest coats show borders of fur that run all the way around the edge of the coat, stopping for nothing in the wending of their ways. It is a pretty fashion, too, for this soft edging of fur, be it wide or narrow, has a most becoming way with it. Any girl's face comes up wonderfully under the influence of a frame of this sort.

Warmth a Reality

Then there is the idea of the fur-lined coat which promises to be extremely popular as the days lengthen into winter. The outside of the coat, or the portion that shows its face to the world, is harmless enough looking and light, too, for it is made of some thin, graceful material which not very often gives any hint of the warmth that may be concealed underneath. The satin coat in the picture is one of these. As far as can be seen on the surface, it is almost a dress in effect and making, but underneath there is a soft, warm lining of gray and white squirrel skins, deftly fitted together and to the lines of the coat, so that it may be worn on the coldest day and manage to give every protection from the winter's cold.

This matter of warm linings is something that is being carried to a great extent. Coats for the winter are warm—good and warm. There is none of the business of making the coat look like something warm and cozy and then having the wearer feel little gusts of cold wind creep up her backbone. No, the coats of this season are really what they seem to be, and there will be no sad stories of cold ladies whose fur collars are none the less hugged about their throats. In other coats there are good, warm linings of warm, woolly materials that are woven light but with extraordinary qualities of protection allotted to them.

You can see at a glance how good a thing a coat of the sort pictured would be to wear with evening dresses. It would give all the protection needed and still it would look dressy enough both when it was closed and when it was allowed to swing loose and open. Then the double advantage of it would be that it would do just as well for an afternoon coat.

A Strong Practical Appeal

Any one who is anything short of a millionaire wants to make a coat serve these two purposes if it is at all possible, for then the one coat can be so much handsomer a thing than either of the two could be. So the idea of a satin coat that is warmly lined is going to have a great appeal to many who have, all their lives perhaps, been looking for something just as practical and interesting looking as this can be.

An evening dress of metal cloth or of velvet brocade is one of the things which every girl is going to covet for her winter wardrobe. They are such colorful and interesting things and they have all of the modern spirit of dress held within the confines of the simple piece of material even before it is made up. The patterns are ravishing, both those that are woven here in this country and those that are imported from Europe. Many of these dresses are made up with little or no trimming and then again they can be decorated with ever so handsome edgings and accessories. The dress in the picture has a border of white fox than which nothing could be more lovely—or more expensive. Then, over the top of the fur border there is a row of beaded embroidery, which blends beautifully with the pattern of the frock, but which for that reason is none the less elaborate.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Help for Weak Eyes.

A pair of dark glasses will come in handy for the woman whose eyes are weak when she is hanging out clothes. The glare of the sunlight on the white clothes is very hard on the eyes.

Better Measurements.

Use three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice when a recipe calls for the juice of a lemon. This is safer than counting the lemons, as this fruit varies greatly in the amount of juice to each lemon.

* * *

Softens the Butter.

The butter for sandwiches may be softened easily by thoroughly heating an earthen bowl and turning it over the butter. It will soften the butter throughout and make it the right consistency for spreading.

* * *

It Makes a Big Difference.

If you are running a laundry stove for hot water and the flue connects with that of the empty furnace, be sure to shut the pipe in the big furnace so that the draft is not killed in the little fire by the opening into the larger one. The same thing applies if the big fire is used and the little fire is out. Then close the draft in the smaller pipe.

For School Lunches

A good sandwich for the school child is a combination of raisins and chopped almonds blended with orange juice and sugar. Spread between thin slices of any preferred bread.

THE DATE TREE

Oct. 7th, 1290—635 years ago. —The Maid of Norway arrives in Scotland. Having inherited her grandfather's kingdom at the age of seven, Scottish ambassadors were despatched to the Norwegian Court to bring the little queen to her throne. After a reluctant parting between King Eric and his daughter, she set out in the care of a faithful old Norse admiral. But the loyal Scottish nation, eagerly awaiting its young sovereign, was electrified by the sad news that the Maid of Norway was no more, having succumbed to illness brought on by grief and the fatigue of her long voyage.

WEDNESDAY (Atlantic City).

DEAR DIARY:

I walked out on the boardwalk this morning. The day was clear and warm enough to make you feel you'd rather carry your coat, that is, after you'd walked a little way. And I walked miles thinking about Bob and clothes.

I think if I were a famous movie actress and some one came to interview me and put my picture in the papers, I wouldn't tell about my favorite poet and all that. I'd say courageously that my hobby is clothes and that I'd rather buy a new hat than read any dusty old dramatist. And how many girls truly wouldn't?

There are fur shops to no end here and at last there's something new in the way of a fur coat. The reversible fur and cloth is new this season. Of course mother used to have a fur-lined coat but it was a bunchy, clumsy affair and she looked like a Greenlander in it. These new ones are natty-looking and certainly when you come to think that you really have two coats—a cloth-trimmed one and a furry-sided one—it's a great saving.

The women here seem to have brought their nicest clothes. I was glad I brought all of mine. The reseda green serge with the yellow and black braiding was just the thing for this morning's walk.

Aunt Grace hasn't the least idea that I am troubled about Bob. She is engaged in knitting her nine-thousandth striped sweater. Sat sunning herself on the porch all morning like a cat.

I am trying not to think too much about Bob. I sent him a jingly little note today. How hard it was to keep from writing all that is in my heart!

Across the Bay.

ACROSS the bay a white sail drifts to melt into the sky, and where the snowy cloud-rack lifts the wide-winged seagulls fly. Far, far acrss the bay I know a palm-fringed island lies, and these blue waters brightly flow beneath yet bluer skies. The tropic foliage greener grows, the palms are taller there, all nature more luxuriance shows in that benignant air. Ah, fair indeed must be that land, and many a wishful day in dreams. I walk the shining strand that lies across the bay. The ways I daily go are good, with love's bright blossoming; yet often in a restless mood I long for sail or wing.

By Thornton W. Burgess

A Rumor of a Cold Winter

Rumor, busy day and night,
Is at that but seldom right.
—Old Mother Nature.

OF course with so many people preparing for winter there was a great deal of talk about the winter. All sorts of rumors were flying about. Peter Rabbit heard these rumors wherever he went.

"I hear," said Danny Meadow Mouse, "that the Squirrel cousins are laying in extra nuts and acorns for the winter. I suppose that is a sign that we are going to have an extra long, cold, hard winter. What puzzles me is how the Squirrel cousins should know any more about what kind of a winter we are going to have than you or I."

"I've heard the same thing," confessed Peter. "The last time I was over at the Smiling Pool Jerry Muskrat was working unusually hard. I have never known him to take such pains with his house. He is making the walls extra thick. The Merry Little Breezes say that his fur coat is extra thick this year. Perhaps it is, but I don't know any reason why he should have a thicker fur coat this year than I, and my coat is no thicker than usual. Still folks say this is a sign of a hard winter."

A day or so later Peter was over in Farmer Brown's cornfield. The corn had been cut and was in shocks. Blacky the Crow alighted on one of these and began to tear open the husks of an ear of corn. "Seems to me these husks are unusually thick," he grumbled. "Folks say that thick husks on an ear of corn mean a cold winter. I don't take any stock in it myself, but that's what people say."

"I know," said Peter. "I've heard that same thing. I heard a rumor today that Honker the Goose has started earlier than usual from his summer home in the Far North, and this is another sign that we are going to have a long, cold, hard winter. Do you believe in signs, Blacky?"

Blacky's eyes twinkled. "When I see a man with a gun coming toward me I believe it's a sign that I better move on, and when it begins to rain that is a sign that I had better get under cover if I don't want to get wet. Those are the only signs I believe in, Peter," said he.

"But listen, Blacky," said Peter, "the Squirrel cousins are laying up an extra supply of food; Johnny Chuck is fatter than I've ever seen him; Jerry Muskrat's fur is thicker than usual and he's building an extra big house; Honker the Goose is starting South early and the husks on the corn are extra thick. Now what does all that mean?"

"That may be so, Blacky, that may be so," said Peter

Blacky cocked his head on one side and looked very wise. "Well, if you want to know what I think about it," said he, "it means that the Squirrel cousins and Johnny Chuck have found food extra plentiful and easy to get and so they've laid in an extra store. Jerry Muskrat's coat may be thicker than usual, and if it is it is probably because he has had extra good living. If Honker the Goose really has started extra early from the Far North it probably is because he knows he will find better living farther south. As for this corn, I don't know why the husks are thicker than usual and I don't care. It isn't a sign of a cold winter to me. It is merely a sign that I have got to work a little harder than usual to get at this fine corn. I've found that when people are extra well prepared for winter it is usually because it was extra easy to prepare and really doesn't mean anything else."

"That may be so, Blacky, that may be so," said Peter. "Just the same I'd like to know if we really are going to have a cold, hard winter."

"Why, I—I—I might get ready for it," said Peter.

How Blacky did laugh. You see he knew that Peter Rabbit has no more idea of thrift and how to prepare for what the future may bring than he has how to fly. Peter grew indignant. He turned and away he went, lipperty—lipperty—lip. "Just the same I think it is going to be a long hard, cold winter," he shouted over his shoulder.

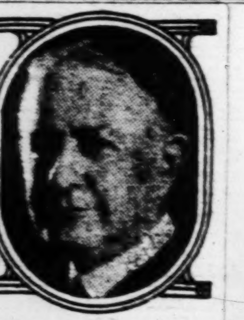
The Man on the Sandbox

by L. C. Davis



THE PASSING SHOW

THE curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The big league championships have been decided;
The Pirates and the Senators will play
To see just how the pot will be divided.
While Bucky knows he has a scrap before him,
The Skull and Cross Bones have no terrors for him.

The old Veiled Prophet handed us a tip
Upon the outcome of the coming battle;
And, while we know who'll win the championship,
It wouldn't be the proper thing to tattle.
So, while it pains us deeply to conceal it,
'Twould be a breach of trust should we reveal it.

The interest isn't what it used to be,
And thousands stretched their rubber necks to see,
While traffic they were absolutely blocking.

CAMOUFLAGE.

YOU can put an eagle on the cap
Or change the running board,
But you may rest assured, old chap,
She'll be the same old Ford!

We've read a good deal about cub reporters, but have never seen one. We're beginning to think that there is no such animal.

All the reporters we have come in contact with are bears and they don't care who knows it.

Young reporters, yes, green reporters, certainly. Fresh reporters if you will. But the cub reporter is a figment of the short story writers' brain.

"Champagne Plant Seized in County."

The lawyers and judiciary all seem to agree that the law is the bunk. Then why not debunk it?
